California ain't what she usta be State battling growth problems

By MIKE SILVERMAN

California.

The name was coined to describe a mythical island paradise of beautiful women and streets paved with gold. Sixteenth century explorers, mistaking Mexico's western peninsula for an island, called it California and extended the title to the land further north.

Since the Gold Rush three cen-turies later, California has been a magnet for Americans hoping for a better life—and a place where

"More than 1,000 people are entering California every 24 hours in the greatest mass migration in the history of the world! ... The day we pass New York and become No. 1, we're going to throw the biggest party the state has ever seen!" — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, September, 1962. "This planet is a limited place and this country and state are limited ... There's a lot of overblown expectations." — California Gov. Edmund G. Brewn Jr., October, 1975.

those hopes often shattered against harsh realities. Seldom have those realities been harsher than today, although less than a decade ago California was the image of the ideal place to live. Now the state is husbanding its once abundant natural resources and cannot provide jobs for nearly 10 per cent of its people.

The massive wave of Americans came to California starting with World War II—lifting the population from 7 million in 1940 to 20 million by 1970.

They made California the most populous and wealthiest state, with a median family income last year of more than $15,000, and a gross product of more than $160 billion higher than all but five countries in the world.

Yet by the time the younger Brown was elected governor in 1974, his father's "mass migration" had shrunk from 300,000 to 100,000 a year. And 80 per cent of today's immigrants come from other coun-tries with living standards far below the U.S. level.

Americans have stopped com-ing here partly because of economic problems—especially in the aero-space industry—and partly because the flood of new residents since World War II destroyed some of the very qualities that attracted them

Ironically, Californians in the mid-1970s must solve problems created by rapid population growth at the same time that the decline in economic growth is causing new troubles, chiefly unemployment and more people on welfare.

State officials see the challenge as an opportunity to provide a new kind of direction for the nation, for they feel California's problems are not so different from the rest of the country's-they merely have come to a head sooner.

"Everything that happens in California is important because it may be symptomatic of other

Tens of thousands of Italian women march in Rome Saturday during mammoth demonstration in favor of abortion on demand. The rally, in which women with clenched fists shouted slogans against the Pope and Premier Aldo Moro's Christian Democratic Party, came after a provision was approved in Parliament allowing abortion only in rape cases and when the woman's life is endangered.

The time was just past daybreak. Demolition crews had worked feverishly throughout the night, planting charges "in all the right places," they said.

The countdown had started. Mel Cotter, an explosives technician with X-Demex Corp. of Dublin, Calif. was poised to press the two detonator buttons that would blow the 11-story structure to bits.

The blast — a mild, n a mild. m crump - went off at precisely 6 a.m.

A second sound - like the tinkling of glass or the distant strains of a heavenly harp — bounced off the grey clouds that hung overThen, dead silence.

Curious crowds, held at a safe distance by police barricades, stood frozen, watching and waiting for river, watching and watching for the grand old building to collapse into a neat pile of rubble—like everybody said it would. Except for clouds of cement dust that poured out of the struc-ture's basement windows, the world was at a standstill. . .

Seconds went by...minutes. There were moments of disbelief. laughter, even some applause.

The old girl hadn't budged an inch.
"The Old Mother Hubbard Building is too tough to die," called out a spectator in the crowd, which

Teamsters win, go back to work

By JAMES STRONG Knight News Service

CHICAGO-The first nationwide trucking strike in U.S. history was ended Saturday with a tentative agreement between officials of the Teamsters Union and the larg-est group of trucker employers.

Teamster President Frank Fitz-simmons said all pickets were to withdraw immediately and all striking drivers were to report to work as soon as possible.

The 440,000 drivers won major concessions, including wage increases totaling $1.65 an hour over the next three years and the promise of unlimited cost-of-living raises.

THE SETTLEMENT was an nounced by Labor Secretary W. J. Usery, who called it "in the best interests of the nation, the best interests of the Teamsters and the best interests of the industry." Usery declined to call the proposed contract inflationary, but his besitation was not shared by John Murphy, chairman of Gateway Transportation Co. and a member of the negotiating team for Trucking Employers, Inc. (TEI), the largest of the trucking industry groups and the last to agree to the proposed contract.

"Any increase will be inflationary," Murphy said. "It will cost more to operate than it did yesterday."

Despite the end of the three-day strike, the Associated Press reported, some auto plants may be shut early this week because of a shortage of parts created by the halt in

Ratification of the proposed contract will be recommended

Negotiations were concluded in the Chicago suburb of Arlington Heights after Teamster and TEI representatives spent several hours at the bargaining table Saturday. Agreements had been reached a friday with the smaller Motor-Carriers Labor Advisory Council and the Irregular Route Carriers.

Industry officials said they will continue to seek legislation that would enable them to increase truck sizes and to use twin (tan-dem) trailers in every state to help them increase productivity and avoid having to pass along all the larger labor costs to shippers.

TRUCKERS' UNION and industry officials in Chicago, where drivers were the only major exception to the nationwide strike, said contracts would be signed here matching the national agreement.

Under the tentative agreement, 65 cents of the hourly wage increase would take effect immediately. Hourly pay has ranged from $7.18 to $7.33.

Skies to clear in afternoon

Skies should clear this afternoon, ending unexpected showers which left a trace of rain in the Southland Saturday night.

National Weather Service fore-casters said the temperature would climb to a high of about 63 degrees today, compared with a high of only 60 Saturday.

In mountain areas, the snow level was expected to be about 4,000 feet, but the chance of precipitation-was expected to be only 10 per cent.

Concerned

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has expressed concern that the U.S. Senate's increased power to limit execu-tive action by President Ford's administration may endanger the East-West balance of power.

In an interview with the magazine Der Spiegel, Schmidt said Ford's rejection of the label "detente" has not changed his policy of relaxing tensions with Soviet bloc. What one must register, following Vietnam and Watergate, is a limitation by the Senate of the White House and State De-partment ability to act in foreign-policy matters," Schmidt said.

'I have understanding for this pendulum swing, but I do not see it without concern. The moment the balance of power were to be shifted decisively, or even an appearance of this were to be created, one of ee most important preconditions for relaxation of East-West tensions would fall

Sad childhood

A former White House aide says Lyndon B. Johnson's bitterunhappy childhood molded the behavior patterns he exhibited after he became an adult.

Writing in the May issue of McCall's magazine, Doris Kearns said her talks with the late president revealed a childhood of love given and taken away which affected nearly all his relationships as an adult. She said that Johnson's mother was alternately cold and loving to her son. She quoted LBJ as saying his mother would sometimes "hug me so hard I thought I would be strangled to death."

he displeased her she would walk around the house "pretending I was dead. And then to make it worse, I had to watch her being especially warm and nice to my father and sisters."

Miss Kearns said her conversations with Johnson came at a time when he was "crumpled, ragged and defenseless."

A memorial service was held Saturday in Altadena for Ed Koupal, consumer advocate and cofounder of the People's Lobby who died last Monday. Koupal, 48, founded People's Lobby in 1968 with his wife, Joyce.

"Ed said he was a student of people, but I know he was a teacher of us all," said Mrs. Koupal at the service. "He rough-drafted a political movement which is his living legacy. So we are the living tribute to the living Ed Koupal."

Tem Quinn. chairman of the state Air Resources Board, said, "Koupal made lots of enemies.—

Koupal made lots of enemies oil companies, electric utilities and probably most politicians because he was usually abra-sive, mean and loud-mouthed. But he was damn effective and that's what he cared about."

The LBJ Memorial Grove on the Potomac River, the official national memorial to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, will be dedicated in public cere-

Lady Bird Johnson, the president's widow, and other family members will take part in the ceremony in Lady Bird Johnson Park. The 15-acre grove is located on federal land on a scenic site several hundred yards down the Potomac from Memorial Bridge, which crosses at the Lincoln Memorial.

Dominating the LBJ memorial is a 45-ton granite rock from the Texas hill country. There are also four flat stones sur-rounding the rock, inscribed with LBJ quotations on educa-tion, civil rights, the environ-ment and the presidency.

Britain's foremost horseman, 54-year-old Prince Philip, took part in an unscheduled chase Saturday — on foot, after two of his own horses.

The cross-country chase began after Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, alighted from the carriage he was to drive in a contest at Windsor Great Park, near the royal family's Windsor Castle 30 miles west of London.
"The horses started to amble away, then all of a sudden they started to gallop," one of the park staff said. "Everyone joined in the chase, Prince Philip included."

The horses stopped of their own accord about two miles away, and the carriage competi-tion resumed. The prince came

Justice Dept. lawyers probe FBI secrecy about break-ins

By JOHN CREWDSON

WASHINGTON - Justice Department lawyers, stung by the belated discovery that FBI agents committed 92 burglaries of the New York City offices of the Socialist Workers' Party, will take steps to find out why the Federal Bureau of Investigation failed to produce the information score: a wellmation sooner, a well-placed department source

FBI documents describ-ing the burglaries, which occurred between 1960 and 1966, were provided to the party, which made them public, by the Justice Department last week under the discovery provisions of a civil lawsuit brought against the government by the SWP.

Department sources said later that its lawyers defending the government in that case were not informed of the existence of the documents, which in-cluded descriptions of the SWP files photographed by FBI entry teams, until the day before they were attorneys.

Moreover, the sources said, other Justice Depart-ment lawyers in Washing-ton conducting a general investigation of burglaries by FBI agents were not aware that the documents had been found until they saw news accounts of their discovery last week

The sources said the FBI had previously made known to the Justice Department the recollections of some of its longtime agents that the SWP, headquartered in New York City, had been the target of an undetermined number of break ins. But Justice lawyers had no idea of the timing or scope of the SWP burglaries, which came on an average of once every three weeks and produced some 10,000 separate photographs, until the documents containing accounts of those operations were discovered in the FBI's New York City field office. The department's Civil Rights Division, which had been investigating all known FBI burglaries between 1966 and 1968, is now considering expanding its probe to include the pre-1966 SWP burglaries, an official there said.

Civil Rights Division lawyers, one source there said, will attempt "to find out why one branch of the Justice Department doesn't know what another branch is doing."

The source added that based on the information gathered up to now, "no thought is being given to possible prosecutions" of

Ancient biplane being restored

Douglas M2 to highlight Western's 50th anniversary

By HERB SHANNON

In a Douglas Aircraft Co. hangar, a small group of avia-tion buffs is restoring an M2 open-cockpit biplane, the first Douglas airliner.

The wood and fabric fuse-lage, small enough to fit inside the tail-engine nacelle of the McDonnell Douglas DC10 trijet, is being rebuilt by the same methods used in the original construction more than 50 years Nylon and super adhesives unknown to the manufacturers of aircraft in the post-World War I period have replaced the muslin and canvas of those days, but there is no automated process to replace the handwork required to fasten the fab-ric to the wooden framework and to seal it with old-fashioned

Thin plywood covers are being refashioned for the inboard portions of the lower wing where mailbags were

loaded and the pilot and his lone passenger, if any, stepped to climb into the front and rear

No detail is too inconsequential to be ignored in the restoration of the Douglas M2 antique. Its smooth, large-diameter tires are no longer made, but Goodyear has re-created a set by grinding the tread off a pair of truck tires of the same size. Western Airlines, sponsors of the project, rebuilt an authentic Liberty engine and two spares.

Volunteers from Western's list of retired and active mechanics have been working on the M2 framework and engines since 1974. Now joined by an enthusiastic cadre of the air-line's headquarters staff in Los Angeles and Douglas technicians in Long Beach, they are working against a final dead-line only two weeks away.

The ancestral pride of both Douglas and Western must be flight-tested and approved to regain its certification from the Federal Aviation Administra-tion by April 17. On that date, western will celebrate its 50th year as the only survivor of a handful of airlines which pioneered commercial aviation.

At 7:39 a.m. on the 50th anniversary date, the M2 will take off from Los Angeles International Airport to recreate its original 653-mile flight to Salt Lake City, via Las Vegas. The venerable aircraft is scheduled to land in Las Vegas about used to fand in Las vegas adding noon and arrive in the Utah capital shortly before dusk, as it did on April 17, 1926. Pilot of the single-engine plane will be Capt. Ted Homan, who retired from Western in 1974 and since has headed the M2 restoration project. Homan was 13 years old and an eager spectator when the historic first flight of Western Air Express landed at his home town of Las Vegas for refueling. For months the lad watched

a route in the Pacific North-on the mail bags. His faithful attendance at the airfield final-ly paid off. On his 14th birth-day, Nov. 26, pioneer pilot Mau-rice Green braced Ted in the mail compartment of the M2 and flew the boy over nearby Sunrise Mountain. As a finale to the boy's first flight, Green cir-cled his family home. Hooked for life, Homan stuck like model airplane ce-ment. He hung around the field for nearly a year until Western gave him two weeks of vacation relief work as night watchman, aircraft refueling helper and "for keeping the runway smooth.'

Seven years later he started working full time for Western as a radio operator. Eventually he worked his way up to flying later model aircraft as copilot, and remained on the Western light moter until his ratire. flight roster until his retire-ment. He never worked for another company.

Many of the nation's airlines claim this month as their 50th anniversary through pre-decessor companies which were awarded air mail contracts in 1926. United and Continental both trace their lineage to Var-ney Air Lines, which pioneered west. American points to even earlier, but short-lived routes served by firms later absorbed into the present network. Trans World can also claim its ancestry to a portion of the Western Air Express service.

But Western Airlines is the American patterns," says Kevin Starr, San Francisco city librarian and au-thor of the book "Americans and the California

Fines for polluters, restrictions to curb urban sprawl, laws to protect dwindling natural re-sources and to guard against danger from nuclear power plants—how California succeeds with these and similar measures may determine its fu-ture and set guidelines for the nation.

Californians are finding they can no longer take for granted even such basic symbols of their lifestyle as the heated swimming pool and the free-way. The one uses too much fuel, the second costs too much and produces too much smog, officials say.

"What we're seeing here is emblematic of an end of affluence, an end of expectation," says Starr. "If California was the first to discover that big is beautiful, it's now discovering that small is also beautiful.

To William Burke,

economist for the Federal Reserve Bank in San Francisco, the change sigrancisco, the change ag-nals the end of "more than a century...in which rapid economic growth has been the hallmark of the Cali-fornia experience. Many Californians...have be-come disenchanted with the pace and nature of their earlier growth." Herman Muller, a retired store clerk who's spent the last 30 years in San Jose, is among the disenchanted.

"When I came here right after the war, this was just so beautiful, all the orchards stretching everywhere," recalls Muller, 67, who lives on a pension. "It was a nice town, you'd go downtown to shop, see a movie, meet your friends. Now it's just houses every place you go, they all look the same. Kids grow up for years and never know what downtown looks like."

THE disenchantment isn't just starting. In 1971, California Poll, a respect-ed public opinion survey, reported that nearly one of every three Californians would leave the state if they could. Among the Statistics now reflect no such startling exodus, but in 1975 California lost three times as many people to Oregon and Nevada as it gained, and five times as many to Idaho. Since 1970, state population has grown only slightly, from 20 to about 21 million.

"You just can't help coming to the conclusion that many are rejecting urbanization," says Nels Rasmussen, a California office wall is covered with graphs, charts and a bumper sticker reading: "Don't Californicate Colorado.

One man who recently left California is Dr. Sheldon Church, who gave up his practice in Riverside after 14 years and moved to Hawthorne, Nev., when his insurance company threatened to raise his malpractice premiums from $7,000 to $22,000.

Besides the lower costs of working and living, Church said he likes "the attitude of the people" in his adopted rural town. "You don't see as many malpractice cases here. The lawyers aren't as hun-

Jim Hamilton, a carpenter in his mid-30s, said the reason he and his family moved to Southern Oregon from Oakland last year was "so our sons could have some outdoors to grow up in and we could look at the sky without seeing smog."

Hamilton, whose wife teaches school, said he's had trouble finding work, but doesn't regret the move

"Refore, the only time

my boys really saw the countryside was once a year when we went backpacking," he said. Eddie Washington, an aircraft mechanic, wants to leave, and is saving his money to return to his native Alabama.

While migration of Americans to California has declined from more than 200,000 annually in the '60s to about 20,000 now, th number of foreign arrivals has risen from 20,000 in 1964, just before U.S. immigration laws were liberalized.

en coupled with a slowdown in the number of new jobs and a slight de-cline in the state's share of America's personal income. Jobs grew from 5.1 to 6.85 million from 1956 to 1965, a 35 per cent rise, and from 6.85 to 8.5 million from '65 to '75, only a 24 per cent rise. Personal income jumped from 9.5 to 11.4 per cent of the nationa! total between 1954 and 1964, but fell back to 10.9 per cent in 1974.

Projections for seats in the House of Representatives in 1980 show California keeping its 43 seats, while fast-growing Florida jumps from 15 to 20 and three nearby states—Oregon, Arizona and Utah—pick up one seat apiece.

People aren't even visiting California as much as they used to. The Southern California Visitors Council -watchdog over such vacation meccas as Dis-neyland, Hollywood and Palm Springs—reports the rate of tourism growth slowed from a 6 per cent annual increase during '65-70 to less than .5 per cent for '70-75.

A major reason for A major reason for fewer newcomers is the decline in California's once-mighty aerospace-electronic industry, demographer Rasmussen and economist Burke agree. The field employed 600,000 persons at its peak in 1967 because of the Vietnam war, the space race and booms in commercial aircraft and consumer electronics. It now has

As these sources diminished, the state joined the nation in the 1970 reces-sion, then failed to recover as strongly the next three years because aerospace continued weak. By 1973, the state had 7 per cent unemployment compared with 4.7 per cent national-

During the more recent California wasn't hit as hard as the rest of the country because it's less dependent on manufacturing—the first area to suf-fer in a slump. But for the same reason, the recovery here is taking longer.

While national unem-ployment has dropped steadily in recent months to February's 7.6 per cent, the California rate has stayed close to 10 per cent. In February, more than a million Californians could-n't find work, and a March California Poll said 18 per cent of the state's families have had someone laid off during the past year. Welfare benefits were going to 10.3 per cent of the state's residents in January. There were 1.4 million Californians on aid to families with dependent children and 1.5 million on food stamps—about 6 per cent and 11 per cent high-er, respectively, than the same month a year earli-

In a state with one registered automobile for every 1.8 residents, smog has become a way of lifeand death. Tom Quinn, chairman of the state Air Resources Board, says sulfates from fuel oil could kill 2,100 children and senior citizens in Southern California between 1978 and 1980. The cost of equipping power plants and refineries with facilities to make emissions safe: $500 million.

Other natural resources have felt the impact of development:

Senate passed a bill requiring new toilets to use less water per flush. The goal is to unburden sewage disposal and water reclamation systems.

—California's 3,790 miles of freeway won't proliferate as rapidly in the future. The state De-partment of Transportation has called a virtual halt to major new highway projects because of dimin-ished gasoline-tax income and rising construction costs. Instead, it's concentrating on maintenance, safety and mass transit.

Brown's proposed transportation budget for 1976-

GOV. JERRY BROWN "It's a Limited Planet"

1977 is less than half last year's $614 million and has required cutting 2,800 jobs, many through layoffs.

Now swimming pools—a backyard staple in more than 250,000 California homes-face a doubtful future because the state Public Utilities Commission says it takes too much fuel to heat them. The PUC estimates that nearly 1 per cent of natural gas consumed in California goes for this "inferior...luxury" use of a natural resource "whose conservation is so vital."

Concern over conserv-ing another natural re-source—land—led voters in 1972 to pass a landmark initiative setting up a com-mission to control development within 1,000 yards of the state's 1,080-mile coastline. Voters this June decide the fate of a proposal that would establish strict safe-ty conditions for building nuclear power plants. Utility companies argue that passage will force consumers to pay millions more for electrical energy from coal.

Cities also are countering urban sprawl by estab-lishing their right to decide how and whether to

A LEADER of this fight is Petaluma, just 40 freeway miles north of San Francisco. Civic leaders watched-first in delight, and then in alarm-as a postwar development boom took the population from 14,000 in 1960 to 30,-000 by 1972.

The council-tacing a shortage of sewers, water and schools—passed an ordinance limiting new housing to 500 units a year, to "protect the small-town character...and eliminate the sort of urban sprawl that has de-veloped elsewhere in this

The Petaluma Plan, bitterly challenged by builders and construction unions, survived its final test in Februay when it was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"Our goals were achieved," boasted Petaluma planning director Frank Grey. "We've Frank Grey. "We've slowed the American dream—the quality of life in our subdivisions in-ercased."

Burke thinks the state's economic future is in its "Imowledge industry"—the multicampus University of California, Stanford, Caltech and other educa-tional and research centers—which developed the technology to make the aerospace boom possible in the first place.

Whatever the shape of California's future, it seems certain to differ from the expansiveness of the immediate past. Jerry Brown's popularity indicates his pessimism has struck a responsive chord in his constituents.

Brown is spokesman for a California of shrinking hopes and expectations— just as his father was the voice of a California that knew mostly growth and boom. The success of Jerry Brown's newly nounced presidential ambitions might depend on whether the nation as a whole is ready for his somber message.

"The whole genius of this country has been one of unlimited expansion, or unimited expansion, Jerry Brown said in an interview. "On the East Coast, there was a safety valve: Go West if there was a problem. And when we got to the Pacific Coast, we expanded throughout the entire

"Now we're finding limits...There's not a val-ley out here in Sacramento, San Fernando or Santa Clara where you can lay out cheap houses. The materials cost a great deal. The land is more scarce. The environmental restraints, when so many people live together, are such that it is much more difficult to do anything...

"This idea that we're charging forward with charging forward with greater and greater suc-cess and more progress, that may be a little bit unrealistic. Just maintain-ing where we are and not slipping back too fast is already a major accom-

Expropriation laws 'out'

Argentina's new military regime has indicated that it may scrap Peronist decrees nationalizing some foreign companies, economic sources said Saturday.

The companies include the U.S. owned subsidiary of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., the First National City Bank of New York and the Bank of Boston. Others include the West

President Isabel Peron. ousted by a coup nine days ago and now under arrest in southern Argentina, had announced the nationaliza-tion decrees from the main balcony of the Government House to a huge rally on Oct. 17, 1974.

The decrees were never carried out because of her eroding power base, but the laws were not repeal-

"It does not make sense to use national capital for Argentinizations instead of using the capital to create new production sources," said Martinez de Hoz. Argentinization refers to Argentine takeovers of foreign-owned enterprises. There are a few problems which have been ar-tificially created with foreign companies and which are seriously damaging the image of Argentina as a country that respects the contracts it has signed," he added.

Martinez de Hoz announced the repeal of the Peronist foreign-investment law, which was considered restrictive. He said a new law will be announced soon with "controls re-

49 nations challenge sea talks economic zone and the making it clear that coastal states have only specific and limited rights in it, not the right to control pollution or scientific research.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Negotiations on a law of the sea have come under sharp new challenge from the 49 counties that deem themselves "landlocked and geographically disadvantaged."

The group; ranging from Austria, Switzerland and West Germany to Paraguay and Nepal, is demanding west termany to raraguay and repat, is demanding ocean access through neighboring states and the right to fish and mine off the neighbors' coasts.

"The landlocked and GDs (geographically disadvantaged) could ruin the conference," declared a conference leader as the talks by more than 1,200 negotiators from 155 nations finished the third of eight scheduled weeks.

Two key proposals before the conference are to extend a coastal nation's territorial sea to 12 miles and to give it "exclusive" fishing and oil-drilling rights up to 200 miles out to sea.

This would benefit only the i30 or so countries that have a substantial coastline. It would give them exclusive control over virtually all the world's fish stocks and known oil deposits.

The landlocked and geographically disadvantaged countries that have no coastline or face out onto a small and crowded sea — sat meekly through the negotiating sessions in Caracas in 1974 and Geneva in 1975. They are now aware that unless they do something 1975. They are now aware that unless they do something quickly they will forever sign away any claim to the richest third of the sea.

Adding to their anxiety are growing demands by Third World coastal states to control not only fishing and mining in the economic zone, but pollution and elentific research as well. To the landlocked and GDs, this smells of "creeping nationalization" that would eventually give coastal states total sovereignty over the 20-mile zone.

So after a series of little-noticed meetings, they

Since Premier Kukrit Pramoj dissolved the House last January to head off a threatened vote of no confidence in his shaky administration, there has been a minimum of active campaigning by candidates. Until the last moment, there were serious doubts whether the election would even take place or whether a military coup d'etat might force its cancellation. In addition, a wave of violence, mainly directed against left-wing and re-formist parties, led many candidates to cut down their electioneering, especially in country districts and after dark.

At the end of February the secretary general of the Socialist Party, Boonsanong Punyodyana, was shot dead in Bangkok as was driving home late

The rally came a day after the Labor Department had reported that unemployment dropped to 7.5 per cent in March, but several speakers questioned the statistics.

Cancer-detection program planned

By ROBERT E. TOMASSON

NEW YORK-Gov. Hugh Carey signed an executive order Saturday for the development of a statewide plan for the early detection of breast cancer following the re-lease of a report that the disease "is a public-health problem that warrants high priority."

The report, based on an eight-month study by the State Health Advisory Council, said that "breast cancer occurs in epidemic

"Approximately 4,000 citizens of this state will die in the next year of this dread disease," the report said.

"It is the leading cancer killer in woman ages 25 to 74, is the leading cause of death in the 40-to-44 age group, causes untold and widespread suffering and is responsible for stagger-ing costs in primary, sec-ondary and tertiary health

IN accordance with a recommendation of the report, Carey named a 15-member committee to formulate a plan for a state detecting system.

The report, prepared under the direction of Dr. Thomas J. Fahey Jr., director of ambulatory services of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, who was named a cochairman of the new committee, said that while there were several public and private efforts directed at cancer detection, the programs were "not fully optimized and presently unorganized.

The report stressed the need for a coordinated system involving health systems in both the public and private sectors.
"The logical manager of such a program," the re-port said, would be the state commissioner of health, Robert P. Whalen, or a special assistant.

FUNDS to establish FUNDS to establish such a program "may be available" under the National Health Planning Law and the Nurse Training Act, the report said. Additional financing from the state "may be in order," the report added, with the hope that "the with the hope that "the system should ultimately be largely self-support-

I have heard that most of the local draft boards have been closed, but I've also been told that all 18-year-old men must register with the Selective Service System by the end of this month, and I'm truly confused. Can Action Line find out when, where and how young lads of 18 are supposed to register, so they won't get in any trouble with Uncle Sam? Mrs. G.F., Westminster.

All of the nation's draft boards have been closed, and this year males are not required to register when they reach 18. Ring thing

We recently moved into a house with a fiberglass bathtub and we'd like to know how to remove a ring from this type of tub. We've tried everything. R.D., Long Beach.

The home economists Action Line consulted suggested you try a solution of one-third bleach and two-thirds water. Let the solution stay on the sides of the tub for about 15 minutes and then wipe it off. A mixture of half vinegar and half water, hydrogen peroxide or a spray cleaning product such as Formula 409 also may remove the ring, but you shouldn't add any of these cleaning compounds or ammonia to bleach because the combination of such ingredients can produce toxic fumes. Manufacturers of fiberglass bathtubs and shower stalls do not recommend the use of scouring pads or powdered cleansers because they are too abrasive. If the surface of the tub has been scratched, the hard water stains and soap scum will be more difficult to remove.

GOV. BROWN AND KING HUSSEIN ANSWER QUESTIONS FROM PRESS

Hussein in S.F. hospital

By MIKE DUNSTAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Jordan's King Hussein was admitted Saturday to Letterman Army Medical Center for a "routine physical examination" expected to take two days, a hospital spokesman said. George Provoo, Letterman pub-

Provoo said that the examina-tion had been planned for at least a week and that Hussein was scheduled for release Monday morning.

Traffic was blocked briefly on California 101 as Secret Service agents and about 30 motorcycle police escorted Hussein's motorcade from San Francisco International Airport. The king waited for about a half-hour before Brown arrived at 2:05 p.m. for their meeting.

"I welcomed the king to California and I asked him questions about the Middle East," Brown, an announced presidential candidate, said after the meeting.

"It was a chance for me to learn first-hand about the Middle East situation, and he expressed his hope that the future in the Mid-

Hussein arrived in the United States on March 29 at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., to begin his 10day hopscotch tour of the country.

He was scheduled to spend a day in Los Angeles Tuesday and return to Jordan Wednesday. About 600 confused bystanders looked on as Hussein's motorcade arrived, and many thought it was President Ford.

Police cordoned off a block-long section of Post Street at the hotel entrance throughout the meeting, further snarling traffic conjested by a municipal strike that has crippled public transportation.

The downtown hotel was the site of a presidential assassination attempt Sept. 22 when Sara Jane Moore fired a shot at Ford. A by-stander deflected her 38-caliber revolver and the bullet missed the President.

Hubbard Building defies demolishing

Omar Hubbard building, which had been judged unsafe and an earth-quake hazard, had defied the best demolition experts, modern technology and even the law of gravity. The grand old lady of yesteryear had asserted her rights — not to die, but to survive. At least for another day.

What went wrong?
"I don't know...I don't understand. This has never happened before," said a bewildered Beau Bryson, project engineer for X-Demex, hired by the contractors, Roy General Engineering Contractors Inc. of Chatsworth, to avoid the slow process of battering the building down with wrecking balls and sledge hammers. "All the charges went," Bryson said wearily, red-eyed from the all-night chore of planting the 350 charges of explosives. It was a piece of cake...the building should have come down easily. But it didn't snap. It didn't crackle. It didn't pop. It just stood there.

"Like Newton and the apple...-

2 killed as plane skids off carrier

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The pilot of a single-seat jet lighter and a deck crewman died when the plane caught fire on landing and skidded off the deck of the carrier USS

The deck crewman was killed as he dived off the deck onto catwalks to get out of the way of the careening A7E Corsair. Three other men on the deck were injured.

The plane touched down, but wasn't stopped by the arresting wire and caught fire as it skidded up the deck, officials said. The pilot ejected as the plane plunged into the ocean, but he became tangled in his parachute lines and drowned.

The Navy said the accident happened while the Enterprise was conducting aircraft carrier qualification exercises about 250 miles west of San Diego just before midnight Friday.

Arms-gap bogeyman given new life

WASHINGTON (AP) --In 1960 it was the "missile In 1990 it was the massic gap." In 1976 it's "detente." But the presidential campaign issue is the same. Is the United States falling behind the Soviet Union in military strength? Republican challenger Ronald Reagan has been the most strident critic among the candidates, declaring that U.S.-Soviet arms agreements "guar-antee the Soviets a clear missile superiority sufficient to make a first strike on the United States with little fear of reprisal." Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson, another con-sistent critic of detente, says that by next year the Soviet missile submarine force will be more powerful than the American underwater fleet.

He has urged a crash program to rebuild the U.S. Navy from its present 477-ship size to a fleet of at least 650 warships.
The leading Democratic challenger, former Geor-gia Gov. Jimmy Carter,

There has also been a marked increase in Rus-sian production of such basic items as tanks, artilelery and chemical warfare weapons.

In attempting to cut President Ford's $101 billion defense spending proposal, congressional critics argue that only where Russian military developments threaten L.U.S. interests should they be considered in American defense planning.

"We no longer take a global view of foreign policy," said one congressioncy, said one congression-al source familiar with the campaign to cut the budg-et. "We've got to stop saying the Russians are spending 'X,' the trends are 'Y,' therefore we must spend 'Z."

FOR example, about 500,000 of the Russian sol-diers are along the Chi-nese border, causing a steady drain on Moscow's military budget. Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says about 16 per cent of the increase in Russian military spend-ing from 1964 to 1974 is directly attributable to the troops on that border.
Aspin and defense specialists at the Brookings Institution, a private research organization, also note that among the Pentagon's count of Soviet military manpower there are about 900,000 reservists, who would not be involved in the initial fighting should war break out in central or northern Europe.

There are also 50,000 Communist political cadre and another several thousand paramilitary border troops who reduce the total effective fighting

NONETHELESS, there is little dispute that an awesome military machine, including the armies of the Warsaw Pact nations, is arrayed against U.S. and other North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations in Europe.

A Brookings study not yet published will suggest, for example, that most of the 40,000 U.S. troops now in South Korea be transferred to Western Europe.

And besides troop strength, the Soviets have in recent years developed and produced highly sophisticated mobile antiaircraft weapons and groundto-air missiles which would knock down many U.S. fighter planes at-tempting to stop ground attacks against West Germany or other NATO

AFTER the 1973 Yom Kippur war in Egypt, many defense analysts moted the successful use of wire-guided missiles to destroy hundreds of U.S.made Israeli tanks. Some declared the tank extinct as a weapon of ground

But since then, most specialists, including Brookings Robert G. Weinland, have taken a longer look and concluded ♦ that the Israelis violated a major rule of conventional released by the American Interprise Institute for Jubic Policy Research.

The study, by Jesse W. Lewis Jr., says that although the U.S. Sixth Fleet has an overwhelm-ing preponderance of power in the Mediterra-nean, the Soviets have used their presence there to skillfully advance their national interests at the expense of the United States.

Lewis proposed increased surveillance of potential trouble spots and development of a continuing Mediterranean expertise in American diplomatic and intelligence circles.

That has vindicated one Soviet policy in Europe where Russian military planners have dispatched 11,500 tanks compared to 2,100 from the U.S. In all, Warsaw Pact nations have 19.000 tanks in Europe, NATO nations 7,000.

U.S. officials say Russian armor troops are poorly trained and American tanks better made than their counterparts in the Soviet arsenal. There are also new TV-guided "smart bombs" and vari-ous other kinds of weaponry designed to destroy tanks from afar, but the numerical comparison of potential firepower is nonetheless startling.

IF only numbers are considered, it can also be argued that the Soviets have taken a clear lead in sea power. Since 1965, Rumsfeld says, the Russians have built 800 new warships while the U.S. Navy has been increased by only 300 ships.

A Library of Congress study done at the request of Sen. John C. Culver, D-Jowa, said, "The USSR can concentrate power where and when it wants before hostilities break out, while the U.S. Navymust cover extended sea lanes."

The U.S. is, however, now committed to building up to a Navy of about 600 ships by the mid-1980s. Many are to be expensive nuclear-powered vessels, a policy decision disputed as unnecessary by many de-

Meanwhile, the Soviets have turned out tactical fighters which many specialists say are faster and more agile than any U.S. fighter in use and a match for the F15, the newest American plane now coming into use. Whatever the comparison in quality, the Soviets are also building far more fighter planes than the U.S. To resupply the Syrian and Egyptian armies in 1973 and more recently to deliver weapons to Ango-la, the Russians used longrange AN22 transport planes, proving a newly established ability to extend supply lines around problems.

Many defense critics say it doesn't matter how many long-range transport or sophisticated fighter planes the Russians build, if they are not in a position to be used against U.S. interests at home or abroad. They ask, for example, if the large number of Soviet tactical fight ers don't reflect the need to protect the long border with China.

In the end, the debate over U.S. versus Soviet military strength comes back to doomsday. What if the missiles begin to fly and a nuclear war begins?

It is at once the sim-plest and most complex of questions. One Democratic presidential candidate, former Sen. Fred Harris, joins those who say it doesn't matter — that the U.S. and the Soviet Union have amassed such destructive arsenals that one notch of increased sophistication or a few more

'Stomach-tickling' unit helps deaf hear

SEATTLE (AP) — Having your belly tickled can drive you bananas. But, if research at the University of Washington proves successful, it can help the deaf understand speech.

Being tested is a device similar to a girdle to be worn under clothes. It would change speech into electrical impulses that would tingle the skin of the

It's designed to be used in conjunction with lip reading, but is considered an improvement because each sound produces a distinctive electrical signal. Some sounds are hard to distinguish for lip readers, such as "zzz" and "sss."

Dr. David Sparks, principal researcher, said testing will begin soon on adults with severely impaired bearing. If that goes well, tests will be extended to children.

If the stomach can be used to detect different impulses, there remains the problem of minaturizing the size of the equipment accompanying the girdle. The experimental version is the size of a large

The equipment was put together at the university's applied physics lab, which provided about $30,000 toward its development.

Sparks said the device transforms sound waves into impulses for display on a screen of 288 skin stimulators. He said research over seven years has shown the skin stimulators are safe.

The electronic heart of the system was developed by auditory physiologists elsewhere with no specific application in mind and made available to Spark's group to be incorpoated into their hearing

Sparks says the research will be "long and involved" and he doesn't see the device as a replacement for normal hearing.

Compromise on food stamps seen

Backers of legislation to revamp the federal foodstamp program are workhig on a new compromise nimed at making more poor people eligible for free stamps, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Satur-

If such a compromise is reached, it could avert a major floor battle when the Senate begins debating the bill Monday, an aide to Dole said.

Although an original sponsor of the bill, Dole had previously complained had previously complained that the version approved by the Senate Agriculture Committee earlier this year did not go far enough in helping low-income Amilies.

He and Sen. George
McGovern, D-S.D., chairman of the select nutrition ommittee, had vowed to oght for amendments to make the stamps easier to bibtain for poor people. In a statement, Dole said he and McGovern have been negotiating with Senate Agriculture Com-mittee Chairman Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., in hopes of "reaching a compro-mise...to help truly needy families obtain food

The Dole aide said agreement on the compromise appears close, although specific figures have not yet been decided.

The committee bill

would prohibit middle-income families and college students from receiving food stamps and make the stamps available only to families whose monthly in-comes, after taxes, are no more than $100 over what the government deter-mines to be the national poverty level.

Dole's aide said the proposed compromise would enable some low-income families to obtain stamps

Under both current practice and the commit-tee bill, only persons with no income can get stamps without paying for them. Others who are eligible pay discounted amounts for the stamps, with the discount decreasing as income increases.

The committee bill would save the govern-ment $635 million annual-ly, the Congressional Budget Office has estimat-

Dole said that, if the compromise version is enacted, it would still save taxpayers some $250 million, including an estimated $50 million in reduced administrative costs.

By some estimates, the proposed compromise would enable an estimated 1 million more poor people to obtain the stamps than would be covered under the committee bill.

However, the basic ban on stamps for middle-in-come families and college students contained in the committee bill would be retained, Dole said.

Dole said he is "striving for a balanced reform of the food-stamp program one that cuts out the abusers with the highest incomes while enabling many impoverished fami-lies to receive needed nutritional assistance for the first time."

Callaway bid to aid resort as Army secretary to WASHINGTON-While he was secretary of the Army, Howard H. Callaway sometimes used official stationery in asking Eastern Airlines not to cut off charter flights to his Colorado ski resort.

It was also learned that contrary to promises Callh was also learned that contrary to promises Callaway made to the Senate, Callaway was elected acting board chairman of the resort at the corporation's annual meeting in March 1974 while Army secretary.

Callaway resigned as chairman of President Ford's campaign following reports that he sought favorable government action for his Crested Butte ski resort while serving as Army secretary.

Eastern Airlines, confirmed reports that Callaway had written a number of letters to Eastern executives in 1973 trying, unsuccessfully, to persuade them not to cut off charter flights to Crested Butte.

Reinke said he had a number of conversations with Callaway and other Crested Butte executives after Eastern decided, in the wake of the energy crisis, to eliminate most of its charter flights and devote its available fuel to the scheduled service.

Callaway and his brother-in-law, Ralph O. Walton, sought on several occasions to persuade Eastern to reconsider, and some of Callaway's letters were written on official secretary of the Army stationery. Reinke-said

Callaway wrote one letter to Eastern Board Chairman Floyd D. Hall on Sept. 11, 1973, outlining the ski resort's problems and urging the airline to continue the charters. That letter, an aide in Hall's New York office said, was written, however, on "plain white bond," and Callaway identified himself only as the majority stockholder of Crested Butte Development Corp., the ski

Eastern's decision to discontinue the flights stood and Callaway's corporation turned to other airlines for the service. Branifi International and Johnson Flying Service, a supplemental carrier, eventually took over the Crested Butte charter operation.

Callaway, a former Republican congressman from Georgia, was board chairman of Crested Butte Development Corp. when former President Nixon nominated him for the top Army post in 1973. At his Senate confirmation hearing on May 3 that year, Callaway promised the Armed Services Commit-tee that he would sell all defense-related stock and take leave from his directorship in several nondefense-related corporations.

Apparently in line with that promise, Callaway tendered his resignation as Crested Butte board chairman effective May 15, 1973, the day he was sworn in as an Army secretary.

Five months later, the corporation held a board meeting in Callaway's Pentagon office, and minutes of that meeting show that Callaway chaired the proceeding until his resignation was officially accepted, and Walton was named the board chairman.

City expands swim program

Expansion of the Long Beach Recreation Depart-ment's spring swimming

Wednesday by Bob Cotter, aquatics supervisor.

Added to the program at Millikan High School pool on Saturdays will be children's recreational swimming and lessons from 10 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 2 p.m., and recreational swimming for all ages from 2 to 3:30

New sessions at Silverado Park pool, Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. until noon, will include adult swimming lessons, adult recreational swimming and "tiny tot" lessons for preschool children accompanied by an

At Wilson High School pool, a new adult swimfor-fitness class will be held Tuesday and Thurs-day from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

When commercial fishermen sprinkle salt on the deck it's not because it's

And when a fisherman shows up wearing unmatched socks it's not be-cause he dressed in the dark.

Commercial fishermen, despite the fact that many are deeply religious, are a superstitious lot, according to Lt. Arthur Bryarly, marine patrol officer of the Department of Fish and Game in Long Reach. Long Beach.

"If a trip is going poorly, quite frequently crewmen will sprinkle the deck with salt hoping the fishing will improve," says Bryarly, who has been dealing with commercial fishermen for 25 years. He has seen fishermen salt the decks after a visitor— who they believe may have brought bad luck aboard—

goes asnore.

Bryarly tells of some superstitions held by those who fish for a living:

"Portuguese fishermen will try to overcome a bad luck-spell by burning incense on the boat until the sweet-smelling odor is replaced by the even smelling of fresh cought fish. But sweeter smell of fresh caught fish. Bait fishermen use a more painful tactic for trying to end bad luck. They pull a bucket over their heads and run headfirst into the side of the bait tank. That could be hard on the ears.

Mexican waters on Fridays. And the skipper of a hoat whose keel was laid or launched on a Friday has a hard time finding a crew.

"A 13-man crew is unlucky. It may also bring bad luck to allow a woman aboard the returning boat until all fish have been unloaded.

"If a sea bird lands in the rigging, he crew gets jittery. But if the bird is a land bird—that brings good luck."

Boats manned by Italian crews may display a set of bull horns painted red, but other boat crews may favor having a set of deer horns.

Some San Pedro commercial fishermen will chop off the tail of the first caught tuna and nail it to the bow assure a successful season. (This practice is somewhat more difficult to accomplish on modern-day steel-hulled

But to assure a good bluefin tuna season, it's the other end of the fish that's lopped off. Off comes the head and the beheaded fish is then allowed to bleed into the boat's empty hold.

Some superstitions may be rooted in good old fashioned common sense, Bryarly believes. For example:

"Always return to port before the wine runs out."

"I'll drink to that," quips the ward-

NATIONALLY KNOWN SPEED READING COURSE TO BE UGHT HERE

Long Boach (Spec.) Golden State Reading Lab, Inc. will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Long Beach area.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effectice program available in the United States.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tape so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life. In just 4 weeks the average student should be reading 4-5 times faster. In a few months some students are reading 20-30 times faster attaining speeds that approach 6000 words per minute, in rare instances speeds of up to 13,000 wpm have been documented.

Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration. for those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour, orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend any of the meetings for information about the Long Beach classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible.)

speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming . . . now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or it you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of taday's everchanging accelerating world than this course is an absolute necessity.

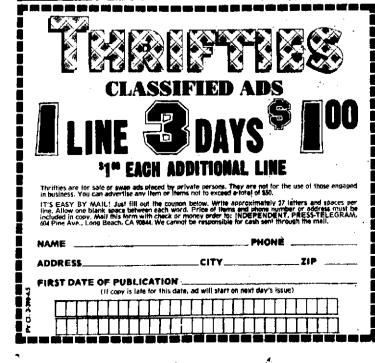

These special one-hour lectures will be held the following times and places.

Long Beach Meetings Thurs., April 8, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. Friday, April 9, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. Sat., April 10, 10:30 a.m. & 1:30

These meetings will be held at Great Western Savings & Loan Assoc., 5200 East Second.

Tues., April 13, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. Wed., April 14, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. These meetings will be held at the Lang Beach Hilton on Queens Way.

If you are a businessman, student, housewife or executive. this course. which took 5 years of intensive research to develop, is a must. You can read 7-10 times faster, comprehend more, concentrate better, and remember longer. Students are offered an additional discount. This course can be taught to industry or civic groups of "Group rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits best in your schedule.

eaders in crisis: Madison Presidential roulette

*By SED MOODY
Associated Press Writer

By the spring of 1812, circlimstance, with no lit-tle brushwork by himself, had painted James Madison into a corner.
Pacing the White House,

a building soon to be burned, he knew he had gam-bled and lost. So it would

Theory was one thing for "Jemmy" Madison, the Father of the Constitution. Reality was more unchartable, particularly when events moved more quickly than the transatlantic packets. And Na-

Madison, as "small as a piece of soap" (actually he was 5-feet-6), had subtly shifted Jefferson's policy of economic coercion against the warring European powers to preserve American neutrality. Now he put a price on it. By Macon's Bill No. 2, enacted May 1, 1810, the United States declared she would trade with whichever nation. England or France, renounced its seizure policy against American shipping. Hopefully, this would also coerce the other belligerent to do likewise, and American vessels could sail on in peace. Unless Napoleon, desirous of American support, reached for a lie inside his waistcoat. Which

n't the Americans see this, if only because the French had seized more American ships than the British since 1807? Because Americans had other things in sight.

There were 7,239,881 people in the United States by the 1810 census. More than a million were across the Alleghenies, 400,000 in Kentucky, 230,000 in Ohio. But Indians blocked the lust for expansion. With

Fourth in a series. some justice, frontiersmen accused the British in Canada of fomenting Indian resistance

In the South, planters coveted East and West Florida, held by a weakened Spain, Britain's protege in the war against Napoleon Further, Britain was abolishing the slave trade. The planters felt a stroke against Britain would loosen her influence among the trading states of New England. At the same time, the South was largely Republican (a party that evolved into the Republican-Democrats, then Democrat-Republicans and finally the Demo-erats). They feared the power that arming would put in the hands of the northern manufacturing classes. Yet land — Canada and the Gulf Coast was a lure that overrode politics. On the frontier, if you were challenged, you fought. As simple as that.

SO WHEN Napoleon told the American minister in August 1810 that he would honor Macon's Bill, Madison chose to believe him, ignoring ample evi-dence that France continued to victimize American shipping. Madison thought Britain would also have to fall in line and reinstituted an embargo with Britain March 2, 1811. Gradually, it worked.

The new textile mills in England's Midlands, increasingly dependent on American cotton, were revolutionized by the invention of the gin. No cotton, no jobs. Spinning frames were smashed by rioting workers called Luddites (after a man, Ludd, who sabotaged the first one). But Britain, cor-rectly, insisted France had not stopped pirating American ships. As evidence, London noted Napoleon was threatening war with Russia because the Czar had opened Baltic ports to American commerce. At the same time, Russia was pressuring Britain to avoid war with America. Russia did not want a potential ally distracted in time of need.

ply did not believe America would fight. The U.S. consul in London reported opinion there was that "we do not mean to go to war, notwithstanding all our preparation, and the idea of our taking Canada is laughed at." But the strain was telling, and June 23, 1812, Parliament suspended the measures against American shipping. It was too late.

Americans in Paris, meanwhile, had been in-sisting in vain that France prove she had revoked he decrees. Finally, in March 1812. Napoleon's foreign minister produced an edict to that effect, allegedly signed by the Emperor at St. Cloud almost a year earlier, and blandly said it had already been delivered to Washington and might have been lost at sea. It was undoubtedly a forgery. Again, it was too late, even to save face for Madison. Napoleon had duped him into a point of no return against Britain.

In December 1811, the War Hawk Congress voted to increase the regular army to 35,000 men and raise 50,000 militia. When the U.S. frigate President all but shot a smaller Brit-ish ship, Little Belt, out of the water May 16, 1811, millions had cheered. But it echoed somewhat hollowly. War fever was relative. A group of Federalists voted for war measures because they hoped the Republicans would botch hostilities and be repudiated. Some antiwar Republicans still hoped a show of force would stare Britain down. Madison was on a runaway horse. And not much of a horse.

SECRETARY OF WAR William Eustis, distinguished more as a physi-cian, ran his department issue that had not even been under serious negotiations for several years.) With considerable opposi-tion (19-13 in the Senate), Congress declared war June 18, 1812.

By July, word of Brit-ain's June 23 suspension reached America. Too late. Five months later Napoleon lay ruined before Moscow. Too late. And Jemmy Madison was at war. Too soon. Next: James Monroe:

Irvine building

The building of Con-struction Center, an environmentally pro-tected industrial complex for contractors and related uses being developed by the Irvine Industrial Complex, began in late March.

Craig Lyon, sales manager of the project, reports earth-moving equipment has begun to shape the 50-acre site at Jamboree and Barranca roads into the first development of its type in Southern Cali-fornia. Construction Center is designed for the contractors and such related uses as storage yards, recy-cling plants, vehicle storage, landscape contractors and ready-mix cement plants. He said 80 per cent of the development has been reserved by 20 companies. Occupancy is scheduled for midsummer of this year.

Lyon noted that improved lots are being offered on a sale basis only, in increments of one acre or more,

many with drivethrough configurations. Frontage landscaping, fencing and screening are included with each

The industrial park encompasses more than 6,300 acres in three locations in Orange County. It offers industrial land for sale and lease as well as ready-to-occupy industrial buildings ranging in size from 4,000 to more than 100,-000 square feet.

First-time home buyer must play waiting game

By DON CAMPBELL

It's tough making a buck — tougher, still, to hang onto it. And, for major purchases, such the as a house, the task as sometimes seems impossible, especially for the young.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

Plush survival seems -to be the code of our greedy real estate world. Homes that are really worth little are Treal estate commissions are the only real profits. What do you suggest to newlyweds who look forward to buying that first home? How can they save for outlandish down payments and budget for high rate in-stallments? I think there is a real need for stylish, low-cost homes with practical rates. ANSWER: You make some very good points — points that bother as many people within the real estate/home construction industries as they do among potential home buyers. One of the big drags on home construction, in fact, is that the inflationary spiral in land, material and wages has steadily increased the median price of homes to the point where it takes a most unusual newlywed to qualify as a buyer.

If the only home, for instance, that fits his needs happens to be on the market for $38,000, he is going to have to have an annual income of about $19,000 to get a mortgage. And how many 23-year-old newlyweds command $19.-

000 a year? Fortunately, the home construction industry isn't populated by a bunch of complete idiots, so, for the past couple of years, there HAS been a decided trend toward more "no frills" housing to keep the prices down as low as possible. Many features that were standard a few years ago are now optional. This is helping, but it isn't en-tirely solving the problem by any means.

What can the new-lywed do about this? Precious little except play the waiting game - by buying a modest (not necessarily new) home that he CAN af-ford now and then live in it a few years until he has built up his equi-And then he sells THAT one and, by this time, hopefully he's in et that, combined with his equity, enables him to buy a second home that is closer to what he ultimately wants. ANSWER: It's one of those things that you should take care of as soon as possible be-cause, if anything should happen to you, and if you don't happen to have a will, it could get very sticky for your wife. State laws vary considerably, but if you should die intestate (without a will), the state steps in and divides up the property. While the wife naturally gets the biggest

are also in line for a piece of the estate.

The best way for you to go is to consult a lawyer and have the house put under joint tenancy with your wife. This simply means that both of you own 100 per cent of the property, and the joint tenant who survives ends up owning 100 per cent of it alone - your share in the property simply

TWO-STORY LIVING ROOM IN DEANE'S WALDEN PLAN

'Gold Nugget' awards won by all four Deane plans

"When you're in competition with builders from the West Coast, we feel you're up against some of the finest talent in the nation," says Cary Garland, director of marketing for Deane Development Co. of Newport Beach.

"That's why we take particular pride in the fact that not just one, or two, or even three of our homes in the Village of University Park in Irvine have been honored in competition with builders from the 14 western states. All four plans eligible at time of the competition received the prestigious 'Gold Nugget' award."

JUDGING criteria upon which the awards were based included "concern for living environment; innovative planning and design; functional, imaginative floor plans; interior-exterior relationships; elevations; site planning and land-scaping, and value," according to a publication of the National Association of Home Builders, which sponsors the annual builder "Best In The West" competition.

Deane's "Walden" plan at University Park received an Award of Merit in the single family home under 1,650 square feet category. Judges were quoted as saying: "A first rate, well done house." Walden has two bedrooms and two baths, with prices starting at $70,500.

Next in size of the Deane plans at University Park is the "Bendemeer." It was presented a Grand Award in the singlefamily home between 1,650 and 2,000 square feet category. Judges noted that the plan's "site planning, floor plan, interior design, good elevations and innovative concepts add up to a home with good market appeal." Bendemeer has three bedrooms and two baths, with prices beginning at $75,000.

"A very urban kind of house with a dramatic entry. An excellent floor plan and good indoor-outdoor relationship," was part of what the judges had to say of the "Candlewood" plan at Deane University Park, when award of Distinction in the single family home between 1,650 and 2,000 square feet category. Candlewood has since sold out.

THE LARGEST of the Deane homes in University Park is the "Kensington," with its four bedrooms and three full baths in two stories. Judges gave this home an Award of Merit in the single-family home, more than 2,000 square feet category. "A design that makes the most of vertical spaces and the attention given to interrelated horizontal spaces," commented the panel of expert at $81,750.

A fifth plan, introduced at Deane University Park after the contest was held in 1974, has since sold out.

Relatively few homes remain to be sold in the Dean University Park series. Currently models are open daily from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

HE'S A key figure in the project's Democratic Club; he swims every day; he volunteers his services to a program called Emergency Meals (for temporarily incapacitated Leisure World residents); he's deeply involved in Leisure World's foreign-affairs club, and he's been active in the campaign to get the Legislature to pass a bill called the Natural Death

Of course, the absence of monetary worries has something to do with his current well-being. Nicholas saved a tidy sum during his years in the laundry-equipment business. But Leisure World is the big factor. It's Ben Nicholas' universe and final fling all wrapped up in a reasurring bundle of security.

These are my most rewarding he says. At one time he was bothered by gout, migraine headaches and diabetes. Not any-more, he'll tell you.

The wall that surrounds Leisure World — the wall that suggests an almost paranoid obsession with protection — enables him and his fellow residents, moreover, to walk the project's streets without fear — at any time of the day or night.

"FRIENDS ask us how we can live with a wall around us," says Rose Nicholas, Ben's wife. "It's easy," she adds. "A lot of people have moved here in recent years because they're scared to go out at People (also) move to Leisure World because their homes were broken into six or seven times." says Marilyn Marshall, a consultant in adult education for the State Department of Education. Or, if they're like one couple in the project, they move there because three of their former neighbors were killed within two years.

Against that backdrop, it's easy to see why the key to Leisure World's popularity is its security. Residents can live within a protec tive enclosure without losing their freedom of movement.

In addition, Leisure World offers 24-hour standby medical service, which the residents also

IN THE project's early days, there was a prepaid health plan, too, but overuse of the program pushed its costs so high that Lei-sure World's directors scrapped the plan in favor of a pay-as-you-go arrangement.

Fourteen years ago, Leisure World founder Ross Cortese touted his pioneering housing development 'the nearest thing to a utopian senior-citizen project.

Cynics snickered at the time. After all. Cortese's description was the sort of thing you would have expected from a developer with 6,500 empty apartments on his hands and a $150 million investment to recoup.

Today, despite the failure of the prepaid health plan, Leisure World is a proven success, and the skeptics are no longer chortling.

(CORTESE, incidentally, is not associated with Leisure World in Seal Beach anymore. He's associated with others, though — such as the one in Laguna Hills. His management firm was ousted from the Seal Beach retirement community during a residents' revolt in the mid-1960s, when the project was still in its shakedown phase. An independent company has since been brought in to manage it.)

Today, retirement communities like Leisure World house an esti-mated 1 million seniors. Their security features, moreover, no long-er seem novel in a world searching desperately for solutions to crime and terrorism. Leisure World's cinder-block wall and guarded entrance are but genteel reminders of the eight-foothigh chain-link fence — and armed guards — that surrounded Inns-bruck's Olympic Village earlier this year.

Their counterparts may be found in hundreds of walled housing tracts, as well as in the myriad have become the sanctuaries of America's frightened upper and middle-class urbanites.

IF THE self-imposed segrega-tion of Leisure World's 9,500 residents appears to augur a future organized along rigid class lines as in Aldous Huxley's pessimistic novel "Brave New World" — Leisure Worlders don't see it in that light. Theirs is a rosy picture of "This is a singing, dancing, happy community," says Marj Shippey in a statement that seems to affirm Ross Cortese's early description of the project.

For Leisure Worlders, "utopia" is a 541-acre expanse of garden apartments, manieured lawns, four large clubhouses and an assort-ment of other facilities, including a pool, shuffleboard courts and a nine-hole golf course.

The clubhouses are beenives of activity. As Mrs. Shippey, editor of the Leisure World News, points out. "there are tons of organizations to join." Around 200, in fact. Which gives you some idea of the almost dizzying pace of life in the project — at least for the joiners, of whom there seem to be oodles.

OBVIOUSLY, Leisure World is not a place where oldsters go to sit out the rest of their waning days in the sedentary company of other

"They don't stop living when they come here," says Jack Davis, the administrator of Leisure World. 'They play more and travel more' perhaps, as one observer noted wryly, because they realize there's only so much time left. The symbol of Leisure World is not the rocking chair. It's the bicycle — or rather the tricycle, which is even more popular.

If there's an unwritten code among Leisure Worlders, it's that their community is not a place for the very sick or invalid.

It's true, the administration runs a program that enables Leisure Worlders to hire themselves out as part-time nurses or housekeepers for incapacitated or convalescing residents.

Wins top honors in Press Club contest

Independent, Press-Telegram staff members received 14 awards at the Pacific Coast Press Club awards and installation banquet at the Queensway Hilton Saturday night, including the club's highest

The Bill Hunter award for excellence, was presented to I,P-T Life/Style reporter Dianne Smith and photographer Curt Johnson by last year's winner, I,P-T columnist George Robeson.

IT WAS the first time two journalists have ever tied for the annual award, which was named in honor of former I.P-T reporter William B. Hunter. Hunter was accidentally shot to death in the press room at the Long Beach Police Department in April 1964. I,P-T news reporter Ralph Hinman Jr. was installed as the club's new president.

Mary Ann Lee of the Los Angeles Times is the new first vice president, Linda Zink of the I,P-T Life/Style section took over as second vice president and Milt Transchel of the Southern California Edison Co. will serve as third vice president.

The new club secretary is John Edwards of Progress Newspapers, while Jack Cooke from McDonnell Douglas is the treasurer and Jerry Ruhlow of the Los Angeles Times will be the new parliamentarian.
The new officers were installed by retired newswoman Aggie Underwood.

TAKING over as new club directors were Ms. Smith, Press-Telegram City Editor Lee Craig, I.P.T news reporter Stan Leppard, Janice Atzen from Community Hospital and Laura Tondreault from St. Vincent's Hospital.

There's much more to the Crouthamel inventory, but you get the idea. Ship provisioning is big busiess. Or as Charlie Crouthamel sa. 8:

'If a company like mine isn't doing $500,000 or so of business every month, it just isn't in business."

Swabbies might call the Crouthamel enterprise the world's biggest "slop chest," but Charlie likens the business to a country store. And I suspect he's right, for if the old jot-'em-down stores at the crossroads didn't have what you needed in stock, it just wasn't to be had.

TRICYCLES, ALONG WITH BIKES, ARE POPULAR AT LEISURE WORLD

THE COUNTRY store analogy probably owes to Charlie's boyhood in Lansdale, Pa., where life was simple and the best thing a customer or merchant had going for him was his integrity and ability to deliver. At least Charlie sees things that way.

Charlie dropped out of school in the seventh grade. Child labor laws were pretty slack in those days, and wages were just about as small as the boys who could find jobs.

Charlie was 15 in 1910, when he went to work as a carpenter's apprentice for $4.50 a week. A job scarcity in the winter of 1912-1913 caused him to sign up with the U.S. Navy as a shipwright in the Phila-

Thanks to World War I, Charlie tacked another four years on his hitch. He became a chief petty officer, served in the European war zone, and after the Armistice wound up on the West Coast with the Sixth Battle Squadron. Charlie had seen paradise -

California — and he came running back after his discharge in Philadelphia to take a job with the Lees & Fink ship suppliers in San Pedro.

Then came a tour with Tanner Brothers Ship Provisions, which went bust when the Depression hit. Undaunted, Charlie went into partnership with one of the Tanner brothers, Buck.

HE RECALLS his first order for Tanners: "It was 10 heads of lettuce and five pounds of tomatoes. And the reason I got the order is that a ship's captain was returning Tanners' favor in getting his son out of a jam."
Charlie and Buck Tanner first located at 11 W.

CHARLIE looks a good 20 years younger than his age. There's a CPO spring in his step, a handshake as firm as a belaying pin, and eyes as sharp as a crow's nest lookout in the Bermuda Triangle. Every bit of the million-dollar inventory is logged in his facile mind, along with a cargo of memories.

He recollects the time when he took pains to learn how to greet a Norwegian ship's captain in the skipper's native tongue. Business went well after the initial hello but took a big downturn when Charlie told the captain his Norse vocabulary was limited to one simple phrase. Charlie clambered down to his water taxi a sadder and wiser chandler.

Some of the refrigeration space in Charlie's vast warehouse is taken up by mutton especially butchered by Moslem priests. It awaits the arrival of a Moslem crew, whenever that might be. In Charlie's business, you have to be prepared for any kind of

City files odd lawsuit

The Museum of the Sea on the Queen Mary has had serious financial difficulties.

Expected industry sponsorship for museum exhibits was not forthcoming. So money had to be borrowed to pay for the exhibits.

Attendance has been far below the initial estimates.

It is easy to say that someone. somehow, could have done better with the museum.

But no one now has any easy

TO ALL THE museum's financial problems, publicity problems have been added by wrangling between city officials and officials of the nonprofit foundation that operates the museum.

There have been public quarrels between Long Beach City Manager John Mansell and Mayor Tom Clark on one side and the volunteer museum directors on the other. Those quarrels have made it harder to solve the questions that trouble the entire Queen Mary operation - questions brought on by the fact that the operation has been divided, rather than unified, since Diners Club had to pull out of the original operating contract.

In the long run, publicity prob-lems are worse than financial problems. Financial problems can be cured with money. Sometimes publicity problems can't be solved at all. These problems can stifle an operation long after the money problems have been solved.

TO THE ALREADY serious publicity problems, city officials have now added a lawsuit against the museum foundation.

The alleged purpose of the lawsuit is to compel the foundation to pay $2.2 million it allegedly owes the city for utilities, insurance and security and custodial services. The suit also asks that the foundation be required to pay a $2,500 penalty for each day it remains in charge of the museum. In addition, the suit asks that a court restrain the foundation from disposing of museum assets. And the suit asks that the foundation's 40-year lease be terminated; the city would then take over the museum operation.

Technically, the lawsuit may

The foundation can't pay $2.2 million it doesn't have — a fact that has long been obvious to city officials, for the debt has piled up over several years.

No one could seriously think the foundation would sell the museum assets. For that matter, who would buy them?

And the museum directors had already said that if the city officials had someone ready to take over the entire Queen Mary operation — something everyone agrees is the ultimate solution — the foundation would hand over the keys to the museum at once. Otherwise, the museum directors said, the city could take over the museum by Sept. 30, at the close of the already planned busy summer season.

AT BEST, THE suit can establish the exact size of the foundation's debt without establishing any way to pay it. And the suit can assure that the museum directors will not eat the fish or sell the other exhibits.

The price that city officials are prepared to pay for these curious victories is high. There is more bad publicity for the museum, for the Queen Mary and for Long Beach. There is a widening of the gap that separates the museum directors from the mayor and city manager. Such a split between community leaders is not good for the city.

There is in any event small likelihood that the suit can very much speed up the takeover of the museum by city employes, who probably know less about running a museum than those now in

THE PEOPLE WHO pay the costs — and will pay them whatever the outcome of the lawsuit - are the citizens of Long

They have every right to demand that their city officials stop squabbling with museum leaders, abandon any attempts at vindication or vengeance, try to mend the damage already done, and undertake a program that will make the Queen Mary the superb attraction

Warehousing children

After Los Angeles County's 411- county supervisors' agenda Tuesbed juvenile facility at Sylmar was destroyed in the 1971 earthquake, a move began to rebuild it.

The primary argument for re-building is that $9.1 million in federal disaster aid is available for the job. That would pay close to half the cost.

BUT ALL THE experts on rehabilitation of juvenile offenders agree that such huge facilities are counterproductive. The proper function for a juvenile hall is to detain before trial those boys and girls who would endanger themselves or others if they were turned loose. The National Council on Crime and Delinquency estimates that no more than 10 per cent of arrested juveniles should be detained.

The waste of federal and county money in the Sylmar reconstruction would be only the beginning. The Los Angeles Coalition for Youth and Justice argues that a rebuilt Sylmar facility would cost more than $344 million for construction, operation and maintenance over a 20-year peri-

Architectural plans for rebuilding the Sylmar facility are on the day. For pratical purposes, this may be the last chance to head off a wasteful and ineffective pro-

Supervisors James Hayes and Ed Edelman oppose rebuilding Sylmar. We hope at least one of the other supervisors joins them.

HAYES FAVORS building smaller 'detention centers. Even these may not be necessary. Alternatives include temporary group homes, supervised detention in an offender's own home, and neighborhood self-help serv-ices that get at the causes of delinquency and provide counseling on school and family problems, on drugs and on employ-

Whatever alternatives are chosen, it would be a mistake to rebuild Sylmar simply to take advantage of the availability of federal funds.

In the short run, it would be bad for the children who are sent there. In the long run, in addition to that problem, it would be bad for the taxpayers who would foot the bills - not only for Sylmar but for the crime it would do little to

Kennedy's cover-up exposed

WASHINGTON - Somewhere in this broad land, to judge from the polls, a goodly number of voters have been waiting for Teddy. They can forget it. With publi-cation of Robert Sherrill's The Last Kennedy, the senior senator from Massachusetts no longer remains in the ball game. He's been called out on fouls.

The book is a bombshell. It picks up on the piece Sherrill wrote in July 1974 for the New York Times, amplifies the conflicting evidence, and comes to a crushing conclusion: Kennedy's cover-up of the Chappaq-uiddick tragedy makes Nixon's cover-up of the Watergate scandal look like a child's game of peek-a-boo.

KENNEDY'S MANIPULATION of "everything and everyone," in Sherrill's view, "was undoubtedly the most brilliant cover-up ever achieved in a nation where investigative procedures are well developed and where the principles of equal justice prevail at least during some of those moments when people are watch-

A dozen other books, to be sure, long sought to expose the half truths and whole lies of Chappaquiddick. Sherrill's stinging narrative carries a special quality all its own. He comes to this wretched affair as a certified liberal: he is Washington correspondent for the Nation. His profound disappointment in Edward Kennedy — his shame and scorn for the senator's conduct — can be sensed like hot tears, unshed, beneath the cool discipline of his prose. In quite another context, I myself once knew the feeling.

It will be seven years this July since Mary Jo Kopechne died in the watery wreck of Kennedy's Oldsmobile sedan.
Many persons will have forgotten the characters in this drama, the lines they spoke, the roles they played. Sherrill's gift is to bring it all back

EVERYTHING that we know - really know — of Chappaquiddick can be sum-med up in a few sentences. On July 18, 1969, Kennedy went to a cookout party on Chappaquiddick Island at Edgartown, The quests included five men, all of them old Kennedy friends, and six young women, all of them veterans of Robert Kennedy's 1968 campaign. Some time that night, Kennedy's car went off a narrow bridge. Mary Jo Kopechne's body was rename, residence, and the number of his motor vehicle." Kennedy was sentenced to two months in the workhouse, suspended. His driver's license was suspended for one

Those are the bare bones of the story. After seven years, those bare bones are about all we have. Twelve critical hours are still blank. As Sherrill makes clear from an exhaustive examination of the record, it is impossible to this day to put together a clear, corroborated account of who attended the party, what they had to drink, when Kennedy and Miss Kopechne departed, whether they left together, how and when Kennedy got across the channel

to Edgartown, whether the young woman drowned or was asphyxiated. And so on.

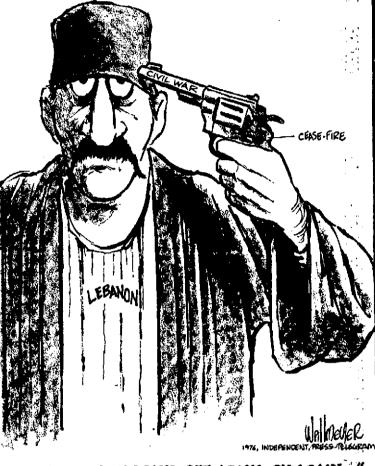

THIS IS BECAUSE some of the evidence was destroyed, some of the police work was amazingly feeble, and a long-delayed inquest was conducted with curi-ous ineptitude. Mainly, the mysteries remain because everyone clammed up. They stonewalled it. "The word is Nixon's," remarks Sherrill, "but the prac-tice is Kennedy's."

"I don't believe the public is generally aware of how very successful simple silence can be in a situation like this," Sherrill says. In the case of Watergate Nixon kept talking and his aides kept bab bling, and relentless and unfriendle investigators could not be suppressed. It the case of Chappaquiddick, Kenned made one cotton-candy statement, his friends locked their lips, and the blood hounds of justice curled up like puppie and slept. After a while, the frustrated press went away.

The Last Kennedy is a reminder tha books can affect history. One thinks of Tom Paine, Edmund Burke, Emile Zol. Tom Pame, Edmund Burke, Emine Zola Harriet Beecher Stowe — a list could be long extended of writers whose works, is and of themselves, shaped the course of events. Sherrill's damning version of "J'accuse," coming in a spring when a untarnished Kennedy could have his party's nomination for the asking will finite along on this significant shelf. its place on this significant shelf.

THE SAFETY IS ON AGAIN, OFF AGAIN, ON AGAIN..."

Simon wants to be No. 2

WASHINGTON - While the public gaze is upon the presidential candidates, a few less ambitious men are campaigning quietly for the vice presidency.

One of the most promising is Treasury Secretary William Simon, a plainspoken man, who has been loyal to President Ford but has managed to please the Ronald Reagan conservatives at the same time.

Jack Anderson Les Whitten

Washington wise men are saying that a Ford-Reagan ticket, given the clash of per-sonalities, would be hard to forge. Bill Simon would be available, in such an event, as Reagan's stand-in.

IT ISN'T considered seemly, however, for a respectable politician to run for vice president. The handsome, hawk-like Simon, therefore, promotes his political stock by tending to the Treasury.

He is no self-sequestered, phantom administrator. He stays on the firing line, bucking against the federal bureaucracy As a man who has been a boss since he was 24, he is accustomed to having his instructions implemented and is frustrated by the cumbersome machinery of government.

Yet he is fiercely independent, with a Puritan work ethic. He starts his work day as early as 6:30 a.m. and winds it up as late as 8:30 p.m. He often works into the weekends that he once reserved for his wife and seven children. On weekdays, he crosses the street to the White House for an 8 a.m. meeting and then crosses back to the Treasury building about 10 a.m. Before he begins his rounds of staff meetings and official conferences, he breakfasts briefly on a tablespoon of Blossom Honey.

"I doubt that it sweetens my disposition," he says, "but a doctor told me once it was good for instant energy."

SIMON'S DISPOSITION is businesslike, and he demands top performance from his staff. The steady gaze of his pale olue eyes through thick-lensed glasses, lean, smooth face framed by reddish-brown hair, the quick flash of his grin dominate the office.

But his face can suddenly cloud. "I have a temper like a thunderstorm," he confesses. "But it goes away, and I forget about it." His castigations are couched in controlled but scathing lectures, which leave no question as to what the errant subordinate should have done.

His firmness, however, is always professional, never personal. His flashes of approval, accompanied with a folksy accolade of "That's super!" are also more frequent than his storms.

"I enjoy a good give-and-take," he says of himself. "My strongest suit is people. I've always been a people-oriented person. My people work with me, not for me."

FROM HIS third-floor Treasury office, Simon can watch the line of tourists circle the south lawn of the White House. It is guarded by the Secret Service, which comes under his jurisdiction. He also has authority over the Internal Revenue Serv-

"The Treasury," he reflects, "is without a doubt the most pervasive agency in government. It cuts across every issue, domestic and foreign."

Simon sees the ubiquity of his domain as reflective of a government growing out of control, "an increasing force to be reckoned with." He views himself as a liberal who has been mislabeled as a conservative, a man who believes in the strength of the individual, a competitive marketplace and a government that avoids dis-turbing the "natural" order of things.

"Rhetoric and reality are two different things," explains the man known for his pragmatism. "Too often things that are right aren't done because they're not good politics. This is too bad. I think the American people are a lot smarter than the politicians give them credit for."

HE BLURTS OUT the words. "Government ought to be fun," he says. "There ought to be stimulating debates. But it has become personal, vindictive.'

There is more on his mind. "A funny thing happens to people when they come to government. I've watched people get Poto-mac fever after they come here. They compromise their prinicples after being attacked by Congress and the press. Few people are willing to take the heat."

Simon seems to thrive on the heat. ashington is a crazy city," he says, "Washington is a crazy city," he says, with relish. "As long as you don't lose your sense of humor, you're all right."

He has had his setbacks. His greatest disappointment has been his failure to convince the American people that they must conserve energy. Their wasteful ways, he still tries to warn them, will cloud their

BEFORE HE came to Washington, the 49-year-old Simon was extraordinarily active, channeling his furious energy into golf, tennis and paddleball. But these are activities which he now indulges in only

An avid gun collector ("It's also a sound investment"), he told my associate Jim Grady sadly: "I haven't touched a trigger since I came to Washington.

But if he doesn't move up to the vice presidency, he may soon be touching trig-gers again. For he said, without any particular trace of weariness: "I'm going home." Home is New Vernon, N.J., where the Simons have a house they worked on for four years but lived in for only two days before moving to Washington.

Relapsing into romantic whimsy, he said that author Rafael Sabatini summed up Bill Simon in the first sentence of the swashbuckling novel Scaramouche: He was born with a gift of laughter, and a sense that the world was mad."

"Have you filed an environmental impact statement?

Exploding nuclear power myths

No big environmental problem is involved

As the storm over nuclear power swirls about the state, Californians are pondering its pros and cons as they face the issue in the June election. Many feel they lack the knowledgeto vote intelligently on Proposition 15, the initiative which proposes to put the brakes on building and operating nuclear power plants. In the following articles written for the Portland Oregonian which we are presenting in six parts, Dixy Lee Ray explores the issues involved and in clear, simple language, explodes some of the myths propounded by foes of nuclear power. Dr. Ray, a marine biologist, is former chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy

By DIXY LEE RAY

Nuclear power is here, it is proven, it in safe, it is sound, it should be used. No industry has ever developed with so much care from the very beginning.

The It would be a great tragedy, in my view, if this nation failed to exploit energy from the atom because of the organized opposition of so few, which, sadly, influences the fears of so many.

MORE THAN 25 years have been spent in developing nuclear power plants. The first reactor in this country began turning out electricity in 1957. The entire nuclear technology is based on decades of research that preceded 1945

Counting all the operating nuclear reactors in the nation, including those used in research and those propulsion reactors in the Navy, we can count more than 2,000 reactor-years of experience and not one single incidence of harm to any member of the public in any way. I would call that a safe technology.

In fact, I would say the nuclear power industry has a safety record which cannot be matched. Yet, there are those few people among us who would attempt to take this energy alternative away from us; take it away by deliberately raising emotional questions about nuclear energy that play on the fears of the public.

THESE EMOTIONAL questions have been raised primarily on five grounds and each issue, to varying degrees, has been successful, all too often, in raising fear because people don't really know very much about nuclear power.

But fear requires ignorance; it can never be bred except in the absence of information. Yet regardless of whether a fear is real or fancied in terms of factual information, the fear itself is rational and once someone is motivated to be afraid, the fear is quite real even though the information that caused the fear may be totally false.

The five most common fears expressed by those opposing nuclear power are:

- Environmental considerations, including the handling of radioactive waste products, and thermal pollution.

— Health considerations, including near-and long-term storage of radioactive nuclides, radiation dangers.

Safety considerations, including the possibilities of catastrophic accidents, such as a nuclear reactor core melt-down.

 Fear of terrorism, sabotage or diversion of nuclear materials into hostile hands for either revolutionary or economic purposes.

Economics and fuel supply problems, with arguments ranging from the inefficiency of some nuclear reactors and the cost per kilowatt hour of nuclear energy to concerns over finite uranium re-

Let's take these fears one by one and apply some facts to the fancy.

With respect to environmental problems, there is always the siting problem to wit, where are you going to put the plants? Nuclear plants are plants are no different from anything else when it comes to siting problems. Whenever anyone suggests locating any plant-oil refineries, sewage treatment plants, slaughter houses, all kinds of things—there usually is agreement that the plant should be built, but somebody will say, "Oh, no, not in my backyard; you can't put it here." Locating nuclear plants is no different.

WHAT WE have to do is recognize that places need to be selected, perhaps as an objective of good land use planning, for all kinds of plant construction because development will be opposed without such a

The first big environmental opposition to nuclear plants was related to something called thermal pollution. A nuclear plant generates heat as does any thermal plant for the generation of electricity in order to cool the material that makes steam. To keep the fuels cool enough, water is used and that means that warm water is discharged into a natural waterway.

Biologists, of whom I am one, have expressed considerable fear about this disharge and invented a term called "thermo-pollution" for fear that the increase in water temperature would be adverse to the living organisms in the natural waterways. Experience has shown, however, that far from being adverse, in near-ty every instance the somewhat warmer rater has turned out to be a place where the fish, not being totally stupid, prefer to

Indeed, in most places where there is a warm water discharge, this is where fishermen soon learn to go to catch the fish.
In England, for example, the discharge

from the nuclear power plants into some of the bays of the North Sea has resulted in a commercial fishery developing almost overnight. A fish closely related to sole and flounder is being raised in the warmed water from the nuclear plant discharge and those "thermal" fish reach maturity and are marketable four years in advance of those that live in naturally cold water.

WHAT ABOUT radioactive waste? Now there's a question that really scares people. Well, a great deal has been heard about the problems of radioactive waste leaks at Hanford in Eastern Washington, I would like to point out that all of that has to do with waste from the weapons program, which began 25 years ago. The decision then made to store it in a liquid form buried in tanks in the ground was based on the known technology a quarter of a cen-

power plants will be stored that way. Furthermore, all of those weapons wastes that are stored at Hanford in liquid form are in the process of being transformed into solids. And solids don't leak.

Moreover, the technology for handling wastes, such as radioactive materials, in nuclear power plants has been well de-veloped through research in the past 25 years and the only reason that firm decisions have not yet been made is that we don't have enough waste available yet from nuclear power plants to justify reprocessing, conversion to solids, incorpora-tion into glass or ceramics, or made into a totally insoluble material for storage or other dispensation.

WE EXPECT that this waste from conventional nuclear power plants will arrive about the middle-1980s. But in the meantime, research is continuing and many useful things are being discovered about radioactive wastes. In fact, today's radioactive waste or nuclear garbage might well turn out to be tomorrow's recoverable

One such waste, radioactive cesium, which is now being separated from the weapons waste at Hanford, is one of the most economical ways, we find, to sterilze sewage, just as we found that radioactive boron is an excellent material for sterilizing materials in hospitals.

Radioactive cesium can also be used to sterlize grain, perfectly safely. It is like sterilizing with ultra violet; indeed, it is an alpha emitter, but an easy material to shield. Nothing harmful would get into the grain, but what it would do is kill off all the spores and all the fungus and all of the insect eggs and things like that. When you stop to think that between 25 and 40 per cent of all the grain that is raised and in the world today is used to feed insects, fungus and bacterial rot, one can immedi-ately see a real need for radioactive cesium as a means to increase the world's food supply.

WOULD IT BE prudent, then, to make a premature decision now, in light of all the hysteria over radioactive wastes, and bury all of this nuclear waste in a perma-nent way, so that technology is deprived of an opportunity to put it to work for man-

There is a theoretical possibility that when we develop sufficiently powerful neu-tron generators, which will happen in the fusion research program, that a beam of neutrons directed against the radioactive waste might possibly degrade all of that radioactive hot stuff to stable isotopes.

Those are just some of the reasons why there is no decision right now to dispose of these wastes for all eternity. What's the big rush? There's no problem yet. (NEXT: Is nuclear power a public health danger?)

Letters to the editor

Cold, impersonal bureaucrats

On March 29, Action Line published a letter from a man who had sandblasted his house without prior approval, in the form of a permit, from the Long Beach Building and Safety Department.

 He was cited by an inspector, and, apparently, to comply with the law has to have the house sandblasted again because contractors permits are only issued to licensed to do business in Long Beach.

Action Line was unable to help. After Intimating that criminal charges may be filed against the man, you continue:

. the Long Beach Municipal Code prohibits issuing a sandblasting permit to anyone other than a licensed contractor. For many household remodeling jobs, a homeowner may get his own permits, but city building and safety officials maintain it's necessary to restrict sandblasting permits to licensed contractors because this type of job - if improperly done - can cause damage to adjoining properties or possibly create a health hazard.

This is a pretty thin explanation for your so-called people's column — "your column, solving your problems" — to be satisfied with. The job has been done, and done properly, evidently (according to at

This is a pretty cold and impersonal interpretation of the bureaucrats' reasons for hassling this person. But I suppose the citizens are supposed to accept such treatment because of their respect for the law and their elected representatives, who presumably control such bureaus. Unfortunately, and outrageously, in the very same issue you headlined the recent Long Beach street race, wherein a significant portion of the central city was removed from pub-lic use for a considerable time — one would think contrary to regulations and laws - for the benefit of, at best, a small fraction of the citizens.

The contrast in the two faces of the law smiling for the influential, frowning and strict for ordinary slobs — is but one more reason we are still voting "no" on everything, and one more reason government people are not doing their job, let alone doing a good job.

In your Sunday, March 28, paper there ere two articles that show an example of this double standard.

On page B-1 you flashed "Police decoys trap clients 'fishing' for sex." That article told how some middle-class citizens "fish" for sex while the police department picks them off. The Parade magazine Personality section answered a question by reporting that it's true that the CIA provided federal funds for the "female companionship" of various visiting dignitaries. I'm sure this is only one example of how the hard-earned middle-class tax dollars are wasted procuring sex for the very rich. We have given too much power and money to too few. They have put themselves on pedestals and are telling the masses to do as I say, not as I do — and,

God only knows why, we have been.
These sad articles on sex were just the straw that broke the camel's back. I'm tired of seeing how those few that are in office, or have money, can buy or talk their way out of everything from traffic tickets to murder.

List of words you hate to hear: Vietnam, Watergate, Nixon, CIA, bribes, Agnew, illegal wiretaps, Lyndon B. Johnson, assassinations, imperial presidency, cobra venom, Mafia murder contracts, conspiracy, perjury, illegal campaign con-

Now, why have so many in the audience left us before the above list was balf finished? Because they were tired of hear-ing of these things. They are bored with them, or made angry by them, or sad-dened by them, for the words evoke a decade of American disillusionment.

I LIST THEM here not to depress you, but to raise a point about the survival of Gerald Ford and the rise of Jimmy Carter. Is it not curious that none of the words on the list are ever discussed in this odd presidential campaign, although they all go to the heart of what the campaign is

No, it is not curious at all. If Americans no longer want to read such words, what sane politician would risk alienating us by speaking them aloud in public? Quite sensibly, the politicians do not mention them. This does not mean that they do not add up to the most important single issue in the campaign. They probably do.

This might be called the disillusionment issue. Assume for a moment that popular distaste for our list reflects a distaste for—even fear of—government, the supreme symbol of which is the presidency. If so, we might reason that Americans actually prefer not to have a president this year. If it were feasible, we might very well go forth and cast an overwhelming ballot for Nobody for President, feeling that we now deserve a respite from the agents of our disillusion.

The constitution denies us this relief. We cannot elect Nobody. We can, however, elect somebody who is very close to being Nobody. Gerald Ford, for example. The reason Ronald Reagan has done so badly after the brilliant polls of December is probably because he threatened, if elected, become a president. All that talk about putting more dynamic punch into the for-eign policy and shaking up the bureaucracy-it was terrifyingly presidential. Reaan was terryingly presidential. Inta-gan was threatening to become another take-charge guy. Johnson and Nixon had been take-charge guys, and the results were Vietnam and Watergate.

Ford, by contrast, seems delightfully incapable of taking charge of anything. He leaves the foreign policy in charge of Henry Kissinger, whose more impetuous adventures can be canceled by the Congress, and his economic policy is in charge Adam Smith, who has been dead since 1790. True, Ford can still bomb the Cambo-dian navy, appoint Supreme Court justices and pardon old presidents, but with a Democratic Congress ready to cancel almost anything else he might undertake, we are assured of intense inaction.

This, of course, works in Ford's favor in the big contest this fall with the Democratic candidate. Whoever wins the presidency, the Democrats are a political certainty to rule the next Congress. Then, as now, we can anticipate Congress and President efficiently canceling each other out to achieve a presidency (indeed, a whole government) that is as close to nothing as the Constitution permits.

THE DEMOCRATS, obviously, are hard pushed to match Ford's lack of presidential threat. Interestingly, those who have survived the presidential primaries this far are Jackson, who threatens to presidentialize the foreign policy but also promises gales of somnolence; Udall, who comes from the House of Representatives, which has never threatened to do anything; and Carter, of whom very little is

Of these, Carter does best right now in public-opinion polls, which indicates that if we cannot have a highly approximate Nobody like Ford, our next preference is for an unknown quantity—our old friend, more often enemy, x of the high-school algebra

Carter may rapidly be destroying himself, however, for he has lately been talking ominously about what he will do "when I am President." If he wants to go any distance in this time of our disillusionment, he might wisely abandon that threat and start telling us how better things will be "when I am not President," In this equation x had better equal zero.

LEISURE WORLD GOLFERS KEEP ACTIVE ON 9-HOLE COURSE

Leisure World: its security is 'fine if you like old people'

But the program doesn't contradict the code. It reinforces it by relieving the residents of the onerous burden of taking care of their neighbors — that is, beyond looking in on them occasionally and doing little favors for them.

THE RESIDENTS welcome the opportunity to be neighborly — it's an integral part of their life. But only up to a point, as two women made clear. "People who become incapacitated want their neighbors to help them, but we didn't come here for that," the women said.

It's generally understood, then, that a person who loses his mobility for good will go to a nursing home. Curiously, though, most Leisure Worlders are ambulatory to the end, according to Dr. J. Y. Feinstein, head of the project's medical

"We find that periods of debility and immobility are shortened by an active life," he says.
"People who come here have to be capable of self-care," says Jack Davis. And nowhere is that fact driven home more emphatically than in the project's admission requirements: People don't get into Leisure World these days unless they can take care of themselves and have sufficient savings to insure their financial security.

TO BUY stock in the project it's a stock cooperative, in effect - a person has to have a monthly income at least four times larger than his monthly payment.

The payments average $130 a month, which is considered a bar-gain with all the services that are provided, including the security, free transportation within the project, maintenance of the grounds and clubhouses, and the various social and recreational ac-

The catch lies in the initial purchase price, or down payment. At one time, you could get by with a $500 down payment and monthly payments of $95.

Today the average new resident has to plunk down $14,000 just to buy into the project, indicating that only a better-heeled clientele can afford to live in Leisure World.

The combination of inflation and fixed incomes has made life difficult for a minority of Leisure Worlders — especially those who moved in 10 or 12 years ago on marginal resources.

ON THE whole, though, Leisure World is a relatively affluent com-munity. There's no better testimony to that than the competition between the three or four savings institutions in the complex. They practically trip over each other in their eagerness to attract depositors from the project.

And the deposit figures are enough to make a banker swoon. In one year alone, the Great Western Savings and Loan branch at Leisure World saw its deposits rise from $86.7 million to $103.5 million, according to Manager John

Do Leisure Worlders forsake a certain responsibility to the larger community when they move into the project?

"I SUPPOSE we're open to a charge of provincialism," says George Supple, president of the Golden Rain Foundation, the project's elected governing body.

I must admit that most of my time is devoted to enhancing the good life here.

Many, however, feel that Lei-sure Worlders are entitled to their semi-isolation from the outside. As one person put it: "When you're older, maybe you have the right to put the world's problems behind you in the interest of satisfying your long-deferred wants." And yet, how account for the high degree of political activity in the project, as evidenced by Lei-

The truth is, it's hard to generalize about Leisure World's isolation: Its residents are at once insular and involved, active and passive. It depends on whom you happen to meet in the project. In a way, Leisure World is an extension of the larger community, with all its contradictions.

IN ANOTHER sense, though, it IN ANOTHER sense, though, it poses unique problems, as many Seal Beach residents will testify. With one third of the city's population, Leisure World holds the balance of political power in Seal Beach. Yet Seal Beachers find it difficult to influence Leisure World difficult to influence Leisure World difficult to influence Leisure World voters directly. They find it espe-cially difficult to circulate petitions in the project.

As one resident of the city's downtown section put it: "They can rap on our doors for signatures, but we can't rap on theirs.

As Seal Beachers soon discover, freedom of movement is a one-way street in Leisure World. Outsiders must get special permission to get into the project, and permission is not readily granted. Nor is Leisure World liked by all who live in it, either. Some find the heavy presence of other oldsters depressing and would sooner he with younger people. (The mini-mum age in Leisure World is 52, the average 75.)

PERSONALLY, I don't mix with the people here," said one resident who plans to leave the project. "It's not because I don't like them. I just see enough of old

But the constant reminder of old age doesn't seem to bother the majority of Leisure Worlders, who often say that retirement living is not for everyone.

"When you're engaged in all when you're engaged in an sorts of activities," says Ben Nicholas, "you just don't think of old age." Besides, he adds, "elsewhere, no one gives a damn about

cide they don't want any part of a car club. Maybe with some adults in the group, we could open some doors for them, then the boys could prove that there's no reason not to trust them.

The car club members, led by 27-year-old George "Santos Nunez, nodded agreement.

"Julie doesn't want us to go over there (the Neighborhood Boys area of Norwalk)," Nunez said.
"She's a strong horse, and we follow her wishes

Nunez said the car club, formed in 1988 with youths from severa Southland cities, serves as a social group for those "who might not otherwise have anything to do."

He said members gather to work on their cars, discuss automo-tive business, play football or baseball and have picnics or barbecues.

A donor recently offered to give the group some boxing equipment for recreational use, he added, but the club hasn't been able to accept gift because members can't find a gymnasium to use.

If a nonviolent car club has problems finding places to congregate for constructive activity, Mrs. Estrada reasoned, other clubs, including gangs, must also need adult attention.

"Something good has to come out of all of this," she said, looking at the just-received graduation photograph of her dead son.

The police can find the boys who shot Oscar and prosecute them, but that's not going to solve the problem. There will be other gang shootings."

ed, is a parent-involvement program to focus on obtaining recreational facilities for all community

"The cities, unfortunately, have been very negative," she said. "We've got to prove to them that there's nothing to be afraid of.

"A lot of people at city hall in these communities just look at the boys and think, 'They're Mexican-American, and they're in a group,' so they must be looking for trouhie.' That doesn't have to be true.

"We want to convince the community people to get involved, to provide these boys with places where they can gather and have a good time. We also want to talk to the parents of the gang members. They must be as burt and bewildered as we are. I'd really like to hear from them.

'My son is dead," she said resignedly. "There is nothing we can do for him, but we have to work with the others. We have to see if we can help them.

"We've tried to think and think why my son was killed, but there's just no reason. I'm sure those kids didn't know what they were doing."

Nunez said he thought the gang members who shot Castillo had been drinking heavily and were, to a point, the victims of boredom. "If there's not a car club or other group for the boys in the barrio to join, they get hooked up with a gang," he said. "They don't have anything else to do but roam.

According to Jesse Luera, so-cial services director in Norwalk, city officials are working on the problem of gang violence. have four community workers, and right now, they are working in the One Ways, Varrio Norwalk and Cheshire areas of the city," he

"We thought when we began our program last year that those were the three main areas of gang activity in the city," he added.

"One area we haven't been able to work, because of limited funds and personnel, is the Norwalk High School area—the area where the Neighborhood Boys gang origi-

"We just don't have the manpower to do what we'd like to do," Lucra said. He added that city officials have initiated programs to get parents involved in stemming gang activity but admitted, sadly, that even parent involvement doesn't rrested in that shooting is the son of one of our most involved mothers," he said.

Luera said he believes one way to help stem gang activity is to provide alternate recreational opportunities for youths before they reach junior high school age. Most of the gang members begin their street careers at about age 12, he said. Lucra's department and special gang details formed late last year at the request of Los Angeles Coun-ty Sheriff Peter Pitchess have been working together closely on programs designed to prevent gang violence by channeling the youths into other activities.

Mrs. Estrada said she believes such efforts help, but still chides community leaders for not doing more to stem gang violence.

Her fears that programs such as the social service plan in Norwalk and sheriff's gang detail are not enough to curb the trend-39 homicides in Sheriff's Department-patrolled territory last year were gang-related— are somewhat reinforced by the views of police from other jurisdictions.

The fact that Oscar Castillo was killed in Long Beach, a city that has seen little gang activity in recent years, might be attributed to the sheriff's crackdown on gang violence, according to Officer Mick-ey Bennett, of the Long Beach juvenile diversion squad.

'The gang members don't run in their own territory, because they are known by law-enforcement offi-cers there," Bennett said. "They come to Long Beach or other cities where they're not known, for their recreation. That way, they won't get hassled.'

But to Julie Estrada, running the gangs out of one town and into another solves no one's problems.

"As long as these boys aren't given something to do...as long as the parents don't get involved, the gang violence will continue," she

"It's too late for my son, but maybe we can get together and save someone else's son."

Boggins, Messina:

a new toy

By DENISE KUSEL Staff Writer

It must be the good air in Ojai where Jim Messina mailtains his elaborate recording studio.

Messina and Kenny Loggins got into an excit-ing fast-paced show at the inglewood Forum, luring a sleepy crowd to its feet. The two are rapidly changing their image.

EXCEPT for two acoustical numbers — including Loggins' composition "Love Song" — the show brewed up an elaborate blend of country-western music. It was expensive, however. The new electronics were offered at a cost to the mellow soft rock sounds the duo usual-

Woody Christman's country fiddling and occasional clog dances added extra spark to the show. The concert's low point was a raspy saxophone noise from a two-man horn section.

sake of making the arrangements more elabo-rate, Messina fell overboard into a well of sound. To borrow a bit from Shakespeare, it was 'much ado about noth-

In all fairness, however, there were moments of pure joy provided by a mellow flute. The wandering sounds were a solid addition to intricate arrangements.

During the 90-minute show, the two traded spotlight solos, with Messina coming out the more distinctive. Messina's agility

The six-piece suppporting band was used liberally — almost to the point of distraction.

For the two who built their following on acoustics, they should have remembered to include a few softer sounds in their repertoire.

with "Robin and Marian" is its screenplay, from the hand of James Goldman. It is sometimes silly — "You never wrote," says Marian. "I don't know and Hammerstein.

Many of the lines sound like cues for songs, but their banality cannot detract from the uniformly splendid quality of the act-ing in "Robin and Mar-ian" and Lester's intriguing perception of the story.

THE sumptuous photography of David Watkin is used to reinforce the pre-vailing image of the film.

Moses' not like DeMille's

By AL HAAS Knight News Service The poster outside the movie house where "Moses" was playing modestly promised most magnificent human spectacle ever filmed."

Those who went inside the theater, however, found something other than a Cecil B. DeMille biblical spectacular. Rather, they are confronted by Burt Lancaster and a cast of 10s.

"Moses" is not a bad film. It is reasonably conceived and acted. It's just that the producer and the director, Sir Lew Grade and Gianfranco DeBosio, tried to take the Israelites to the brink of the Promised Land on an economy flight.

There is probably not a mob scene whose partici pants could not be counted on the limbs of a centipede. When pharaoh chases the tribes of Israel to the Red Sea, all we see are little clots of horsemen and all of two chariots.

I can remember Troop I overnight hikes that had as many tents and warm bodies as the encampments of the fleeing Israelities.

And those Malachites who attacked the Israelities' camp certainly made up in ferocity what they lacked in numbers.

Ah, yes, but so much for protests of one haunted by the ghosts of DeMille's casts of thousands, by the spectres of the costly legions that once clustered about Charlton-John the Baptist-Ben Hur-Moses Heston. But "Moses," a Sir Lew made for televi-sion, is not without esthetically redeeming values.

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Movement is symbolic this year. Previous decisions, vocational choices and personal habits are up for review. Matters return to their original status with a difference: you will be aware of the reasons for things and achieve wisdom in the course of working them out. Relationships are full of dilemmas. are full of dilemmas. Today's natives choose careers in the arts or fields that build stable social order.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Decide solely on your own course of action. You can't and shouldn't try making decisions for groups. Call in more professional expertise.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A spate of contradictory advice is well intended but unrealistic. Business efforts bring reward. An emotional attachment grows stronger.

Gemini (May ZI-June zor: You have numerous plans, but people aren't ready to accept them. Begin with basics, get items approved one by one. None of the opposition is per-

Sonal. Cancer (June 21-July 22):

Don't let others tempt you to seek an easy out. Confirm an existing tie, but avoid overdoing your presentation. Tidy up for unexpected company.

Leo Uuly 23-Aug. 22): Those bound by formal contracts pull with you. Friends with nothing to lose are full of fancy schemes and flattery. Don't fall for it!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You know what you want and how to achieve it. The problem is explaining the job to others. Break the venture down into small foolproof chores.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A personal touch still works. Older folk demand patience and much tact. At middiny, fill in final corrections. Arguing won't change others' minds.

Scorpio (fect. 23-Nov. 21): You're not the only obstinate person around where money is involved. Stick to the practical in working things out. If you're free to explore, today's fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Watch what you bandle. You can make a sentimental contact more meaningful.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Let others run the show while you reorganize your enterprises. Discount criticism, coundering the source. Refuse to be anyone's target.

Aquarias (Jan. 25-Feb. 18): Everybody has his own modus operandi. Find out what's going on. Do your part right the first time. Think of helpful comment to support favorite

Polaroid introduces 100% (100%?)
Polaroid Sunglasses.

Polaroid frames.

In over 80 different European styles by international designers for our glarecutting lenses.

The lenses we first created to filter out up to 99% of horizontally reflected glare, while absorbing up to 96% of ultraviolet rays. Their 7-layer construction is beautifully designed to prevent optical distortion, and be comfortable to the eye.

Polaroid's unique S13 coating process makes ours the most scratch resistant polarized plastic lenses you can buy. And they are exceptionally shatter resistant.

From now on, the name on the tag to look for is Polaroid.

A name that stands for quality.

And quality's what you get from 100% Polaroid Sunglasses.

Yankees give up; where now, Andy?

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fia. (AP)—The New York Yankees withdrew their claim to freeagent pitcher Andy Messersmith Saturday, saying the "wearing of the Yankee uniform is not something which anyone will be allowed to take lightly."

Thus Messersmith, the first never lost free-agent status.

The Yankees claimed that Herb Osmond, Messersmith's agent, had entered into a written agreement with them last Sunday morning.

Osmond and Messersmith say that agreement was not a bind-ing contract on the star right-hander. It was without his signature and Osmond never had authority to bind Messer-

"I don't have power of attorney." Osmond said Thursday while in New York to appear before a hearing by commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Kuhn had been expected to make a decision Saturday—but the Yankees made it for him.

Kuhn said, 'I was advised this afternoon by George Stein-brenner that the Yankees were not going to press their claim regarding Andy Messersmith. As far as I am concerned, that closes the matter."

Later, Kuhn told The Associated Press: "I didn't have to reach any final judgment."

He said his most worrisome concern was with the charge that the Yankees had acted in bad faith. "It was clear to me that the Yankees dealt in good faith,"

Kuhn said. "They were genuinely trying to bring about a deal.
The charge that they behaved badly is unreasonable.

"It was also clear to me that at one point last week, all the parties concerned thought they had a deal. In fact, Andy even was talking about what number uniform he would be wearing.

"I think the fault was with the agent, Osmond. His behavior left something to be desired."

STEINBRENNER said the Yankees had been determined to proceed in the Messersmith hearings because it was "imperative that certain facts be set straight."

He said one of those facts was allegations that the Yankees did not always act in good faith. He also denied that the Yankees plied Osmond with drinks in order to persuade him to sign an agreement for his client.

"This alleged statement was totally false and was damag-ing," Steinbrenner said. "Mr. Osmond's own testimony under oath stated that, in the seven hours he was with Yankee per-sonnel in negotiations that day

IN NEW YORK, Marvin Mill-er, executive director of the Players Association, said Stein-brenner beat the commissioner to the punch because he knew the Yankees' claim was going to

Miller said "because neither the commissioner nor anybody else could sustain the claim. The claim was phony."

Kings rout K.C., still in dark

By AL LARSON Staff Writer

"We played pretty well to-night," coach Bob Pulford said after his Kings had numbled Kansas City, 5-1, Saturday night.

"I'm happy we didn't back in and won our own game. If we carry that on into the playoffs, we should do pretty well."

The result etched the name of the Scouts into the NHL record book for futility.

A Forum turnout of 13,618 saw Kansas City's winless streak extended to 26 games, rubbing out Washington's previous record of 25 without a win set earlier this sea-

Erupting for second-period goals by Vic Venasky, Mike Corri-gan and Don Kozak, the Kings locked up second place in the Norris Division as well as assuring themselves of the extra home game in the best-of-three playoffs opening Tuesday night at the Forum. However, Pulford's charges will have to wait until tonight before they know their Stanley Cup opponent.

"I've got reservations to four different cities," a perplexed Kings general manager Jake Villford moaned. "I wish I knew who we were going to play. It's something when you go into the final day of the season and don't know your playoff opponent."

"The only team we know we won't face now is Toronto. But that still leaves the possibility of Van-couver, Chicago, Pittsburgh and

By potching their fourth win in a row, the Kings closed out their regular home schedule with a 22-13-5 mark. It's the third successive year they've won 22 games on their home ice.

"Last year at this time we were pretty well drained, since we'd been chasing Montreal all season," Pulford said. "But I think we're better equipped for the playoffs now. We're a healthier team.

"Last year we got upset in the first round. We didn't have as good a season as a year ago, but I think all our players have something to

Angels 'rain' all over the Dodgers

By GORDON VERRELL Staff Writer

You knew from the start it wasn't going to be the Dodgers' year, what with losing Andy Messersmith and all. But would anyone in their right mind believe that rain could fall on Walter O'Malley's Dodger

Well, friends, it did, Saturday night. Unfortunately, for the Dodgers, it wasn't soon enough.

The Dodgers haven't had a game rained out at home in a decade and when it did rain it was the eighth inning and the Angels were in front, 4-2.

That's the way the game ended and the Freeway Series is now tied at one game apiece. Weather per-mitting, they'll conclude today at Anaheim Stadium, 1 p.m.

A crowd of 14,880 showed up but had no idea history — well, sort of, — would be made. The last time a game was rained out at Dodger Stadium was in 1967.

So, naturally, when it started coming down after eight innings and plate umpire John Kibler had cleared the field, the members of the ground crew had no idea how to put down the tarp — so they didn't. It was at least 10 minutes before they got around to covering the plate and the pitchers mound.

You begin to get the idea what kind of year it's liable to be for the

Whitworth, Haynie in lead

RANCHO MIRAGE—It came as no surprise to gambling buff Pam Higgins that she lost her lead to Kathy Whitworth and Sandra Haynie Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Colgate Dinah Shore Winners Circle Golf Championship.

Winds gusting up to 30 mph blew across V ission Hills Country Club and Higgins, who rates wind players, said there are no better golfers than Whitworth and Haynie when the elements take over as they did on this day.

Both Kathy and Sandra are na-tive Texans who grew up playing in

Despite faltering down the stretch, when the wind was at its worst, the pair posted even-par 72s to take a two-stroke lead over Higgins, who could do no better than

Tied with Pam is Japan's Chako Higuchi, who played early, missed the wind and shot 69.

Whitworth and Haynie stand at 214, 2 under-par. The scores have grown progressively worse since the opening day when 16 broke par. Eight carded 71 or better Friday and only three achieved it Satur-

One of the parbusters was Laura Baugh, who posted a 71 to vault from 41st place into a tie for 13th, five off the pace. Because of the quality of the players ahead of her, Laura probably will have to shoot 67 or 68 to have a chance for her first career victory.

Carol Mann, Jane Blalock and Sandra Palmer were assessed two-stroke penalties for slow play, ap-pealed at the close of the round and had the penalties lifted.

For Blalock it was vital. She is still in contention at 217.

Whitworth, an LPGA Hall of Famer and leading money winner of all time—as well as this year was 6 under par at one time and had opened up a three-stroke lead. That's when the wind came, al-though she didn't blame her collapse on the elements.

McRae's 17-inning stint all in vain

Cal State Fullerton overcame an ironman pitching performance by Bob McRae to defeat Long Beach State twice Satur day and extend its winning streak to 15 games.

McRae, a junior lefthander from Lakewood High and Long Beach City College, hurled 17 % innings in the opener but was receipted for the loss on a 49er defensive lapse,

The Titans, now 9-0 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, also won the nightcap on the 49er field, 1-02 in a game shortened one inning because of darkness. McRae, who allowed 10 hits, had become stronger as the game progressed but was tagged for a triple by rightfielder Jeff Gibson in the 18th. Second baseman Jack Ramirez walked and stole second. With one out and Ed McGraw now pitching for LBSU. Rick Oliver couldn't connect on a squeeze attempt. Gibson was hung up between third and home, but scored when 49er catcher Greg Commentz threw the ball over the head of third baseman Mike Zouras.

The 49ers had trailed 3-0 in the early going, but ralllied for single runs in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings. They were denied another run in the seventh when umpires Gil Nieto and Lou Willhite called Commentz out instead of awarding him what 49er coach John Gonsalves thought was a home run. Shortstop Jim Smith, the next batter, did home

Howard's 49ers took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when Jerry Denham inter-cepted an Alumni pass and sped 45 yards to the end zone.

The 49ers pushed the advantage to 14-6 early in the second period when Ron Kipp recovered an Alumni fumble and Bubba Robinson completed a 58-yard drive with a one-yard run. Quarterback Joe Paopao and receiver Mike Willis kept the drive alive by connecting on a fourthand-10 pass for 18 yards.

Bailey's 26-yard run keyed the next march, culminated by his four-yard burst. The 49ers' made it 28-0 on Alvin Fike's two-varder.

The 49ers got their other two points when Paul Newton tackled Alumni quarterback Bob Dulich in the end zone. Jim White kicked four extra points. Fourteen of the Alumni points were produced by former all-America tailback Leon Burns, who ran one yard for one score, caught a 23-yard Shawn McKinney pass for another and then a Dulich toss for two points. Tony Moore also caught a twopoint conversion pass.

LAKERS TACKLE

WARRIORS

The Lakers, their playoff hopes sustained by Seattle's loss to Golden State Saturday night, return to the Forum for their finalhome game against the Pacific Division champion Warriors tonight at 7.

The fourth-place Lakers have lost five of six games against Golden State but beat the Warriors in their last outing at the Forum.

Seattle is only one game ahead of the Lakers, but the Sonics are two ahead in the loss column and play four of their last five gsmes at home, including one tonight against Phoenix.

The Lakers wind up their season on the road with games Tues-day in Portland and Thursday in Phoenix.
The Suns lost in Portland Saturday night and lead the Lakers by 1½ games. Like Seattle, they also are two ahead in the loss col-

Kareem Abdul-Jab-bar of the Lakers will receive the Podoloff Cup tonight from ABA commissioner Larry O'Brien for his selection as the league's most valuable player. It was the fourth time in seven years the players had voted him Ali vs. Anoki: are the spirits really willing?

A reporter stumbling about the recent Grand Prix scene became accustomed to such side attractions as soul rock groups, brakess beauties and even Hermann Goering's staff car.

But there was no preparation for what he was to meet upon arriving atop the 600 Building to watch the start of the

A Japanese wrestler?

"Meet Antonio Anoki," the eager publle relations men insisted, mousetrapping their quarry.

A bell rang, because Anoki is the fellow who will meet Muhammad Ali in Japan June 25 for what the promoters have taken license to call the "world martial arts championship."

IF THE P.R. guys seem aggressive, it's only because this one may be tougher to sell than Ali and the Lion of Flanders, which fell somewhat short in the department of credibility.

The point is that Ali would seem to be too smart to become involved in the possibility of losing to a wrestier. But if the contest is on the square, it is almost inconceivable that he could win.

But on to the interview. Most of the American reporters working the Grand Prix were apprehensive about the language problem, their knowledge of French being limited to Claudine Longet and their Spanish to "one green chile burrito, por favor."

But Anoki presented no problem. He carries his own interpreter around in his pocket—which in his case, at 6-4 and 245 pounds, is not so much a figure of speech.

The fellow's name is Ken Tajima, whose command of English would embarrass Alistair Cooke and who smiles more than Jimmy Carter.

CURIOSITY ABOUT Anoki's first name is cleared up immediately as he explains through Tajima that "I emigrat-ed with my family from Japan to Brazil in 1955, and it was there that I acquired the name."

His given first name is Kanji, he is 33 years old and nobody would dispute to his that he is what he says he is: black belt karate expert and also world heavyweight wrestling champion.

However, in the interest of honest reporting, your reporter inquired about one Terry Funk from Oklahoma, who also claims to be world champion but (heh-heh) obviously is an impostor.

"I've fought with him and defeated him time and time again," Anoki declares, dismissing Funk as easily as he

ANOKI'S SUPPORTERS in Japan expect no more trouble from Ali. Antonio is very big in Nippon. Not only is he married to Mitsuko Baisho, a leading movie star and singer—no doubt the Doris Day of the Rising Sun—but he is founder and president of his own promotional organization.

"It won't take long," Anoki says, sizing up his man like a lumber jack about to fell a sapling, "as long as he will stand up and fight with me, like a man."

Anoki is momentarily distracted and becomes very excited about a plane skywriting a Toyota ad, but soom returns to his stoic demeanor.

Anoki and Ali already have met—at a recent press conference in New York, which every flack recognizes as the center of the universe. Anoki wasn't impressed

Joe Paterno took a busman's holiday during a whirlwind two-day visit to Southern California.

Scheduled to speak to the First Friday Friars at Disneyland Hotel, the highly successful Penn State football coach attended USC practices before and after his luncheon engagement, huddled with the coaching staff and talked to the Trojan players.

Was he trying to recruit even more talent for his powerful Nittany Lions, who have been in eight bowl games in the 10 years Paterno has been head coach?

"Naw," said the 49-year-old Brooklyn native, during a poolside conversation at the Inn of Tomor-Why would a kid want to leave this area?

"Oh, maybe in an unusual circumstance I might go after a good California kid, but we've got quite a few good players in my area, too.

"I'd like to get on the USC schedule, frankly. But with schedules completed 15 years in advance, that's "Mainly, I was picking the brains of Johnny Robinson and his staff. It does a coach good to learn

MORE THAN likely, Robinson also was picking Paterno's brains. Joe has managed to get his Lions into three Orange Bowls, two Cotton Bowls, two Sugar Bowls and one appearance in the Gator Bowl.

His 5-2-1 bowl record is only slightly behind his 94-18-1 standard, which makes Paterno the winningest active college coach in the nation.

The game he remembers most vividly was the 1968 Orange Bowl, won by Penn State, 15-14, over Pepper Rodgers' Kansas team in the last seconds. "We were behind, 14-7, with 1:18 to play, but we got the touchdown and had to go for the two points," said Paterno, reliving the game as if it were played only last night. We went for two and missed. I was in agony.

But Kansas had 12 men on the field, so we got another shot and this time made it. I think my who says novenas every day, had something to do with that win. "So did Art Rooney, the Pittsburgh Steelers" owner, who knew what a religious woman my mother was. After the win, Rooney wrote me a letter. It said: 'I'll trade my brother and two sisters for your mother.' His brother is a priest, too."

THE BOWL GAME that Paterno recalls with the most distaste was the last Sugar Bowl affair, won by Alabama, 13-6.

publicized that Bear Brya "hand-picked" the Nittany Lions because he wanted to improve his own bowl record by playing a team not considered in the class of, say, Oklahoma and Nebraska last season.

'I agree that Bear had a lot to do with Penn State's appearance in the Sugar Bowl, but people were a little unfair," snapped Joe.
"We deserved a major bowl bid. We had a good team. We lost to Ohio State by eight points and to

North Carolina State by a point or two, but that's no

Bear thought Alabama had a shot at winning the national championship and was miffed when the Orange Bowl took the Big Ten runnerup (Michigan) instead of the Southeastern Conference champion (Alabama). He thought he'd get saddled with the Big Ten runnerup originally, if he went to the Sugar Bowl, so he would rather have played Penn State than fool around with any runnerup.

"The critical talk didn't bother my players. Our seniors had been to the Orange and Cotton Bowls, so they wanted the Sugar Bowl. How many kids can say that they've played in all three of those major

MODEST PATERNO, whose Lions once had a 30-game winning streak, credits the Pennsylvania area and his assistants with Penn State's success during his tenure.

"We're in an area like Southern California where there are lots of good high school football players," he explained. "We're in a good football position, too, because Penn State hasn't had a losing team in 38 years, and kids like being with a winner.
"I've had fine staffs, too. I've never let a guy go.
The only reason any of my assistants left was to better themselves. "I've been better off than my old coach at Brown, Rip Engel, who took the Penn State job and brought me over as an assistant for 16 years. Rip had fine teams, but no recognition and no major bowls.

'Engel and Bud Wilkinson, whose Oklahoma teams were doing so well when I was young, had a lot of influence on me with their techniques, organization and philosophy.

PATERNO HAS a pretty good philosophy himself

JOE PATERNO . . . 'I'm not nice'

"I believe football is first played with the heart and the mind, then the body," said the man who has coached such stars as John Cappelletti, Franco Harris, Lenny Moore, Lydell Mitchell, Rosey Grier and Without morale-which I term pride, loyalty and discipline-there's no way you'll have a winner. Newspaper guys have portrayed me as a nice guy, but I'm not nice when it comes to discipline.

n of footb off all week, then on Saturday look up at 70,000 people in the stands and say to yourself, 'Baby, this is it.'

"I've seen more games lost by teams scared to death than anything else. That's terrible, and ridicu-lous. You've got to have confidence. People can smell confidence. I don't know if John McKay is a better coach than anyone else, but he smells of confidence.

PATERNO SMELLS of confidence when he talks about recruiting. He concedes that the job is easier for him now because of the Lions' great record during the past 10 years, but he had reservations, too.

"I work less, but harder, in a sense," said the happy Italian, with a big smile. "Other coaches now are telling the good kids not to go to Penn State because they win too much and you won't play there. I have to overcome that.

"Then, the big schools in my recruiting area—

Maryland, Pitt, West Virginia and Syracuse—are huslling and scrambling like the dickens now. I've got to work hard to keep up with them, but we're fortunate in still getting most of the kids we want."

PATERNO WAS ASKED if he ever would go into pro football coaching after having turned down hefty inancial offers from the New England Patriots and, more recently, the Philadelphia Eagles.

"It was only money," replied Paterno, mustering another smile. "I have a good job now, a home that's paid for, two cars and can adequately support my five children, the oldest of which will be 13 next week. That's all I want. I never expect to be a rich

"I'm at the stage in my life where I feel I have enough financial security, and, more importantly, I don't particularly feel that pro football is a challenge to me now

"I like college football better, too. Some day I may go into pro coaching, but right now, no."

PATERNO ENDED on another philosophical note.
"Life is one big fight, but that shouldn't bother a person. Competition is the only thing in our life that makes us happy. "You start die when you're not up to the challenge of living and playing football." Clearly, Joe Paterno is very much alive.

Dunn 'trying not to think about Ali'

First Europe, then the world!

LEICESTER, England (AP)—Richard Dunn, a nobody in boxing until he had passed 30, is on the verge of fighting Muhammad Ali for the world heavyweight title . . . and he's trying not to think about it.

Dunn meets Bernd August of Germany for the vacant European heavyweight crown in London Tuesday. If he wins that one, he goes in against Ali May 24 in

"Life has suddenly become a lot of fun," says Dunn, 31, who never boxed for the British title until last September. "I'm trying like hell to put Ali out of my mind. Thinking about Ali is no way to train for a fight against this German guy. A European title fight is a big one and anyone could win it.

"But how can I help thinking about Ali?" the Briton added. "It's fantastic the way life has worked out."

RICHARD DUNN Life begins at 30

But six months ago he suddenly kit the jackpot, outpointing Bunny Johnson to become British champion.

Optimistic Britons, reared on a long tradition of horizontal challengers for the world heavyweight title, dream of Dunn's enthusiastic two-handed punches catching Ali by surprise.

One fact about Dunn is not disputed. He's as tough as a brick wall.

In his early boxing days, Dumn ap-peared in small-town shows, fighting two and three opponents in one evening. He was a perachutist in the Army and made more than 60 jumps. Then he got too heavy and they stopped him.

He is 6-foot-2 and expects to go in against August weighing 212 pounds. He has orders from his manager to knock. the German out quickly. "The contract for the Ali fight merely says Dunn has to be European heavy-weight champion," George Biddles said. "It does not stipulate a knockout against August-but I do.

"I'm not interested in a points win. If we are going to fight for the world title, we want to justify it."

Cold weather line favors USC for now

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer
If UCLA and USC had gone head-to-head Satur-day afternoon-instead of facing California and Stan-ford respectively—the Trojans would have departed Westwood with a 75½-68½ victory.
That score is based solely on performances during the Trojans' 105-35 romp past the Cardinals and the Bruins' 79-65 decision over the Golden Bears.

When the crosstown antagonists do collide next month, the verdict should be a lot closer. Hopefully, the weather will prove more accommodating.

It was cold and breezy at Drake Stadium Saturday and only 6,565 brave souls endured the lengthy double-dual meet. Few were still around when Stanford's Tony Sandoval ran away with the 5,000 meters (13:53.2) and only a handful when the Trojans and Bruins coasted to mile relay wins.

The final tally showed USC yielding only two Stanford victories in 17 events while sweeping three itself, and California showing some surprising strength in capturing six blue ribbons from vaunted

If the summary listed frost-bitten toes, coaches Jim Bush and Vern Wolfe would have headed the list.

"I haven't been so cold in a long time," said Bush, shivering inside his turtleneck sweater and UCLA blazer, "The weather had a lot to do with how we performed today. Plus, I didn't think Cal was that good."

The Bruin coach said he also thought the time had come to break up the monotony and give some of his athletes the day off, so to speak, by switching them to events other than their specialties.

"My guys are tired. We've already faced four of the top teams in the country, three of them in the top six. We're also coming off final exams. Why, my mile relay team hasn't worked out together in three weeks. So we're tired from exams as well as big meets. California performed admirably considering speedster Wes Walker was left in Berkeley to recover from a heel infection which hospitalized him last Wednesday. On a day when Cal dropped the baton in the 400-relay, No. 1 Bruin high jumper Jay Meisner failed to clear a height and only one Bruin and one Bear contested the 100 meters, UCLA was led by Mike Tully, James Owens, Willie Banks, Bennie Myles, Brian Theriot and Jeff Haynes.

Tully won the pole vault at 17-0 while Owens breez-ed (13.6) in the high hurdles.

dles. Banks was the Bruins' lone double winner (24-10% long jump, 52-8 triple jump).

Bush elected to use speedster Myles in both relays as well as the 200, pulling him from the 400 and an expected duel with Cal's James Robinson, a 47.5 victor. Theriot, who also dou-bled in the relays, gave Robinson a run for awhile before fading to third (48.1) behind Grant Niederhaus (47.9), the Bruins' intermediate hurdler. Haynes withstood several Cal challengers before winning the 800 in 1:50.8.

"In freezing weather like this, I'm just proud of the whole team," said Bush. "I don't think there's any way you can dope the big meet (USC-UCLA) off what went on Standing with his hands in his pockets, his collar turned up and shivering noticeably, Wolfe concur-red with Bush.

"There's absolutely no way to honestly dope it out now. I'll say this, though. It should be very interesting."
The USC coach also agreed that weather was a factor Saturday. For his Trojans he also added jet lag. "We got off the plane from Hawaii at 8 this morning. I think one of my distance runners is still asleep on the bus."

The Trojans competed in the islands last weekend and, in order to take advantage of a reduced rate on the charter flight, remained an extra week.

"We put on clinics at high schools and things like that to help defray ex-penses," Wolfe explained. Wolfe explained. "Coming from a very warm climate to this cold was a shock. I also think a few of our people did too much surfing and swim-

One in particular was pole vaulter Russ Rogers, who soared a lifetime best and Trojan record 18-11/2 week. Saturday the junior whom Wolfe calls "a world class vaulter" failed to clear an opening

"All that time in the water just tightened up his leg muscles. He had no spring at all."

Ken Randle showed no Men Mandie snowed no ill effects from the trip by zipping to a 10.6-20.8 sprint double. He would have placed second in the 100, but teammate Joel Andrews pulled up within 25 meters of the tape.

"It acts like a cramp," said Wolfe of his freshman's injury. "I say acts because this is the third time he's had that prob-lem. Joel has so much trouble with his lower back, I'm beginning to think it may be a sciatic

wolfe said he expects Andrews to be completely healthy for the Bruins May 1. A little warm weather wouldn't hinder that recovery, either.

Larry Price started and lasted only 21/2 innings before being removed in favor of Larry Buckle, who was relieved by Larry Millea in the sixth.

Buckle was charged with the loss, despite pitching the Vikings out of jams in the third, fourth and fifth innings. The Brahmas finally found his number in the sixth.

Trailing 3-2, Pierce exploded for five runs and knocked the sophomore from Wilson High from the

Buckle opened the inning with a walk to Mike Sack. With one out, he hit Bob Hayden, gave up a single to Phil Varner that loaded the bases, then scored Sack and moved Varner up 90 feet with a wild pitch. Designated hitter Mark Brouhard worked Buckle for a walk and Myers opted for Millea in

Pierce shortstop Mike Gates lined Millea's second offering on a rope to centerfield for a single. It cleared the bases when Viking centerfielder Dan Gausepohi misplayed the ball, allowing it to glance off his glove over his head and to the centerfield

LBCC second baseman a 2-0 lead in the second inning with a single scor-ing Vern Followell and Rev Bryant.

Pierce came back in its half of the third and chased Price with two runs and threatened further with runners on sec-ond and third.

But Buckle, who inherited a 2-0 count on Tim Ferron from Price, struck out the lanky leftfielder after going 3-0. Pierce lefthander Mike Chris retired the Vikings in order four times and dominated the mound in the final five innings, scattering four hits and walking three. He struck out seven.

YANKEES GIVE UP CASE ON MESSERS

(Continued from S-I) sioner was told about the Yankees' decision. The Yankee ewner said he did-n't think the commissioner was going to make a deci-sion Saturday.

Miller laughed when in-formed of Steinbreuner's opinion, saying: "It was a face-saving move. He knew the commissioner was going to rule against Steinbrenner said: "I think had we been able to sit down head-to-head, this matter probably could have been resolved."

When asked why he hadn't talked to Messersmith to clear everything p. Steinbrenner said, because of the way his agent reacted. My people tried to talk with Osmond and he wasn't about to discuss anything.'

MESSERSMITH had charged that the items in the written agreement Os-mond signed were different from the terms in the uniform contract Osmond was later presented.

The differences were in the area of a no-cut contract and when the interest on the deferred payments would accrue.

Steinbrenner said the only difference Osmond cited was that the contract was not a pure no-cut. According to Steinbrenner, Osmond said he didn't want the Catfish Hunter form of no-cut. "Our people said, 'Write it anyway you want and bring it back.' We thought it was the only thing they didn't like. It turned out didn't like. It turned out there were other things." Miller said the problems surfaced when the Yan-kees took the paper agree-ment of Sunday morning and plugged it into the holes of the uniform player contract.

The contract did not conform to the paper," Miller said. "The contract excluded some things and put in some other matters not covered in the paper.'

STEINBRENNER left the door slightly ajar when asked what would happen if Messersmith now came to him and asked to start from scratch.

"If he came to me and said he really wanted to be a Yankee, I'd be glad to have him. We took ourselves off the hook and we take the surgery man off the took the young man off the

"What if we had been awarded him and he had appealed to the courts? That might have taken two years and he would not have played. This is in no way a criticism of Andy, whom I found in these proceedings to be a very fine young man— which is still more important than being a very fine young pitcher."

"My only issue with
Andy," Steinbrenner continued "would be his statement that the Yankees did not deal in good faith, and the testimony offered clearly shows that we

On the issue of whether Osmond had power of attorney—a device used by an agent to bind his principal—Miller said Os-mond didn't have it. Miller said Osmond testified be-fore Kuhn that he never claimed to have power of attorney.

Steinbrenner said the book was probably closed on Messersmith and the Yankees and "I think it's a sad chapter for all con-

"I have stated publicly many times how I felt about the great tradition of the New York Yanks and how I expect players to feel about the privilege of being a Yanand wearing the pin-

"I have stated that place in the Yankee organization for any player who cannot find it in himself to understand and feel this.

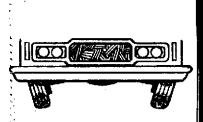

"I bear them (Mess smith and Osmond) no malice their their that it is essential to what I am trying to build here—to borrow the title of a great movie—"The Pride of the Yankees."

Geiberger four-shot leader at Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Al Geiberger, who went into a decline after winning the 1966 PGA na-tional championship then resurrected his career nine years later, flashed that shy, almost embar-rassed smile of his.

"Surprised," he said. "I guess that's the best way to describe it. I'm surprised to be leading by four strokes. There were so many guys so close I didn't think anybody could really pull away."

But the unassuming Geiberger romped away from a closely-bunched field with a late birdie-eagle-birdie burst, fashioned a second consecutive six-under-par 65 and established a commanding, four-shot lead Satur-day in the third round of the $230,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

While the lead is one of the largest three-round margins of the year, it really isn't comfortable, Geiberger said.
"This is the kind of course where anybody can get hot, shoot some really low numbers. I've got to go out tomorrow and try to shoot a low number. I can't just relax and try to coast in. There are too many guys back there looking at me.

"Most of the tourna-ments I've won have come where I had a big lead, three or four shots, at the end of three rounds," he said, and grinned again. "I guess maybe I needed the big lead."

The lanky 38-year-old veteran, whose revitalized career has produced three titles in the last 18 months. finished 54 holes with a 200 total, matching the best three-round score of the year on the tour and 13under-par on the 6,643 yards of rolling hills and piny woods that make up the Sedgefield Country Club course.

When the day's activity started in almost ideal playing conditions, 15 men were locked within two strokes of each other at the top. When it was over, only M ike Hill and M iller Barber had Geiberger still in sight.

Hill, playing in the same threesome with Geiberger, shot a 69 that was marred only by a threeputt bogey on the final hole and produced a threeround total of 204. The 45-

The first thing you have to do to get a lot of car for not a lot of money is believe it's possible.

The 1976 Fiat 131 Sedan.

You can't believe that a car costing as little as ours could come with rack-and-pinion steering, a five-speed gear box, front-wheel disc brakes, radial tires, undercoating, tinted windows, door-to-door carpeting, a rear window defroster, an adjustable steering wheel, and complete rustproofing? Plus the room of much larger cars? And the performance of much more expensive ones?

Then, before you spend your money on any car, you'd better test drive a Fiat 131. Because not only is it possible, but all those things come on a 131 with a choice of either two doors or four.

A lot of car. Not a lot of money. Car rental, leasing, and overseas delivery arranged through your participating dealer.

Vandalism takes much tax money

With the approach of California's general trout season, we like to have good thoughts about the outdoors—the sparkling lakes, rushing streams, clean campgrounds and delicious fish, if you can catch them. Yet all: of that beauty is facing the usual menace of the senseless vandals who wreck campground facilities, destroy fences and small buildings and even run automatical streams. mobiles over desert turtles just for the hell of it.

mobiles over desert turtles just for the hell of it.

Jerry Harrell, chief of public affairs for the California Bureau of Land Management, writes about vandalism in the current BLM Newsbeat, and what he has to say is sickening to a true sportsman.

We don't like to make an issue of bad things, but perhaps some of the following excerpts from Jerry's story may make an impression. This columnist, like longitume friend Jerry, does not have a solution to vandalism. If somebody has the answer and can put an effective ulan into operation, he will save the taxpavers effective plan into operation, he will save the taxpayers of this country billions of dollars.

Jerry writes: "Vandalism is a growing problem on National Resource Lands administered by the U. S. Bureaurof Land Management. Much of the damage is being a country and the co being done not only to facilities like campgrounds, toilets and signs, but to the lands and the resources

HE LISTS these examples:

• Motorcyclists tear up an ancient Indian intaglio in the desert of Southern California.

• Pot hunters loot and destroy artifacts of the Amasazi culture in southwestern Colorado, in one instance using a vehicle to knock down an intricate wall of mud and stone. Petroglyphs (rock drawings) are ripped off by commercial black-market operators and souvenir himters alike.

• Vandals in BLM's Ely, Nev., District break into a recorder used to monitor ponds containing three nearly exfinct species of desert lish, smash the recorder, cut and scatter the wires.

· Desert tortoises in several southwestern states, including California, are smashed by off-road vehicles, or collected by people who want them for "pets."

What is the answer? BLM Director Ed Hastey of the California area and some of his resource managers and officials in other states believe that the long-range answer is information and education. They feel that an answer is information and education. They feel that an informed user of public lands will be a thoughtful user.

"Our whole effort in the California desert is predicated on the assumption that most people will do the right thing when they know what to do," says Hastey.
"We also know that a minority, possibly 10 per cent of the users, will not respond on that approach. On-the-ground law enforcement is needed to deal with that minority."

"WE ARE CONFIDENT that we can reach the thoughtless person who picks up a desert tortoise and takes it home, only to release it later or discard it,"

Hastey continued.

"It's also a thoughtless act when somebody digs up
"The salso a thoughtless act when somebody digs up a cactus plant for his home garden. We feel that through education such people can be convinced of the need to leave rare desert plants in their native habitat.

However, the type of vandal who knowingly kills a desert tortoise or deliberately defaces or destroys desert plants and artifacts probably can be reached only through legal sanctions.

BLM does not have general enforcement authority, as do other federal land and resource management agencies such as the U. S. Forest Service, National Park Service and U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, So., BLM historically has resorted to civil action in court or, in some cases, stood by helplessly while individuals or corporations misuse or abuse resources entrusted to BLM's pare.
BLM doesn't intend to create another police force.

Rather, it is assembling an elite force of highly trained professional special agents who will work closely with state and local enforcement agencies. There will be a team of eight special agents, two in Washington, D. C., and the other six in Sacramento, Reno, Boise, Billings, Salt Lake City and Phoenix.

NATIONAL RESOURCE LANDS total 175 million acres in the western states and 272 million acres in Alaska, a total of 447 million acres. BLM adminsters 16 million acres in California, or about one-sixth of the surface area of this state.

Vandalism against signs is one of the most frequent types, whether by target shooters, souvenir hunters, people who want to vent their anger against the government, or people who hope to keep public lands for their private me by tearing down directional signs. In Stilne Valley in the California desert, where signs unity last only a few days before being destroyed or partly ruined, a family of three died of thirst in one recent year when their car broke down and they tried to walk out. They were only two miles from water but didn't know it. There was no sign.

Twenty-five volunteers spent three days of hard labor over the Washington birthday period to help protect intaglios on National Resource Lands north of Blythe. The intaglios include three man-like figures, two four-legged animals and a coiled serpent. They installed 435 fence posts along one side of a road easily accessible to off-the-road vehicles. BLM hopes to fence in the area permanently. A previous fence was constructed at another site 20 years ago and vandals immediately ran vehicles into it, hoping to knock it down.

RUSSIANS TO PLAY CALIFORNIA PREPS

California's leading high school bestietball neutors have been invited to play the Russian Junior National team in games April 20 in Santa Clara and Sunday, May 2, at the Forum.

The game is being sponsored by the Olympic Development League and Farrell's Ice Cream Pariours which staged games in Long Beach and Sacramento last year matching California and a team of U.S. all-stars.

The Seviet junior team will be making its first-ever appearance on the West Coast and is led by 7-foot-2 Viadimir Tkachenko, who will also perform on the USSR 1976 Olympic team.

The Forum game will have a 2 p.m. tipoff. The teams will play at the University of Santa Clara on Thursday night before coming to Los Angeles. The Soviets will also play games in Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis and New York on their U.S. tour.

Tickets for the Forum game can be purchased through all Ticketron and Mutual Agencies.

Utah won the 13th 49er Tennis Classic at Long Beach State Saturday, upsetting Pepperdine, 5-4

The teams were tied 4-all and went down to a tiebreaker in the third set of the last match before deciding the outcome.

Cal State Fullerton won the consolation title, 7-2, over San Diego State's No.

It was the 20th win of the year for Cerritos which has lost only twice.

Shortstop Fran Vilorio and first baseman Mike Carpenter sparked the 12-hit attack; Vilorio going 3-for-5 with two doubles and one rbi; Carpenter also contributing three hits in-cluding a double and two McGhee was followed by Don Mullen who gave up one hit in two innings as the Falcons went on torecord their 14th win in a row over OCC.

Third Los Al magic mile for the Butler

So Jo Butler became the second pacer in Los Alamitos history to record three magic miles in a single season when he won the co-featured fifth race n 1:59 4/5 Saturday night. The six-year-old Adios Butler pacer led all the way to defeat Chris Pick and joined BC Count as the only horse to make three of the swift trips this spring and either or both horses figure to have enough starts remaining to equal the career mark for magic miles currently held by Windy Way. So Jo Butler was sent off as the even-money during one season on the Orange County track. Dick Hogan was in the bike and took So Jo Butler favorite in the race and had to withstand a late charge by Chris Pick and to the lead immediately. Gulliver to get the win. He went the first quarter in .29 3/5 and came hme in

.29 2/5 to just break the two-minute mark and gget

his third win in four starts on the spring meeting. BC Count recorded his three two-minute trips earlier

Teachers often knock twice

Elementary school teachers in the central area of Long Beach, for the last several years, have been taking a shortened day of school to troop out into the neighborhood and visit in the homes of their students.

They arrange invitations through the children, then knock on doors, and chat over coffee. The idea is that children are better served if parents and teachers get to know each other.

In the largely minority, heavily transient area of central Long Beach, these casual conversations are a way to share cultural information and eliminate misinformation. "The only way to dispel myths about the central area is to go into the homes and meet the parents as people," says Andrew Allegretti, the school principal who originated largescale vistations

'A social visit can do more than a conference in the more sterile environment of a school building. says Dale Clinton, now community relations assistant at City Hall and one of the first black community leaders to suggest that teachers get to know the community better. "Then the youngsters know that the teacher is human and not someone set apart."

Ten years ago when the federal poverty program was getting underway, a few teachers and school liaison workers began making independent visits into

an anti-poverty program liaison at the time.

The large-scale visits began when Allegretti and other staff at Burnett School on Hill Street decided to give it a try. The idea caught on, spread to the two other elementary schools in the area, and was adopted by individual teachers at other schools, including the junior and senior high schools in the immediate

At Roosevelt, says principal Carl Martin, sup-porters of the concept rely once again on the school's community liaison worker and individual teacher initiative to make home contact.

"We had the program for three years and gave it up two years ago. We now make home visits with more sensitivity, by a few people on a regular basis

She's the kind of teacher who will use tapes of Diana Ross, a special read-ing class, and — something which makes her popular both in the school and in the neighborhood — friendly visits to children's homes, to encourage her students and gain cooperation of parents.

Ninette Richardson teaches at Roosevelt Elementary School on Linden Avenue in the central area of Long Beach where students are more often black, low income, and transient. She knows first-hand what it is to be raised in the type of home which won't make it into any of the fancy decorating magazines, where the language spoken with peers and family is different than that taught in the classroom, and what it means to have a skin color darker than that seen on the television set.

Being one of the few black teachers in a heavily black area is a special treat for her, her students, and their parents. Ninette Richardson knows it, enjoys it, and makes good use of it. For the last six years she has been going into the neighborhood homes, relaxing in a chair and chatting with the children's motiers. She wants to get to know her children and their families better and she wants them to get to know her. The extra effort is valuable.

"I need it; it boosts me and it really helps in relating with the kids. I have to look at each child individually and not as part of a group," she says.

She learns that Suzie, an outstanding student last year, is listless this year because her father died during the summer: she learns that Johann worksummer; she learns that Johnny, working his way to a suspension, has a mother who really wants to help him do well in school; and she learns that Brenda fell asleep in class because she sleeps on the couch at home and the family likes to watch late night televi-

Glad you asked that!

ACTOR Freddie Prinze of "Chico and the Man" TV series — now a proud father.

SINGER Dinah Shore — advocates exercise and restraint in eating.

POLISH singer Bobby Vinton—he and wife have a non-interference pact.

Q: When is the Freddie Prinze baby arriving? And didn't be marry a look-alike for his former favorite female, Raquel Welch? Timmie D., Longview, Tex.

A: No. Although Freddie describes Kathy Cochran as "gorgeous — inside and out," reporters say she is a middle-class, religious, old-fashioned girl. They met while he was browsing about her parents' art gallery in Wyoming and married shortly thereafter. As for the little Chico, we don't know when Freddie Jr. was due, but he checked in last month, March 8.

Q: On Dean Martin's recent TV roasting of Telly Savalas, Angie Dickinson got a loud laugh whenshe said Telly had a lot of charisma. Then she offered a one-word description of what charisma meant applied to him. What was it? — Adele Marsh, Santa Monica.

A: "Horny?"

Q: What is Bobby Vinton's wife's pet name for her husband? And how come she never attends his opening nights? Is it nerves, or some sort of Polish superstition?—Ms. Wendy Duncan, Columbus, Ohio.

A: "Nothing of the sort," smiles Dolly Vinton. "Bobby and I have an agreement. I don't go to his openings — and he doesn't go into my kitchen!" Her pet name for Bobby? The Polish Prince!

Q: Didn't little Karen of the Mickey Mouse Club die? I hope not. — Susan Stevenson, Seattle.

A: Happily, no. She's very much alive and living in Toluca Lake with her childhood sweetheart, Mike DeLauer and their year-old daughter. Karen Pendleton, smallest of the Mouseketeers, was the strawberry blond charmer with the long curls. Currently she's a busy wife and mother and working for a national life insurance company in Los Angeles. Her interest in show business is confined to leafing through her scrap books.

Q: Do those golfing greats who compete on the pro tour take their families along with them? — Richard Gallagher, Flushing, N.Y.

A: "No," grinned one popular champion, 41-year-old Gary Player. "If we toted along the whole gang we'd have to win every time out just to pay expenses!" The Players (Gary and Vivienne, daughter of his golf mentor have six children. Which, pop puns, "is Pa for the course!"

Q: I hear there's still another book about Sinatra being written.

But why the secrecy about who's writing it? — Ms. Nanette Rice; Norfolk, Va.

A: No secret. Author of the unauthorised biography is Broadway columnist Earl Wilson, who was a "lifetime" pal till he printed an item that rankled Frank. Which led to the newsman being barred from Sinatra's opening at the Fontainbleau in Miami Beach (back in 1968), though his "B.W." (beautiful wife) won executive elemency and was permitted to sit ringside. Macmillan will spring the book in May.

Q: When Ronald Reagan's term as governor of California was over, didn't be make some remark about planning to be a movie star again? — Constance O'Reilly, Pittsburgh.

A: No. "I can't go back to making movies," remarked Reagan. "I'm too old to take off my clothes!"

Q: "I'm envious of how youthful and trim Dinah Shore keeps herself. Would you ask what her secret is? — Mrs. Audrey H., Long Beach, Calif.

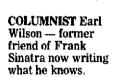

A: "I don't have a weight problem — because I don't take seconds!" declares Dinah. "Perhaps another reason is that I love exercising — like swimming, jogging, dancing, playing golf and tennis."

Q: I heard that collegians are weary of having hard rock groups entertain at their functions. Just what do they like these days? — Mrs. William Thighe, New Haven, Conn.

A: Vaudeville performers are currently in — hypnotists, jugglers, mimics, magicians, comedy acts, puppeteers, tap and belly dancers, etc. Nostalgia still seems to be the name of the game.

'All the President's Men' is a must see movie

Spring must be here, because new movies are blossoming faster than the trees in Central Park. The biggest, best and most likely to have a rich, powerful future is "All The President's Men," the gripping, suspenseful and thoroughly satisfying film version of the best seller by Washington Post reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward about you know what happened to which presidential administration.

nernstein and sob woodward about you know what happened to which presidential administration.

It's the movie they said could not be made, and frankly, I am amazed that they made it with such style and coherence. Just to think about Watergate (and there are those, I'm told, who prefer not to) is to clutter the brain with a million details, telephone conversations, notebook jottings, investigations and technical problems that could be very dull indeed on film.

Awesomely, and with tremendous intelligence, Alan Pakula, the director, has assembled each element with the panache of a mystery novelist. The result is a movie that literally keeps the audience glued to the edge of the seat with nail-biting tension and excitement.

It started June 1, 1972, when President Nixon's

It started June 1, 1972, when President Nixon's helicopter was arriving for a visit to Congress and an address to the nation via network TV. In another part of Washington, five men were breaking into the National Democratic Headquarters at the Watergate Hotel. It was an unspectacular story. Just another robbery for page 30.

Cub reporter Bob Woodward, who had only been with the Post a few months, was sent to cover it. But Woodward, in his calm, curious way, smelled a rat. Was it just a routine burglary pulled by crazy Cubans? If so, why was Howard Hunt's name in one of their address books? The trail of suspicion led to Charles Colson, a special consultant to Nixon himself.

Before you could say "Stop the presses, boys, Ferore you could say sup the presses, before you could say sup the presses, by the got a story that's gonna break this town wide open," what started out as a police-blotter yarn led Woodward and his byline-sharer, Carl Bernstein, to uncover the crime of the century, a front-page nerveripper that involved the FBI, CIA, Justice Department and even the White House. They precipitated the greatest Constitutional crists since the Civil War and changed the course of history for the entire

How they did it, what they did, what they had to go through to convince their editors and why — is what "All The President's Men" is about. Though it grieves me to know some people will avoid what they think is a movie about Watergate, this movie is about much more.

much more. Even if you are simply seeking entertainment, it will satisfy your needs and fulfill your stiffest demands. Written with craftsmanlike precision by William Goldman and directed with brilliance and cinematic skill by Alan Pakula, "All The President's Men" works on several levels. It contains every element of mystery, tension and suspense indigenous to a great detective story. That's pretty staggering, considering the control and dignity involved. Not one gun goes off, no bodies are siashed and there are no souped-up action sequences. Yet my heart pounded harder than it has in any saga I've seen in the past few years.

THE WATERGATE mystery is evenly matched by the flavor and excitement of newspaper work. I found the behind-the-scenes stuff about how certain stories are selected, what reporters endure, what editors say behind closed doors about the news they print and the newsmakers who make the headlines almost as fascinating and hypnotic as the Watergate case itself. Goldman's dialogue is natural, full-bodied and surging with guts. Atmosphere blends with facts

Hal Holbrook is sinister and shuddery as "Deep Throat," the secret contact who dispenses confidential information in clandestine meetings in basement garages. (Woodward has consistently refused to reveal his true identity, although many insiders suspect Patrick Gray.) Jane Alexander is edgily moving as a hookkeeper for the Committee to Re-Elect the President who becomes the reporters' first reluctant witness. Frank Wills, the security guard who saw the taped-open Watergate door and called the police, plays himself. Other key figures are authentically portrayed by Stephen Collins (a dead ringer for Hugh Sloan, the Committee's treasurer) and Richard Herd as James W. McCord, Jr.

On the newspaper side, Jason Robards is wonderful as Ben Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post, whose demand for facts instead of theories almost turns the boys gray-haired overnight; Jack Warden, as metropolitan editor Harry Rosenfeld, and Martin Balsam, as managing editor Howard Simons, are so eerily natural they seem to have been born hunched over a copy deak. And there is a large but uniformly excellent supporting cast in the complicated pile-up of clues and triumphs and dead-end streets, with a remarkable amount of time devoted to the exploration of character. It's a staggering abhiavement

Best of all, however, are Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman, as the glue holding all the bits of paper together, and somehow they manage the impossible task of submerging their own superstar images to literally become the reporters they are

This is, from all points of view, an inspiring, bold, courageous motion picture that should be required viewing for every American citizen, even if it takes an act of Congress to make them see it. It wouldn't hurt America's critics to see it, either, just to let them know the Democratic system still works. It won't be on the 10 Best list at San Clemente this year, but it is already on mine.

FOR PURE, NUTTY escapism, don't miss "The Bad News Bears," a huggable surprise with Walter Matthau and Tatum O'Neal that arrives just in time for spring training, baseball and the hysteria that goes with it. Baseball and children. I don't know which subject fills me with more revulsion. "The Bad News Bears" is about both, and it is a credit to the

talents and persuasions of everyone involved that it succeeds in pleasing even the Scroogiest curmudgeon

Poor carburetor-faced Matthau. He's an exathlete who cleans swimming pools. For extra bread, he takes on the coaching of a little League team called The Bears. They are awful. There's a smart aleck who knows all about Hank Aaron but can't hit the side of a house with a rock, a baby Hindenburg who eats so much chocolate the balls slide across second base like mudpies, Mexican kids who can't speak English and one little loony who never speaks but who makes an excellent martini. Matthau takes one look at these losers and guzzies beer, smokes cigars, cusses a blue streak and passes out on the playing

Most of the teams are sponsored by Pizza Hut chains or Denny's. The Bears are sponsored by Chico's Bail Bonds. By their second game of the season, they almost get to first base in the fourth inning. It's the biggest disaster since the Bobbsey Twins crashed their canoe in Cherry Corners.

Enter Tatum O'Neal, a tough kid who pitches a mean curve but is too little to grow any of her own. "I'm through with all that tomboy stuff," growls pitching whiz Tatum, who has a legitimate job melling maps to movie stars' homes. "I'm almost 12, "and I'll be getting a bra soon!"

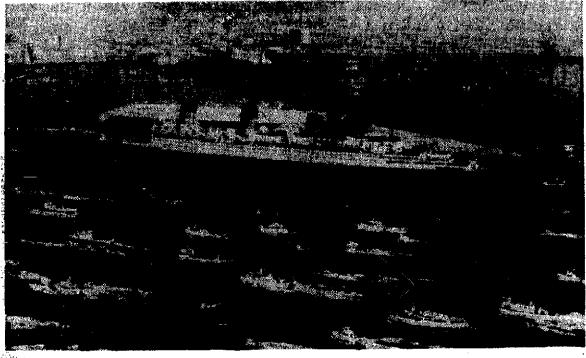

But she accepts the challenge in exchange in ballet lessons and French leans. Add one public delinquent who knocks balls over the field faster thin he can outrun the vice squad, and The Bears are their way to winning the pennant and a few hard hearts in the bargain.

I must be old-fashioned. I thought kids want home after school, did their homework, watched "The Waltons" after dinner and hit the sack by 30. The kids in this movie would make Mae West blinh, and if they watch anything, it's "Deep Throat." Yet I'm told by people who have kids of their own that the raunchy dialogue in the picture is totally accurate. They are no-neck monsters, but they grow on you. Walter Matthau looks like he could sell them for tax shelters, and Tatum O'Neal has the chariff it a pint-sized Wallace Beery. They work beautifully to-sether.

Remember when..

The armada of private boats gathered early to await the arrival of Her Majesty the RMS Queen Mary. She was making her last voyage after more than 30 years of sailing the seas in peace and war.

She was coming to call at her new home in Long Beach. The Cunard luxury liner — once the largest and fastest in the world — had been purchased by the city for conversion into a major tourist attraction, museum and hotel-convention com-

The decks were lined with happy and weary final passengers and, in their joy at participating in such a momenteous event began tossing souvenirs from the ship. Out came silverware, silver trays, silver pitchers, anything with RMS Queen Mary or Cunard inscribed on it. At the crew's end of the ship, the small craft welcomers got different kinds of mementos - blankets, life jackets and menus (if you could catch them before they hit the water.)

The conviviality of this day was not an omen for what lay ahead for the giant ship, however, as she spent the next three years in dry dock while workmen labored to prepare her for a new life. The refurbishing task was much larger, more time consuming and more costly than officials anticipated and the gala grand opening was delayed and DELAYED again.

Meanwhile, the Queen waited to be moved to her permanent location at Pier J and to prove true the prediction at her launching — that she would "know her greatest glory when she never carried another passenger and never sailed another er mile." — Dianne Smith

Now to get back to the parsley.

The small dining table is circular. Over it hangs an antique chandelier in Lalique crystal. Centering the table were masses of white peach blossoms, which climbed in and around the chandelier and touched the ceiling.

The table was covered entirely in parsley with a variety of raw vegetables nestled among the green leaves. Seashells held the various sauces for dipping. Elsewhere throughout the house, guests encountered huge rounds of different cheese and baskels of bread.

Among the more than 100 dropper-inners who came to take the tour of the new house and exclaim over it, the hors d'oeuvres and sensational flowers were Scott's parents, Earl and Midge Lee, who flew down from San Francisco.

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

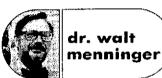

Your response to a reader about whether or not plants "perspire" upset me very much — specifically because you said that when plants, such as Dieffenbachias, seem to be sweating they're actually merely "transpiring," that is, letting off extra moisture through the ends of their leaves, and the reader "shouldn't fret — there's nothing to worry about." Please, please write another column about the Dieffenbachia and tell the people that the Dieffenbachia is not called the Dumb Corn Pleast for chia is not called the Dumb Cane Plant for nothing. The common name reflects the fact that the acid sap will burn the mouth and throat and may paralyze the vocal cords. — M. S. DEAR M. S.:

First of all, we merely were answering the question about transpiring and didn't feel any need, in that particular letter, to go into the discussion about poisonous plants. If somehow you got the impression we didn't know — or wouldn't tell — that the Dieffenbachia sap can be paralyzing, then perhaps we'd better correct it.

Like oleanders, some azaleas and several other rather uncommon outdoor plants, the sap of the Dieffenbachia should never be ingested, but we also better take this opportunity to reiterate again that it's better not to eat the leaves of any plant unless you're absolutely, positively, 100 per cent sure that they're not only harmless but beneficial. We hope that clears up your upset condition, and we further hope that

One of our friends has an inquisitive youngster who drives his mother up the wall, because he is never fully satisfied with the answers he gets to his questions. He reminds me of when some of my hildren were younger. Repeatedly, I would be asked, Why is that, Daddy?

If you've been a parent, you know the exaspera-tion. How do you explain some complicated things to a child who can't really understand what it's all about? I know of no better example than the question, "Daddy, why do some people have different colored skin? What does it mean?" 'Well, I don't really know why there are people with different colored skin. There just are. That's the way God created us. And it doesn't mean anything, really. They're people like us."

"Then why are they different from us? How come, Daddy?"

Because ... "

"Because why?" At which point I retreat to the World Book Encyclopedia and look up "Races of Man." There I find an elaboration of the subject, with drawings of different peoples across the world. There's a discusdifferent peoples across the world. There's a discussion of different physical characteristics, and three major groupings with a percentage distribution—Caucasoid, 56 percent of the world's population; Negroid, 10 percent; Mongoloid, 34 percent. I note that "enmity and distrust between groups of people have been common throughout history." But I don't find "Why?"!

CHILDREN struggle mightily to understand differences. They expect everyone to be alike, and the first thing they assume is that something is wrong with someone who is different. Or else something is wrong with them.

Unable to understand why, and also unable to realize that differences are essentially just skin deep, the child is likely to come up with an overly simplis-tic and distorted explanation. Therein lie some of the roots of racial prejudice.

More than ten years ago at a psychiatric meeting, Dr. L.J. West drew attention to the common equation in our language of the color white with purity, goodness, light, heroism; and the color black with filth, evil, darkness, villainy. And he noted that this equation of black with dark and evil forces can be found in other languages and other cultures, even

The equation is found in literature and entertainment repeatedly. Recently, my daughter Marian pre-pared an essay on the lightness-darkness theme in John Steinbeck's "The Pearl," and she found more than one reference per page to the lightness-good,

'Why?' can be impossible to answer

darkness-evil imagery. And the television and movie westerns consistently portray the good guy in white hat, on a white horse, and the villain in dark clothes, dark hat, on a black horse.

WHY IS ALL THIS so consistent? Look to some childhood perceptions. Most children are scared of the dark, frightened of emptiness, silence, loneliness and abandonment experienced at night. Unsure of their security and safety, they equate things dark with things bad.

As we grow up, we tend to retain these formulations deep within us. But they are covered over with elaborate rationalizations so they don't look the same. They are hard to undo, and because of them it may not be easy to think of black as beautiful, or pure, good, light and heroic.

Mike has a mind of its own

If there is anything in this world as fiercely independent as a microphone, I don't know what it is. I mean, imagine the year is 1775. At the Provincial Convention in Virginia, statesman Patrick Henry rises to his feet to make an impassioned plea for liberty or death. He approaches the microphone and as the entire assembly awaits his first words he asks, "Can everyone in the back hear me?"

In 10 years of lecturing, I have seen microphones go from an occasional passive screech to real screaming militants. To begin with, microphones do not like to be touched by a union or otherwise. Because I am short, I tried to adjust one the other week I gave it just a simple tweak mind you and it week. I gave it just a simple tweak, mind you, and it went as limp as a $2 permanent in a sauna. I gave the entire speech from a squatting sprinter's position. SOME MICROPHONES work great as long as you blow into them. So you stand there like an idiot blowing and saying, "Are you on? Can you hear me?" Everyone admits they can hear you blowing. It's only when you speak the microphone goes dead.

Others have a weird sense of humor. They're punch-line poopers. You'll be sailing along with a three-minute story, building to a big pitch and just as you say, "So why isn't the dog drinking his dai-quiri?" the microphone goes silent and you're left muttering, "Gee, I guess you had to have been Some speakers spend half their lives looking for the on/off switch of microphones. There aren't any. I've looked for them under the light, on the shelf, on the side, the goose neck, offstage. I suspect most of them are triggered by a remote control in a 1936 pickup truck in a garage across from the auditorium.

I HAVE BEEN warned that some microphones are super sensitive and you have to talk right into them to be heard. These are usually the ones that cross you up by picking up your entire luncheon conversation including, "My God, do you mean the management is charging you $10 for this lunch! Has he never heard of the Geneva Convention?"

Whether you use one of those new "nail guns" or a simple tack hammer, paneling can be fun. And think of how much beauty and resale value a panel-ing job adds to your home. Remember too that it's practically maintenance-free (especially those new "man-made" wood-grained panels that look just like the real thing and cost so much less!).

Paneling can be used to conceal old, cracked and otherwise defective walls. It also acts as an insulation against heat, cold and noise. Paneling is as practical as today and as charming as yesteryear. Our simple step-by-step instructions include dozens of pictures and drawings that anyone can follow. We'll show you how to lay panels over concrete basement walls, regular or uneven plaster walls. There are guidelines for estimating, proper sawing methods, cutouts around wall outlets, doorways, stairs, etc. It's the most complete guide (we believe) that's available today.

To obtain our No. 569 paneling made easy instructions, send $1.50 (includes first class postage and handling) by cash, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press Telegram Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Ca. 91409.

Music takes a new route

By ELISE EMERY Arts Editor

Have you ever blown so hard on a trumpet that your cheeks bulged like helium balloons, chords in your neck tautened, your eyes popped? Then, miraculously came a sound — sweet, clear, ringing! You had played a trumpet! Tod Talmage has done that.

Have you plucked the strings of a violin, heard their pizzicato sound? Then drawn a bow, made of a special kind of horsehair, across the strings to produce a completely different ripple of notes? Frank Baldwin and Jina Walton have.

They are three of more than 1,000 Long Beach third-graders who will experience this kind of introthird-graders who will experience this kind of intro-duction to music-making in a program which began Monday and will continue for another week. It's a project of Long Beach Symphony Juniors, affiliates to the Long Beach Auxiliary of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Association. Next year's goal is to bring the Music Mobile to all third grade classrooms in the Long Beach Schools.

MUSIC MOBILE?

That's an idea the Pasadena Junior Philharmonic Committee dreamed up in 1971. They took a colorful van, filled it with instruments and teaching aids, trained docents from their membership and sites ally took music to the schools. The result: instant success. Kids loved being able to actually pick up the instruments, try to play them. They were excited when they heard tapes of such story-telling music as "Till Eulenspiegel" and could hear the many instruments singing together.

So this year Long Beach Symphony Juniors have rented the van and are taking it to Gant, Longfellow, Burbank, Riley, Sutter, Lowell, Hudson, Los Cerritos, Gompers and Bixby schools.

Mrs. James Hunter is heading the project, assisted by Mrs. Charles Armstrong.

THE MAIN PURPOSE of the venture is to introduce children to the orchestra, to make them aware of the part music plays in their lives.

It's amazing, project coordinators report, how many more youngsters want to study music in the public schools in the fourth grade, when instrumental classes are first available.

The instruments are no strangers. Via the Music Mobile, the children already have learned the sections of the orchestra, individual voices of the instruments, how they combine to make music tell a story, create a mood or express an emotion. They know the four sections are string, brass, percussion and wood-with anermatives in enucation.

Specific recommendations will be made to the Council at its April 10 meeting in Santa Cruz. The recommendations for expending the $555,000 will include simplified procedures to disperse the funds since the money must be contracted for by June 30.

The public is invited to the Santa

The public is invited to the Santa Cruz meeting at 10 a.m. in Laurel Street School, on the corner of Laurel and Center Streets. Time is set aside at 1:30 p.m. for members of the public to ex-press their opinions.

IN LONG BEACH, local printmaker Joan Binkoff has an exhibition, opening today, at Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave Her display of intaglio, serigraph, woodcut and collograph work will continue through April 30.

Binkoff is well known in this area for her many exhibits. She also has shown her work across the United States and in galleries in Mexico, Nor-way, England, and Korea. Currently on the executive board of the Los Angeles Printmaking Society, she is an instructor of printmaking and design at Long Beach City College.

The Center Gallery is open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sundays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. It is closed Friday evenings and all day Saturday. Admission is free.

LUCILLE BROWN GREENE juried the April show for Long Beach Art Association and named these winners: first, $100 to Lenore Stribley; second, $50 to Ava Zimmerman; third, $25 to Nate Carhart. Honorable mentions went to Mid Ruth, Sandra Beebe, Dorothy Burnham, Ruth Eyrich and Marion through April 25.

The show may be seen at the LBAA Gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd. from noon

A reception for artists and members will be held today from 2 to 4 p.m. Awards will be presented at 3 o'clock:

BEGINNING MONDAY, Berneice Kelley will conduct a workshop for Lakewood Artist Guild on the subject of portraiture. The instructor uses oils in traditional style to achieve realism. The workshop will be held through May 10 at Mayfair Park, South Street and Clark Avenue, on Monday evenings. There is a small fee; the public is invited.

TO MARK the Bicentennial in a meaningful way, the School of Fine Arts at Long Beach State University will sponsor a seminar in American Art, Architecture and Performing Arts. This isn't just for the scholarly — it is in-tended to offer adults, whether they be experts or novices, a rich cultural experience. Participants can gain insight into patterns of American culture from earliest history to the present, as exem-plified in Washington, D.C.

Dates are June 21 to July 11.
Students will enroll for a total of sixunits selected from two of the three participating departments. There are no prerequisites.

Tentative plans include visits to the National Gallery of Art, National Portrait Gallery, Corcoran Gallery, Hirshorn Museum, Renwich Gallery, The Arena Stage, John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Ford's Theater, the National Symphony and some of the special Bicentennial events taking place in Washington during the seminar period. seminar period.

Principal faculty will be professor Neil Leiberman of the Department of Art; John R. Watts, theater specialist and associate dean, both of the LBSU School of Fine Arts. They will be joined by a series of guest lecturers and ex-perts from Washington cultural and governmental institutions.

Estimated cost, $745, covers all university fees, round trip air fare, sir conditioned dormitory (Catholic University), breakfast daily, most transportasity, breatian daily, beet daily breation in Washington and admission to-certain concerts, productions and events. For more information, call or write to John R. Watts at the university.

Conversations with Marilyn. By W.J. Weatherby. Mason Charter Publishers,

This is not a sensational book, no mean accomplishment given the curiosity which has preyed upon Marilyn Monroe in death as in life.

The author first met his subject on the set of "The Misfits." Later he drank with her on a number of occasions in an inconspicuous bar in New York.

He says she asked him not to write about their conversations until after her retirement, and there is an obvious poi-Think it is to his credit that he, a professional interviewer, did not commit this personal material to print until speculations swelled to such a crest that he felt her own words, and the impressions of someone who had known her in relaxed noments, would have a bracing effect.

I think you will enjoy this book, but I should warn you that of its 229 pages, 56 are cosmetically blank. Nor will you learn for certain whether Marily had an affair with JFK, RFK, or both; whether she died accidentally, killed herself, or was murdered; or to what extent Arthur Miller's play, "After the Fall," is a fair portrayal of her. The author does, however, draw reasonable inferences.

I can remember, as a kid, viewing "The Misfits" in a rapidly emptying theatre and fighting back the externals of emotion. It was to be the last film com-pleted by Marilyn or by Gable, and one of the last for Montgomery Clift. It marked the break-up of her marriage with Miller. Seldom has so much genius been collectively expended on a single project, and yet it was considered a failure even by most of those associated with it. Today it is an underground classic, premonition an underground crassic, premointent haunting the celluloid.

I found of immense interest the minia-tures of the "misfits," and of others such as Lee Strasberg, Billy Wilder, Clifford Odets, and Samuel Goldwyn. As for Marilyn, well, I came away from the book thinking of her as a very talented actress and a very ordinary person. What is ex-traordinary is that she could remain ordinary after having been transformed

The Cardinal and the Secretary: Thomas Wolsey and Thomas Cromwell. By Neville Williams. Macmillan, $9.95.

Thomas Wolsey (1473-1530), statesman and prelate, lord chancellor of England (1515-1529), Archbishop of York (1514-1530), cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church was the man largely responsible for the emergence of England as a first-rate power in the 16th century.

Having gained the favor of Henry VIII, he rose rapidly and by 1514 virtually controlled England's domestic and foreign policy. Twice he tried and failed to become Pope. Wolsey built several palaces, among them Hampton Court, and his court rivaled in pomp that of Henry VIII. His foes used Henry's divorce from Catherine of Aragon to ruin him (Wolsey presided at the trial of Catherine) and he lost all his honors except his archbishopric. He was arrested for treason and died on the way to London. Thomas Cromwell (1485-1540) (no ancestor of Oliver) was Wolsey's legal secretary. and managed to avoid implication in his downfall. He too attracted the attention of Henry VIII and he too rose rapidly. He carried out the suppression of the monas-teries (and a good deal of their wealth managed to stick to his fingers). He was made lord great chamberlain in 1539 and negotiated Henry's marriage to Anne of Cleves to secure a German alliance. This failed and he was arrested, convicted of treason and heresy, and beheaded.

What the talented novelist, dramatist and historian Neville Williams seeks to prove, and largely succeeds in doing in this brilliant dual biography, is that both men served a much larger role than that of the opportunisitic, power hungry politicos to which most historians have consigned

Wolsey, we are reminded by Williams, worked to achieve lasting peace when war was the accepted means of diplomacy. Cromwell, we are shown, skillfully directed Henry's break with Rome and com-pletely overhauled England's medieval administrative system. "The Cardinal and the Secretary" is an engrossing and scholarly picture not only of the two men, but of the power battle between the king and parliament, the jealousies and rivalries of powerful families, the schemings of churchmen, and of women trying for the King's affection. James I. By Otto J. Scott. Mason Charter,

Otto J. Scott's "Robespierre: The Voice of Virtue," also a Mason Charter publication, was a brilliant portrait of the publication, was a orinant portrait of the revolutionist as fanatic. Author Scott turns now, with an equally deft pen, to a far different sort of eminence — James VI, King of Scotland, crowned James I, King of England in 1603, a ruler, who by and large, was unequal to the task of dealing with his times. A man, who, in author south's barrees was "the figure of the Scott's phrase, was "the figure of the Fool." James (1566-1625) was the son of the ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots, by Lord Darnley. He was cousin to Elizabeth I, who thought little of him.

He became James VI of Scotland when his mother abdicated, allied himself with Elizabeth, and calmly acquiesed in her beheading of his mother. He succeeded Elizabeth to the British throne in 1603.

Pluses under his reign are overhalanced by negatives: the production of the Authorized (King James) version of the Bible by his inconsistent policy toward the English Catholics, angering both them and the Protestants; the beginnings of English colonization in North America (Jamestown, Virginia, bears his name) by his reliance on incompetent favorites, his extrava-gances which furthered discontent in a land that, when his reign began, was imbued with a cocky hope for the future. His claims for the divine right of kings led to the Puritan Revolution. Otto J. Scott's "James I" is all that the biography of a ruler and his era should be.

"I'm so glad they stopped operation home call," says sixth grade teacher Ninette Richardson. "Parents resented it. They used to say, 'today is the day all the white teachers come and show us what good neighbors they are."

neighbors they are."

"There's a lot of warmth in this school," says Roosevelt vice principel Bob Robertson, "and a lot of warmth in the community." But the school neighborhood, he says, was caught in the flux of the Poly Redevelopment area with condemned buildings and vacant areas and some teachers felt uncomfortable about going into the neighborhood. "It's a personal thing we leave up to the teacher. Some feel comfortable, some don't."

The secret to success depends on the singulations.

able, some don't."

The secret to success depends on the sincerity of the teacher, says Miss Richardson, who makes frequent home calls. "It all boils down to whether they think you care. If you're sincere, they'll know you're not there to judge them. If you're apprehensive, sitting on the edge of your chair, looking afraid to touch anything, they'll resent it."

Over at Whittier School, 90 per cent of the teachers are comfortable making visits and the par-

Over at Whittier School, 90 per cent of the teachers are comfortable making visits and the parents like having teachers get acquainted. "We're trying to get the school into the community," says Allegretti, "and we're trying to pull the community into the schoolhouse as a place where they can have fun and feel welcome." If the idea of school being involved in the community is going to make it in this neighborhood, it will make it in any neighborhood, he says. In his view, the plan is working. "It's a subjective view, I can't say for certain that it improves children's learning."

A FULL 85 per cent of the Whittier area popula-tion is on welfare — highest rate in the school district. With a classroom turnover rate of more than 100 per cent during a school year, the school also has the third highest transient population. School in general has a darkened image with many of these parents, says Allegretti. "This is the many or mese parents, says Allegretti. This is the place where they maybe failed as kids and where they tend to relate with teachers as a parent to a professional rather than as two equal human beings. So the question is how to get them to feel good about calculate.

Home visits, with emphasis on the positive, is one way. "We had a lot of positive feedback," says Allegretti. Cultural variances between the white middle-class future-oriented teaching staff and the low-income minority now-oriented children can be better bridged, he says.

"Parents, no matter where they live," says Burnett principal Kenneth Slawson, "want to know what's going on and to help in educating their chil-dren. We have tremendous cooperation. Parents are

"In my personal view, school people can be fearful of interrelating with this community. They can come straight here every morning, stay in the schoolhouse all day, then go straight home in the afternoon. But how do we know what's going on and understand what the child brings to school unless we get to know the parents as people?" asks Allegretti.
"When two people get together and talk over coffee, something happens. They discover they have a common interest — the child — and they get to know each other. It's my belief that when this happens improvements can been seen in the child.

"I know I can't teach effectively in a school unless I know the antecedents of the child. The way to enhance the teaching of a particular child is to know what is important to that child." A 15 to 20 minute chat helps to get that information.

JACQUELINE SMITH, a vivacious mother of two students at Burnett School, has high praise for the home call program. "I thought it was very important and my kids were always excited. When the teachers would come, I'd show them my garden and always manage to keep them longer than the 20 minutes."

She credits these contacts as the impetus for getting her more actively involved in education. She is now a paid aid in the counselor's office at Whittier and works with the children in a poetry class.

John Rambo, another black community leader and public relations representative with General Telephone, also praises the program. "Most teachers don't live in the central area and what better way is there to understand what it is like on the other side of the mountain.'

Rambo has two daughters at Whittier School. "I think most youngsters would really appreciate the chance to know that, hey, maybe this teacher really is interested in me," he says.

Payments for the services of a licensed psychologist, if for medical care, should be listed each year with other medical pay-ments. However, if the psychotherapy was part of the training required for your profession, it is an educational expense, met medical not medical.

Expenses necessary to acquire miniskills for your profession are not deductible. Once you are employed in the profession, further educational expenses are deductible, unless they lead to qualification in another profession.

You may also have received scholar-ship or fellowship grants that were ex-cludable from gross income. Obtain free IRS pamphlets 507 and 508 for further explanation.

If you should find that you overpaid federal income tax for 1972, 1973 or 1974, you should prepare a refund claim on Form 1040X for each year that you overpaid. The claim for 1972 must be filed by

DEAR MR. SMITH: I hold a real estate license and am actively engaged in the real estate business. Is it true that if I sell even one house after owning it for over six months that I cannot take advantage of capital gains on this transaction? — T. M.

No — not true. It is possible for a real estate broker, agent or developer to ac-quire some properties for investment, rathr than for resale in the regular course of

The profit (or loss) on the sale of investment property may be reported as a capital gain (or loss). Be ready to show an IRS auditor that the property was acquired and held primarily for investment pur-poses, and that your customary sales and promotion activities, normally applied to property held for resale, were not applied to your investment property.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I own a one-man business. I lease an auto used 100 per cent for business at $100 a month. For income tax purposes I charge all mileage driven as business expense, so much for the first 15,000 miles, etc. I also charge all insurance, license and other expenses. The leasing firm says total expense of leasing is also a business deduction, in addition to business mileage. I can't get an answer to this question: can I charge the amount of the lease as well as the business mileage? Though I have leased for several years, I haven't been doing this, just charging the business mileage as a business expense and not even noting the lease cost in my tax return. F.T.R.

The IRS has approved two methods of computing auto expense for business use. The first is to apply the standard rates of 15 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles. during the year, and 10 cents a mile after that. Add parking fees and toll charges, but no other expenses.

The second method is to keep a record visits the homes for several she visits the homes for several reasons. One, some parents can't make it to school for the traditional conference and to pick up the child's first report card of the year — they work, or have no car, or have smaller children at home, or feel ill at ease in a classroom. "If I can talk to the parents with the children present, the children can see how much the parents are interested that they learn.

Student discipline can become a less joyful reason for making a home visit With Ninette Richardson's students these visits come as the end result of a game, a baseball game in which "strike three" for the child means a "home run" for her. But she makes certain to follow these visits with a thank you note on how the child is improving or a friendly second visit.

"I tell the parents I don't want them to think 'bad' everytime they see me. I let them know the talk really helped. Parents work hard for their children and I feel I owe it to them to let them know how it helps."

Ninette Richardson is busy getting the children to learn and feel good the children to learn and feel good about themselves. The children know that and pass the information on at home. "They pave the way for me," on her house calls, she says. "The parents

AS ANOTHER side of her home visits, Ninette Richardson invites her students to her home for dinner — a trip usually presented as a reward for show-ing responsibility. "I encourage them to invite me home for dinner, too." These dinners become special occasions.

"I tell them I don't want any special food for myself. I want to eat what they eat, their soul food. If it's a black home, it's food I was raised on. If it's a Filipino home, I want to try their soul food too." To reassure the children about these visits, she says, she tells them their progress at school will not be discussed. "I don't threaten them with

The important thing for a teacher is the children's reaction, she says. "If you think they're special, they'll know it." Her theme emphasizes this and so do her teaching tools.

On a given day recently a drop in visitor could see a poem about a trog written on the blackboard, hear the husky voice of Diana Ross on tape, and see the rapt attention of the children.

"It ain't easy bein' green, having to spend each day the color of the leaves," the black singer tells them. But as she goes down a list of other green things, comparing berself to their beauty, she decides: "Well, I'm green and I think it'll do fine. Green is just what I want to be. 'Cause green is beautiful, baby. Right on, green."

DEL ALLEN Now it's called Seafood Broiler

WHAT'S HAPPENED to the Fish Cooker restaurant?

Nothing, except its name has been changed. It's now the Seafood Broiler. But everything else is the same, including the owners, Del Allen and Stephen Stielel; the menu of scrumptious seafoods and its

The Seafood Broiler, which opened about 14 months ago, has been remarkably successful and months ago, has been remarkedly successful along popular because so many people throughout the Long Beach-Lakewood-Bellflower-Norwalk areas prefer its style of cooking. Some say: "Charcoal-broiling is the only way to cook fish and shellfish. We're crazy about the Seafood Broiler and come here all the time!"

Why don't more restaurants charcoal-broil their sea specialities? Simply because it's difficult to do properly. It takes the greatest expertise to make certain the fiery coals are the right temperature and that each entree is broiled so swiftly that it's tender, moist and delectable. Del and the Broiler's manager. Tom Lewis, have many years of experience in charcoal-broiling sea delicacies. They have trained their cooks well. The broilers are behind glass walls in the large dining room, enabling the guests to watch the entrees being cooked on skewers over the coals.

The Broiler's luncheons are served daily and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Dinner is served anytime, day or night. The luncheons are from $2.35 to $3.50. The dinners are mostly $3.45 to $4.95. The eight-ounce broiled lobster is $7.75 for dinner; chilled cracked fresh Dungeness crab from Oregon is $5.35 on the dinner, $4.05 at luncheon. The dinners include fresh coleslaw or fresh tomatoes; Romano potatoes or peasant-style rice pilaf, tartar sauce or snappy red sauce, bread and butter.

The entrees range from northern white sea bass and eastern scallops to cysters with bacon. Alaska king crab, Alaska salmon, shrimp with becon and the combination fish kabob of shrimp, scallops and fish broiled on a skewer with onion and bell pepper. Also broiled on a skewer with onion and ben pepper. Also featured are superb clam chowder, 45 cents; shrimp or crab cocktails, oysters and clams on the halfshell, steamed clams, seafood salads, beer and wine.

The Seafood Broiler's fresh fish market, open every day from 10 a.m. on, offers such beauties as red snapper, Idaho trout, sea bass, filet of sole, crab, Louisiana catfish and many others.

PEOPLE DO like to talk. Three of the most-talked-about restaurants in Long Beach are Jones Dining Room, Jones Downtown Cafeteria and Jones

Uptown Cafeteria.

Mostly people talk about how much they enjoy dining on the wonderfully fresh foods at those three places. Occasionally someone (who doesn't have all the facts) will make an additional comment, saying: "Did you know that Jones Uptown Cafeteria is a separate operation from the downtown Jones' restau-

That's definitely untrue. All three restaurants are part of the same operation which was founded in downtown Long Beach 47 years ago by the Harold A. Jones Sr. family. The owners are Harold Sr., his wife Ivalou and their son Hal. All three participate in the proportion of all three participate.

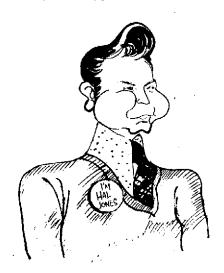

operation of all three restaurants.

Jones Uptown Cafeteria, 3636 Long Beach Blvd., a block north of Wardlow Road, was opened two years ago when the downtown restaurants were wrecked by fire. For a time, Hal devoted most of his energies to the Uptown restaurant; perhaps that's the basis for the rumor about it being a separate opera-

The downtown Dining Room and Cafeteria are in the same building on Fifth Street at Locust Avenue. All three restaurants have been impressively successful year after year because they offer the fresh-est, most delectable, most wholesome foods prepared from treasured family recipes. The restaurants are modern operations, but some of their cooking methods are old-fashioned. The Jones restaurants shun the use of certain pre-packaged convenience foods be-cause they don't taste "right." The Joneses prefer to make the majority of their items fresh "from scratch.'

The restaurants make their own salad dressings sauces and gravies —and they are superb! Their chief baker, Harold Egan, turns out the most luscious hot rolls, muffins, sweet rolls, breads, cakes, thick pies and pastries. The staff of cooks, directed by Don pies and pastries. The staff of cooks, directed by Don Barney (member of the Chefs de Cuisine Association of California) turn out everything from the choicest roast lamb and roast round of beef to baked ham with fruit sauce, sea bass, grilled calves liver with bacon, roast turkey or turkey wings, meatloaf with mushroom sauce, roast beef hash (unusually good), breaded pork tenderloin, tender scallops, all-vegetable platters, Loma Linda meat substitute (very popular), chicken-fried steak and fried spring chicken with

Open for luncheon and dinner (closed Saturdays), the Jones' restaurants are famous for the generosity of their dinners which include many colorful accompaniments, such as thick cream pie for dessert. But you may have smaller meals, if you wish. Large or small, they are sensibly priced.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

No crossed wires in his kitchen

Having mastered the garbled cry of the corner newsboy at the age of 13, he says, "I was really street educated. I worked in a small cafe through grade school in Oklahoma and was a grocery clerk white attending high school."

All of which led today's chef of the week, Joe W. Lewis, to his post as an engineering construction manager for General Telephone Company of Califor-

Born in Comanche, Okla., Lewis attended elementary school in Duncan, but came to Long Beach in time to attend Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. He started as a draftsman for Associated Telephone Company, Ltd., in 1948. Telephoning has been his vocation ever since, except for two years with the U.S. Army Signal Corps during the Korean conflict.

In his present position, Lewis is responsible for 386 employes, and an annual budget of about 8 million dollars. The crew maintains more than a million pairs of wires connecting the same number of phones to 34 switching centers. There are over one-quarter million trunk circuits between switching centhe which serve 38 incorporated cities in Los An-general and Orange Counties.

THE FORMULA

Gleaming tile at little cost

Ceramic tile is made from various types of clay and other minerals. The mastic mix (dough) is packed into molds and then fired at high temperatures.

In some cases the initial firing may also produce the final finish, however in others a finished coat, called a frit, is fired on the surface of the substrate as a secondary operation.

Frits are made up in liquid form, and painted or sprayed on the substrate. These usually contain glass

norman stark

in some form or the other, such as sodium silicate (waterglass), and the other desired for the finished surface. When the piece is fired, the glass softens and the particles flow together forming a dense, impervi-

Because of the density of the surface on most ceramic tile, cleaning is not difficult. Here's a formula for a cleaner that's inexpensive to make and will do a good job.
You'll need two tablespoons TRISODIUM PHOS-

PHATE (TSP) — available at hardware stores — and one gallon of WATER. Mix the TSP into the water and wipe over tile with a sponge dampened in the

The cost of making your own ceramic tile cleaner is approximately one-fourth of a cent per ounce.

To determine your savings, divide the cost of your store-bought brand by the number of ounces it contains. Then compare the per-ounce cost — you'll be surprised at how much you can save for so little

Note: Material costs are based on the prices at retail outlets of national drug, grocery and hardware chains. These costs will vary, depending on the geographic area. If you wish to make up a larger quantity — and save even more — buy your materials at a chemical supply company.

Like any chemical product you use at home, you should store this one safely, label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of reach of children.

Last call for I,P-T Alaska-Canada cruise

By HERB SHANNON I.P-T Travel Editor

Vancouver, the capital city of British Columbia, is only one of the fascinating ports of call on the 14-day Royal Viking Lines Alaska-Canada cruise co-sponsored by Long Beach area travel agents and the Independent, Press-Telegram.
The western Canada metropolis will stage waterborne welcoming ceremonies for the Royal Viking Sea, newest of the three sister ships of the Viking fleet, which will be making its maiden voyage to the Pacific Northwest in June.

The 22,000-ton Norwegian-flag vessel will sail from Los Angeles on June 14 and the up in Vancouver's skyscraper-rimmed harbor 10 days later. It will be the second visit in the vicinity, since the luxury liner will call a week earlier at Vancouver's very British neighbor city, Victoria.

Between the two British Columbia ports, the Royal Viking Sea will sail both ways through Canada's scenic Inside Passage to the spectacular frozen world of Glacier Bay in Alaska, with other stops at the colorful state capital, Juneau, and the Indian settlement of Haines on the way north.

On the return from Glacier Bay, the luxury liner will pay its respects at Alaska's Eskimo outpost of Sitka before docking in Canada again at Prince Rupert, one day before arrival at Vancouver on June One more port of call on the voyage is a full day in San Francisco before the home run to Los Angeles.

BUT THE exciting and varied itinerary is only part of the adventure for I.P-T readers on the maiden voyage. In port or at sea, the Royal Viking Sea is a virtual world in itself, offering a wide range of activities guaranteed to entertain.

Cruising up the California coast to Victoria, passengers will have an opportunity to hear lectures on the ports they will visit, preparing them for historical points of interest, shopping and sightseeing

Other activities include lectures featuring guest speakers on such topics as native art, port informa-tion and other matters of current interest. Professional entertainers will be on board throughout the cruise, including a dance team and the Royal Viking Line orchestra. At some ports, local entertainers will board the ship to perform.

In addition to doing nothing more strenuous than lying in a deck chair with a book from the ship's library passengers will choose their favorite sport from deck games, the heated swimming pool, golf driving range, trap shooting or working out in the gymnasium and its sauna and massage room.

The Viking vessel also has a card room for checkers, chess and bridge, a 156-seat theater with free first-run films, closed circuit and external television, a gift shop, cocktail lounges and gourmet dining

Dining can be a 24-hour experience if desired, with snacks, teas, deck buffets and midnight meals sandwiched between regular culinary events in the main salon. The ship's fare features international cuisine, supplemented by standard American favor-

Washington dressing up for Bicentennial

J. Edgar Hoover's table was in the corner of the dining room of starched linen and old polished silver in the Mayflower Hotel. He ate the same thing each day: Lettuce, grapefruit, cottage cheese, tea and treet

When he died, the waiter draped the table in when the diet, in waiter the funeral. The great Hoover had me bugged once — I recall it with pride not resentment. It was one of his jokes to tape newsmen while they made foolish statements to FBI agents. (The agent work a hidden recorder.)

New reign in Spain, but bargains remain

By HARRY BURNHAM Ridder News Service

TORREMOLINAS. Spain — The sun still shines on Spain's Costa del Soi, but the twin shadows of economic and political unrest have dealt the area a stunning blow.

Here, at the center of what tourist activity still exists, the city approaches the appearance of a disaster area. Half-completed hotels and condominium complexes dot the coast-line where financing dried up. "For Sale" signs hang on hundreds of tiny shops as well as major buildings.

Five star hotels, once jammed with native and foreign visitors, are absolutely deserted. Only the small, relatively modest hostelries appear to be surviving.
I asked the general manager of one of one of the latter why. "Foreigners are reluctant to visit Spain because of the political unrest they have read about in their own news-papers. The general economic situation has cut heavily into our own vacation seekers," he answer-

Political unrest there is. Strikes have crippled many areas of Spain, especially in the Basque country of the northwest and the mining areas of the northeast. Businessmen and workers alike are critical of the "new democracy" promised by King Juan Carlos. Obviously, the business community is unhappy with the wave of strikes and demands for higher wages hy workers which has disrupted transportation and other vital aspects of Spain's business life.

WORKERS are unhappy that the promised "new freedoms" have not come as rapidly as they would

Yet, the fear that has curtailed the tourist indus-try along the Costa del Sol has no solid basis in fact. The buses run as frequent ly as ever, trucks rumble along the coastal highway, the jets still swoop into the Torremolinas-Malaga airport on schedule (although only half full). Customs, and immigration officials put the visitor through the formalities with courtesy and dispatch.

TWA has good news for Spain

It may be raining on the plain in Spain, but, in the main, things are brightening up for the tourist as a result of the devaluation of the peseta.

A TWA spokesman said the price cuts were made possible by the recent devaluation of the Spanish peseta and the airline was assing on to its customers the savings from the bwer cost of ground ar-

Some restaurants have yet to learn that the soup, salad and entree are not supposed to arrive along with the pre-dinner martini, but on the other hand, waiters are helpful with the menu, (most eating establishments print them in four languages, Spanish, English, German and French.)

ermens' beach district known as Carihuela, is dotted with excellent eat-ing places. The closest to an American style steak I found at a tiny restaurant a block from the Resitur hotel. The menu consists of four items: ribs, steaks, goulash and a frankfurter, pork chop and sauerkraut combination. All except the goulash is charcoal grilled.

Almost on the beach in

PARAKITING IS SPORT FOR CRUISE PASSENGERS AT PUERTO VALLARTA

Sail with Chinese crew to Mexican ports

By JACK O. BALDWIN Staff Writer

Orient Overseas Line's new budget cruises aboard the all-one class, 625-passenger S.S. Universe Campus are not likely to please all cruise-minded passengers. They are not intended to.

Quoting from the line's travel brochure:

"Our idea, by eliminating some of the unneces-sary frills, is to bring a Mexican holiday within the range of almost everyone."

The four-day party cruises to Ensenada and Guadalupe Islands start as low as $160 per person for - a double stateroom.

The nine-day cruise (eight nights) which includes visits to Mazatlan, Puerto Vallarta, and (sea conditions permitting) a stop at Cabo San Lucas, is priced from $390 to $700. The 12-day cruises which includes an additional stop at Acapulco are priced from $490 to $700 per person to $800 per person.

DESPITE THE relatively low fares as compared to some luxury cruise ships, staterooms are comfortable, fully air conditioned, very clean, and the spacious public rooms tastefully decorated. The large public room on the Promenade Deck is beautifully furnished with warm-colored overstuffed divans and occasional chairs. The big round tables easily seat seven poker players. The cardroom has felt-topped tables for gin, bridge, cribbage, solitaire and Mah-Jongg players.

On board is a glass-enclosed writing room and another which is reserved for non-smokers. The ship has a 200-seat movie theater in which fairly recent movies are shown twice daily. There is a swimming pool surrounded by deckchairs for sun worshippers and many more chairs on the covered and enclosed promenade deck for those who enjoy less sun, leisure reading and snoozing.

The spacious Commodore Room on the prom deck comes alive at 11 a.m. with the opening of the 16-stool bar. The dollar-a-race and dollar-a-card bingo games are held here. In the evening the room becomes the ship's nightclub. By some nightclub standards the dance floor is larger than most. A fivepiece orchestra plays dance music ranging fron Vienna waltzes to sambas.

The Commodore Room is the scene of nightly entertainment - some rehearsed, some unrehearsed. During the inaugural cruise the organized fun and games and nightly entertainment were supervised by multi-talented cruise director Jim Everett, assisted by his attractive dark-eyed wife, Merry. The unre-hearsed entertainment was provided by passengers on the dance floor doing his or her own thing.

DRESS IS CASUAL most of the time, including evening dinner. However, one time the daily mimeo-graphed bulletin suggested for Captain Chao-Gen Yen's pre-dinner cocktail party that gentlemen wear jackets. There was no mention of ties but most men wore one. The ladies wore tailored pant suits and pretty restaurant dresses.

On the inaugural cruise my wife and I noticed the average age of boarding passengers appeared somewhat younger than that of most passengers with whom we had sailed on earlier cruises. Perhaps this is because of the attraction of budget fares.

A bonus offered at no extra cost aboard the S. S. Universe Campus is the gracious, friendly all-Chinese crew. Don't worry about a language barrier. There is none. Crewmen who deal with the passengers, the stateroom and dinning room stewards, the deck and engineroom crew all understand and speak basic

An unexpected nicety, but none-the-less enjoyed, was the unique manner in which the cabin stewards fashioned the extra blanket on each bed. How they did it perhaps only they know, but they were creased and folded in such artistic manners to resemble a blooming flower, a butterfly, and abstract shapes.

A Chinese word to be remembered is heigh-heighni (sounds similar to "shay-shay-nee.") It is pro-nounced as one word. It means "Thank you." Most passengers found many occasions to use the word.

PUNTARENAS, Costa ica — "What's the island over there called?" He had just entered the warm Pacific surf on the beach at Puntarenas. It was still well before noon but the sun was blazing hot.

"BAMBOO screen," he said. "They've set up a bamboo screen to protect the beach area and the sharks can't get through." "Oh," I said.

Nonetheless, much of the thrill of this Pacific dip was gone for me. I'd seen "Jaws" and I'm sure the sharks had, too. I wasn't raised to be an appetizer for some great

My friends splashed merrily in the surf. I assurned a position that was part-crouch, part-pivot, fully prepared to run like hell at the first sign of a dorsal in the breakers. Someone on the beach might have assumed from this rather peculiar posi-tion that I had managed to get my ankles stuck in the sand and was trying to extricate them by performing the first few steps of the hustle.

I was, of course, round-ly jeered by my companions. The next day, however, I pointed out a San Jose newspaper item to them. It was a photo of a school of sharks that had come to within 15 feet of the beach pursuing some snapper just a few miles north of Puntarenas.

Greek Easter a joyous time

Easter in Greece brings out the natural hospitality of the people, and if you are travelling through small towns like Levadia in the hills northwest of Athens, you are likely to be invited to join the feasting and festivities.

The Greek Orthodox Easter falls on April 25 this year, a week after Western Easter. It is the most joyous holiday of the year, when the pascal lamb is roasted on outdoor spits, bottles of homemade wine are passed, and dancers twirl the Syrtaki to the sounds of bouzouki music.

The rejoicing on Easter Sunday is heightened by the solemnity of the preceding days. The deeply-religious Greeks observe Lent with dedication, and on Good Friday conduct a symbolic funeral service.

At midwight on Easter the celebrating begins

At midnight on Easter the celebrating begins with a church service. All the lights in the church are extinguished, when suddenly the door swings open and a priest enters with a lighted candle.

Each member of the congregation lights his candle from the priest's flame, and the group floods out into the balmy night, accompanied by the sounds of churchbells, gire volleys, and fromores.

Shopping in Hong Kong is not the bargain that it used to be, but there still are marvelous savings if you know where to go. A custom-made and lined dress of the finest washable, ultra-suede will cost you around $120 at shops like the Royal. At home, a ready made one would cost double that.

English. The Chinese are wonderfully courteous, however.

You shop by indicating the item that interests you and they respond by writing the price on a piece of paper. Do not try to use American currency, however, or the price may shoot up.

While you are in this neighborhood, incidentally, one of the finest Chinese restaurants in the city is the Kowloon. It is a favorite with British residents, and also not a tourist spot.

Along with Chinese cabbages, plucked ducks and pans full of live carp, there will be stalls in the market with those wonderful mandarin-collared, quilted jackets with frog closings that the Chinese (and Katherine Hepburn) always wear. I bought one of black silk brocade for $5.

JADE MAY BE a better buy in these places where Chinese themselves squat down beside the vender to painstakingly examine each piece than in tourist shops. As you watch them, they judge a piece first for feel, then color, then they hold it up to the sun to appraise its translucency.

If a dragon or other lucky symbol should take shape within the structure of the stone, it becomes more valuable. Because jade is sacred to the Chinese and is worn both as a mark of status and as a talisman, even the poor insist upon quality.

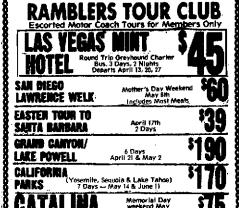

You won't find Imperial jade at a street stall, but you won't find it many other places, either. Imperial jade is exceedingly rare, and equally expen-

As far as is known, jade never was mined in mined in Wyoming and Alaska as well and shipped to Hong Kong for carving. So-called Taiwan jade is not really jade at all and no self-respecting Hong Kong street peddler would hawk it.

OTHER GRAND bargains include custom-made shoes, provided they are made at the right places. In the past, I've had soles fall of some Hong Kong shoes in the rain. Mayer's in the Mandarin Hotel is reliable, as is Ceilia Chien's in the Peninsula Hotel.

Learn Nature's Weight Loss Secret Of Glandular Control

How to Command your Pituitary Gland to order up to 756 times its own weight in fat to leave your body

By Joan Woodward

se your head! Millions of overweight Americans could have slimmed down a long time ago by doing just that. For years, people with weight problems have desperately searched for ways to shed pounds. Ironically, even as they frantically searched, they were carrying the perfect weight loss secret right in their own head - their Pituitary Gland.

Allow me to explain. By learning Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you can command your pituitary gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator) to order up to 1 pound of fat to leave your body every day. You'll continue to pounds until you reach your ideal weight -and then stay fat free forever. This weight loss secret works for everyone, whether 5 lbs, or 105 lbs. overweight.

But, best of all, you lose weight while eating the fonds you love. In fact, you must eat to lose weight. That's the key to this weight loss secret.

As a reporter for the newsletter "Total Fitness Today", my job is to check out weight loss plans being developed across the country. Since I machine to a fat evacuating system. Your Pituitary Gland will work safely and naturally to evacuate fat 24 hours a day -- even while you sleep. Q. If these 'trigger' foods are in everyone's diet, why isn't my Pituitary Gland evacuating fat? A. Unfortunately, even if your diet consists of 95% 'trigger' foods, it only takes 5% 'blocker' foods to prevent your Pituitary Gland from evacuating lat.

Q. How can I trigger my Pituitary Gland?

A. Not by willpower, not by concentration, not with exercise, but by eating. Only by eating 'trigger' foods and avoiding 'blocker' foods can you trigger your Pituitary Gland to evacuate fat. Remember, the Weight Loss Secret is a nutrition plan, not a diet.

Q. What are these 'trigger' foods, and how much can I eat?

A. These 'trigger' foods are the every day foods you love: juicy sirloin steaks, hearty helpings of beef stroganoff, spicy ham, double cheeseburgers, meatloaf, barbecued chicken, omelets, vegetables; like broccoli smothered with hollandaise sauce, cantaloupes, fruit coektails - even desserts like strawberries with whipped cream, pumpkin to illness. Second, with most methods, the results, if any, come too slowly. So most people lose hope and quit.

Q. You're right about why they fail. I know, because I've tried them all, without success. But, why does glandular control work? A. Again, two reasons. As I said, people are overweight because they love to eat. With Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control. you must eat to lose weight. Therefore, overweight people will use it. It's as simple as that. The Weight Loss Secret has points to the gland that will make you thin. Your pituitary gland, that. The Weight Loss Secret has points to the gland that will make you thin. Your pituitary gland, mome of the drawbacks of other pound of fat (756 x 1/60th of an ounce = one lb.) to leave your methods. There's no starvation, everyone—5 lbs. or 105 lbs. overweight can learn nature's weight no willpower, no horing exercises, no health ruining diet pills, no weird fad dieting. It doesn't leave through by losing as much as 14 lbs, in two weeks.

healthier and more vibrant than before. Q. You said there are two reasons why this secret Glandular Control, you will: works. What's the second reason?

A. Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control always succeeds because it gives fast, steady and permanent results. You start tosing weight the first day. You can lose up to 14 lbs. in two weeks. With these kind of results, rather than losing hope and quitting, you will be encouraged to continue and lose even more. You will reach your ideal

I set up an appointment with Robert Ridgefield, the discoverer of Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control. I started with lough

HOW DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. How does the secret work?

A. The secret works by making food your ally instead of your enemy. There are two types of food in everyone's daily diet - 'triggers' and 'blockers'. By eating 'trigger' foods, you trigger or turn on your Pituitary Gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator). Once triggered, your Pituitary Gland secretes a fat evacuating chemical fluid. and transforms your body from a fat producing ing. Diet pills leave you weak, nervous and prone nie, chocolate pudding, ice cream, and your favorite wines, liquors-even beer! You need not drastically after your eating habits to get rid of the 'blocker' foods, because they don't make up that big a part of your diet

WHY DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. You've told me how it works, but all weight loss methods look good on paper - they just don't work in real life. Why is this one different? A. In order to understand why the secret works, you must first know why other methods fail. They fail for two reasons. First, other methods work against human nature, and therefore are doomed to failure from the start. People with weight problems obviously love to eat. Starvation is sheer torture. No one in their right mind is going to tarture themselves for very long. This fluid is transported throughout your body Strenuous exercise is difficult, worklike, and bor-

At the end of our conversation, I asked Mr. Ridgefield if I could talk with people who had successfully used the secret. He did better. He introduced me to four people who were going to start the weight loss secret the following Monday, and asked me if I would like to join them.

it's 100% safe.

Q. One last question. You and ordered a small press run to be printed. This book is not available in any bookstore anywhere in the world. But, you can learn the secret right now by ordering the book direct by mail.

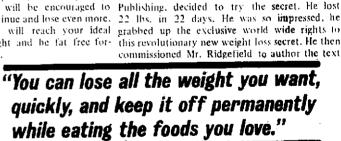

HOW CAN YOU LEARN THE SECRET?

If you wish to learn Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, simply do this: Write "Weight Loss Secret" and your name and address on a piece of paper and send it along with $6.95 in cash, check or money order. (Make checks payable to Consumer Publishing.) If you have Master Charge, Bank Americard, or American Express, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. name of card B. credit card number C. card expiration date.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

NBC serves up Big Mac with different dressing

By BOB MARTIN TV-Radio Editor

What's a good of West Texas country boy like Mac Davis doing all dolled up in

Why, he's back on television with his third variety series in less than two years on NBC, and I reckon the network bigwigs are making a play for the city stickers this time.

In his two earlier series — which aired for eight weeks in the summer of 1974 and from December 1974 to May 1975 Mac had the rhinestone cowboy look to go with his soft-country, soft-rock singing style.

This time, NBC is serving up a Big Mac with a different dressing.

"Are you trying to change your image?" I asked the popular singer-song-writer at lunch the other day at Chadney's restaurant, across the street from NBC Studios in Burbank.

"It's the same old me underneath," replied Mac. "The same thing's gonna come out, no matter how they dress me. But I dressed up for an NBC special I did last Thanksgiving (Liza Minnelli was a guest), and it worked out pretty well. Besides, I've lost 20 pounds and I can fit into a suit better now than I used to.

The curly-haired Texan did point out, though, that in the new series he's doing a wider variety of musical numbers and not depending solely on his own compositions. In his first, eight-week series, he sang nothing but his own songs.

His latest "Mac Davis Show" series made its bow on Thursday night, March 18, replacing "The Cop and the Kid" and "Grady." It airs from 8 to 9 Thursdays on Channel 4, but will be preempted this week by a Hallmark Hall of Fame drama special, "Truman at Potsdam."

IT WAS rehearsal day when I interviewed Mac, and he was dressed for comfort. He had on a T-shirt with the word POLAND across the front, and I asked if there were any significance to it.
"No, I'm just sort of a T-shirt freak

— I collect T-shirts," he said, adding, "I must have 250 of 'em. I got this one when the Polish jokes were so popular, and it sure cut down on the Polish jokes I heard.'

As a TV host, Davis has an easy, relaxed manner, much like Bing Crosby, Perry Como and Dean Martin. Only, Mac's charm comes with a Texas drawl. His appeal cuts through the generation gap, and he has fans of all age levels.

In all of his series, Mac has had segments in which he goes into the audience and improvises brief songs on the spur of the moment from titles suggested by fans. My wife, who fails to appreciate how bright most Texans are, thinks he couldn't possibly do this without advance notice, and she made me promise to get to the bottom of the trick.

So I asked Mac about it, and he said:

"Just give me a title."
"Fort Worth," said I, putting in a plug for my old hometown.
Well, quicker than you can say armadillo from Amarillo, the Lubbock native sang me some short, rhyming lyrics that had to do with "place of birth" and "best on earth," and the song was as good as some of the ones he does on the air

It was enough to convince me he does them on the spur of the moment, but, of course, I can't speak for my wife.

Davis did point out, however, that "we tape about 10 of them at a session and might just use the three best."

THE PERSONABLE performer hit the bigtime as a songwriter before he did as a singer. He was turning out songs for stars like Elvis Presley, Glen Campbell; Lou Rawls and Bobby Goldsboro before he got a hit recording of his own

Mac's first self-recorded hit, "Baby Don't Get Hooked on Me," earned him a

gold record and was the most-performed song of 1972. Because of the lyrics, some song of 1972. Because of the lyrics, some critics labeled him a male chauvinist.

He did a concert tour of some 50 cities with Helen Reddy, who had hit it big with "I Am Woman," and he says the "male chauvinist pig' and the "woman's libber" got along fine.

His more than 250 published songs include "I Believe in Music" (recorded by more than 50 singers), "Stop and Smell the Roses," "One Hell of a Woman" ("I made it up to the Women's Libbers"), "In the Ghetto," "Friend, Lover, Woman, Wife," "Watching Scotty Grow," "Something's Burning" and "You're Good for Me." "You're Good for Me.

DAVIS, 34, spent the first 15 years of his life in Lubbock, and by the time he left for Atlanta he already had a high school diploma.

"I started to school at 5 and then I skipped a grade," he told me. "I made straight-A's through the seventh or eighth grade, then I got mixed up with a bunch of tough kids and almost didn't gradu-

He sang in his church choir as a youngster, with prodding from his parents, but didn't do much musically until after moving to Atlanta. He attended Emory University in Atlanta one year, "but I flunked out — I was majoring in beer and rock 'n' roll."

Mac learned to play the guitar and bongo drums and helped form a rock 'n' roll band that became very popular with the young people in Atlanta. He also sang with the group and started writing songs.

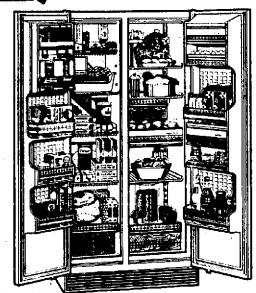

For five years, he plugged other writers' songs as a promotion man for record companies in the South, and then did the same for Metric Music, a Liberty subsidiary, in Hollywood. Then his own tunes began to sell — my first big break was selling one to Elvis Presley" — and eventually be began recording his own numbers.

His current series is scheduled for 10 weeks. Does he hope for another one in

"I'd rather do four specials a year, but I'll go along with whatever NBC wants," he replied. Is he under contract to NBC? "No, but they've been good to me, and I feel I owe it to 'em to do what they want me to do."

Now, you don't hear that kind of talk often from TV stars. Must be Mac's Texas upbringing.

Television's Cleaver no meathead

By GEORGE MAKSIAN New York News

NEW YORK — He's 6-foot-2, weighs 195 pounds and looks like a grown up Spanky McFarland from the old Our Gang come-

He has a pudgy face that even he admits looks good behind food ("That's why I'm used on so many commercials," he says). And he has a small squeaky voice reminiscent of the old Gomer Pyle drawl, only with more of a Texas twang. Put them all together and out comes Rick Hurst, or better known to TV viewers as Cleaver, the eternal optimist on ABC's "On the Rocks," a situation comedy about a bunch of prison inmates, which airs on Monday nights. (It's preempted this week.)

THE FIRST question that pops up in meeting the Texas-born actor is what is a pessycat like Cleaver doing in the pokey.

"It's a gross miscar-riage of justice!" declared Hurst, giggling like a school child. "But seriously," he added, "my crime has never been specified in the storyline. It's left to the viewers' imagination. The only thing certain is that it's a crime against property, as opposed to a crime against a person a small felony, like stealing a dog.

"But you must realize that Alamesa is a minimum security institution. We have no muggers, no rapists, no murderers. It's a light prison. And these prisons really exist. They have one in Danbury, Conn., that is even lighter than ours.

"ON THE ROCKS" is based on a British series, "Porridge," which Hurst claims is one of the top shows in Britain, "On The Rocks" made its bow last fall as a Thursday entry, but was recently moved to Mondays.

Hurst claims that his first inclination to become a member of the performing arts was when, at an early age, he and a friend

utilized movie theaters on Saturday mornings for practicing stunts --- among them falling down the carpeted stairs of the balcomy whenever gun shots were heard from the screen.

He got his professional training as a member of the Second City comedy group and now has put an act together with Tom Poston, his co-star in "On the Rocks."

Said Hurst: "We play off the Cleaver character and Tom is the same gentle, kind-hearted guard that he plays in the series. So far, the act has been well received.

"PEOPLE often ask me what's funny about life in a prison. Well, some of the best comedy often comes from a trapped situation, whether it involves a job, a marriage, or a family. Archie Bunker in 'All in the Family' is certainly a trapped individual with his dinghat wife and meathead son-in-law.

"In 'On the Rocks' we have the ultimate trap! Iron bars and a brick wall. Yet, within it people are still people, scheming, arguing, sometimes helping each other, like the time Fuentes (Jose Perez) helped me get a compassionate furlough to visit my

"Home leaves have been tried by real prisons, but they've come up against a lot of resistance. think it was Nathaniel Hawthorne who said back in 1894 that prison is society's black flower, and they don't want to look at it. Hopefully, our series will bring a public awareness to conditions in prison today."

HURST IS not the dumb Cleaver character be plays in the series, who always seems to be on Rocky Mountain time (the actor has a master's in acting from Ohio State). He'll prove his intellectual prowess when he appears on ABC's "$20,000 Pyra-mid" daytime game show the week of April 5.

"I don't know whether they'll ever invite me back on the show," he said of his taped appearance. "I gave away more money than they dreamed - $40,-000. Cleaver may be a dummy, but I'm not."

GOD'S SCHEME OF REDEMPTION NO. 13

In our article on March 21st, we pointed out that the only way to have a New Testament church was to build it according to the apostolic model. Also, we learned from the Bible that every local congregation of the people of God during the days of the apostles had elders, deacons, and members, according to Phil. 1:1. Five Items of Worship

In the New Testament there were five items of worship that were performed by the early Christians, Four of the live are listed in one verse of scripture. In Acts 2:42, "And they continued stead-fastly in the apostles' doctrine, and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers." Each one of these form practiced by the early church. And there is another that is commanded in Eph. 5:19 and Cal. 3:16. The early Christians "sang and made melody in their hearts unto the Lord." So, singing was also a part of their practice when they came together to worship.

in order for us to have a congregation of people that is following the teachings of the New Testament model, we must have people who have obeyed the Lard according to the pattern set forth in the God's Word in becoming Christians. In the days of the oposites, people heard the Word, believed the Word, repented of their sins, and were baptized for the remission of sins. Then these baptized believers met to worship God, and, if men were qualified, ordained elders and deacons in every congregation. Then when they met, they performed the five acts of worship listed above.

Just here we should ask some questions. Did you, and those with whom you meet, do what the early Christians had to do in becoming Christians? Do you have elders (plural) and deacons (plural) in the congregation where you worship? When you meet on the 1st day of the week to worship God, do you perform the five acts of worship that the early Christians performed each first day of the week? If you do not, how can you say that you are a New Testoment church according to the apostolic model? The truth is, you can't. FREE BOOKLET

Q. In your opinion, what is the real reason Richard Nixon went to the People's Republic of China in February, 1976? Was he on a secret mission for Henry Kissinger?—O.T., San Diego, Cal.

A. Personal gratification. Nixon was on no secret mission for anyone.

Q. Whatever became of Dovie Beams, who was once a Hollywood starlet and former mistress of dictator Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines?—Angel Noble, East St. Louis, Ill.

A. Dovie Beams, ex-mistress of Ferdinand Marcos, has quietly moved her tent from Beverly Hills, Cal., to a residence unknown at this writing.

Q. Rudolph Hess, 84, Adolf Hitler's deputy, is the only prisoner in West Berlin's Spandau jail. The British, the Americans, and the French are prepared to parole him. Why won't the Russians agree?—Helen McBride, Cambridge, Mass.

A. One possible reason is that Hess was privy to the Molotov-Ribbentrop deal in which Stalin foolishly gave Hitler an OK to attack Western Europe. The story is that if the Russians free Hess he will reveal information the Soviets prefer to keep imprisoned.

Q. Is there any chance that Gov. John Connally of Texas will run for the Presidency of the U.S.?—Helen Sterling, Dallas, Tex.

A. Connally is a siy, 59-year-old fox who should never be counted out of any political bout until the last bell has rung.

Q. Who said,"Meddling with another man's folly is always thankless work"?—Alexander Carver, Freeport, N.Y.

A. British writer Rudyard Kipling.

Q. Is it true that Jimmy Connors, the young tennis player, earned more than $600,000 in 1975?—Patricia Massey, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A. True.

Q. Where may I obtain documentary evidence on how strongly the late President Truman disliked I. Edgar Hoover and the FBI?—L. T., Somerville, Mass.

Edgar Hoover and the HBIF—L. I., Somerville, Mass.,
A. In your own hometown of Somerville, Mass., there is a Harvard Law School student, Peter H. Irons, of 55 Davis Square, who researched the subject in the Truman Library in Independence, Mo., for his Ph.D. dissertation in political science. Mr. Irons writes: "According to Clifford's handwritten notes [Clark Clifford was Truman's White House counsel]
... Truman said he was 'very strongly anti-FBI' and wanted to be sure to 'hold the FBI down' ..." Mr.
Irons also refers to the dissertation—"America's Cold War Crusade: Domestic Politics and Foreign Policy, 1942-1948," Boston University, 1973, P. 232, reference, "Memo of May 2, 1947, George Elsey Papers, Box 69, Truman Library."

Q. I see that Gregory Peck has been signed to star as Gen. Douglas MacArthur in "MacArthur." I know Peck will make a very good screen MacArthur, but exactly what role did Peck play in World War II?— F. L. L., La Jolla, Cal.

A. Peck hurt his back taking dancing lessons in New York City during the 1940's, was therefore declared 4F and did not serve in World War II.

Q. Which comedian said of Patricia Hearst, "If she wanted to stay lost, she should have hired my agent"?
—Nale Long, New York City.

A. That gag belongs to comic Pat Buttram.

Q. Does former CBS News White House correspondent Dan Rather wear a toupee?—Marie V. D'E., Canaan, Conn.

A. He does not.

Q. Is there any chance of Jackie Onassis and her sister Lee Radziwill finding new husbands? I mean, do they have anyone waiting in the wings?—Linda Chambers, Winston Salem, N.C.

A. Not at this writing. Jackie Onassis has become an editor for Viking Press, and Lee Radziwill has opened an interior decorating business. Both women at this point in their lives seem more career- than matrimony-minded.

BOUVIER SISTERS: JACKIE ONASSIS AND LEE RADZIWILL

Q. The movie "Gable and Lombard"—who is responsible for laying that egg?—T.R., Jacksonville, Fla. A. Universal Studios and director Sidney Furie.

Q. How much does the Saturday Evening Post pay Julie Nixon Eisenhower?—P.R., Indianapolis, Ind.
A. The Post once paid her $25,000 a year, but Julie has begun a new, less-binding relationship with that organization.

Q. Is it a fact that the City of New York has been overrun by Puerto Ricans?—Dan Yukevich, Boston.

A. Approximately one million Puerto Ricans, representing one-eighth of the city's population, reside in New York City. They comprise 30 to 50 percent of the city's welfare recipients.

Q. Does Muhammad Ali have any intention of divorcing his wife to marry his girlfriend Veronica Porche? I understand Veronica's new Rolls-Royce is a pre-nuptial gift from Ali. True?—Cora Dubois, Newark, N.J.

A. Muhammad Ali has no intention at this time of divorcing his current wife. Veronica's Rolls-Royce is reportedly a thank-you gift from Ali.

Goldie Hawn as a dancehall girl in her latest film, "The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox," for which she's getting $350,000 plus 7½ percent of the profits. A former go-go dancer, she has had to climb a rocky road to make it to the top.

Goldie Hawn-What Price Stardom?

by Lloyd Shearer

ix years ago 1 was lunching in a British film studio with a sparkling blonde actress of 24 — Goldie Hawn of Takoma Park, Md.

Goldie had won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actress in her first film, Cactus Flower. She had performed beautifully against such veterans as Ingrid Bergman and Walter Matthau.

She was fey, bright, smiling, enthusiastic and so happy to be starring opposite Peter Sellers in a comedy, There's a Girl in My Soup.

"I know it sounds naive," she admitted, knifing into her steak, "but right now the whole world seems good, golden, and glorious to me. I am really the luckiest broad alive.

"Do you know what I used to be? A go-go dancer—in New York City yet. To keep some skin around my bones I had this agent. He used to book me into bars, joints, clubs for whatever he could get—10, 15 dollars a night.

"I remember this one night—during my starvation period. He booked me into an after-hours joint in New Jersey. I had just enough money to take the bus. When I got there I found it was the worst bar you could imagine—dark, sleazy, dirty. It had one barmaid, and right off the bat the owner, who was drunk, tried to make me.

"There were four customers sitting out front, and when they saw me, they began to chant, 'Make her dance. Make her dance.' So I climbed up on this wobbly table. Someone put a dime in the jukebox—that was the kind of joint it was—and I began to dance. And then it happened.

'A den of perverts'

"One of the customers, sitting a few yards in front of me, unzipped his zipper. And he began to expose himself. I kept looking away. The other guys were howling. I was in a den of pervers. I thought I was going to blow my mind. I danced faster and faster. I was supposed to get $25 for the night. To hell with it," I said.

"I was so frightened I ran out of the place. I didn't even have money for bus fare. That night I hitched a ride with a truck driver back to the city."

"And now," she said, her large, green eyes darting from side to side, "I'm here, living it up like a full-fledged movie star. Do you think this sort of luck, this kind of happiness, can last?"

I was sure it wouldn't, but I answered with, "Do you?"

"I know I look like a dumb blonde," Goldie Jeanne Hawn conceded. "People think I'm exactly like the zany I played on Laugh-In [a popular TV program of the period, in which Goldie enacted the spouter of uproarious malapropisms]. But I've got a pretty good head on my shoulders. And a very good husband and a very good manager to look after me."

Comes 1976

A few weeks ago 1 lunched with Goldie Hawn again. She had recently finished The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox, her eighth film, which is scheduled to open throughout the country this week.

She is 30 and subdued, and the whole world no longer seems "good, golden, and glorious" to her. Six years in Hollywood have taken their toll.

"I've just been divorced from Gus [Trikonis]," she explained. "I had to pay him $75,000. I was so surprised that he would ask for that sort of settlement. We'd been married since 1969, and he always played the strong, solid Greek. We had a lot of separations, but when we were together, he'd never let me buy him anything. He was so proud. My acting career was much more lucrative than his directing career. He was aware of that, and he didn't want to be dependent on his wife. And I was so proud of his pride. But when it finally came to a showdown, he wanted $75,-000. I gave it to him.

"And my manager, Art Simon, the guy who discovered me when I was dancing in the chorus of the Andy Griffith TV show—he sued me for $6 million. How do you like that? Six million dollars, after years of my paying him more than 20 percent—I think it was 25 percent—commission on my earnings. He sued me. And the lawyers—the fees were enormous, so enormous, and it seemed to be I would have to spend the rest of my life in court; so I settled for a small fortune.

"I don't know what it is about this business. People become so possessive. I used to say to Art, 'Go out and get some other job besides managing me. I don't want my life to become your life. I want, I must have some control of myself.'

Two with Warren Beatty

While her marriage and friendships in Hollywood foundered, Goldie Hawn's film career burgeoned. So, too, did her reputation as a talented, perceptive, intelligent, sensitive actress.

After finishing There's a Girl in My Soup with Peter Sellers, she starred opposite Warren Beatty in $. Her fourth film, Butterflies Are Free, in which she played the girlfriend of a blind young man, expanded her range as a dramatic and romantic actress. She followed these with The Sugarland Express, The Girl From Petrovka, and Shampoo, in which she again worked with Warren Beatty, a bedeviled Don Juan of whom she says kindly, "Warren loves women, and women return the compliment."

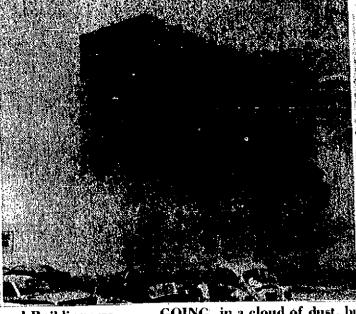

Goldie's latest motion picture, The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox, is a comedy set in the wicked Old West. In this one Goldie sings and dances, plays a shady dancehall girl who is willing under sufficient monetary incentive to pull a few extracurricular tricks after the cuttain comes down.

Mel Frank, a former Bop Hope gagwriter turned director, says of Goldie: "She's a well-trained dancer so she dances splendidly. As a singer I think she compares with Streisand. As a comedienne she's as good as anyone in the business. If I could, I'd sign her for my next 10 pictures. She has a very subtle but powerful sex quotient, and she proves it in The Duchess."

Goldie Hawn has reached that financial pinnacle in Hollywood where she not only gets a hefty $350,000 and upper film, but also a percentage of the profits. For The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox she is guaranteed $350,000 and 7½ percent of the profits. For other films she has gotten as high as 10 percent of the profits.

"Money," she says, "doesn't mean all that much to me. I come from a happy family, and I'd like to have one myself. I was in analysis for five or six years, trying to keep my feet on the ground,

State battling growth problems

By MIKE SILVERMAN

The name was coined to de-scribe a mythical island paradise of beautiful women and streets paved with gold. Sixteenth century explorers, mistaking Mexico's western peninsula for an island, called it California and extended the title to the land further north.

Since the Gold Rush three centuries later, California has been a magnet for Americans hoping for a better life—and a place where

"More than 1,000 people are entering California every 24 hours entering Camornia every 24 noors in the greatest mass migration in the history of the world! ... Now the state is husbanding its once abundant natural resources and cannot provide jobs for nearly 10 per cent of its people.

The massive wave of Americans came to California starting with World War II—lifting the repulation from 2 million in 1940 to population from 7 million in 1940 to 20 million by 1970.

They made California the most populous and wealthlest state, with a median family income last year of more than $15,000, and a gross product of more than $160 billion— higher than all but five countries in the world. Yet by the time the younger ret by the time the younger Brown was elected governor in 1974, his father's "mass migration" had shrunk from 300,000 to 100,000 a year. And 80 per cent of today's immigrants come from other countries with living standards far below the U.S. level.

Americans have stopped coming here partly because of economic problems—especially in the aerospace industry—and partly because the flood of new residents since World War II destroyed some of the part activities that attracted them very qualities that attracted them

Ironically, Californians in the mid-1970s must solve problems created by rapid population growth at the same time that the decline in economic growth is causing new troubles, chiefly unemployment and more people on welfare.

The countdown had started. Mel Cotter, an explosives techni-cian with X-Demex Corp. of Dublin, Calif. was poised to press the two detonator buttons that would blow the 11-story structure to bits.

Teamsters win, go back to work

CHICAGO-The first nationwide trucking strike in U.S. history was ended Saturday with a tenta-tive agreement between officials of the Teamsters Union and the largest group of trucker employers.

Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons said all pickets were to withdraw immediately and all striking drivers were to report to work as soon as possible.

The 440,000 drivers won major oncessions, including wage increases totaling $1.65 an hour over the next three years and the promise of unlimited cost-of-living raises.

THE SETTLEMENT was announced by Labor Secretary W. J. Usery, who called it "in the best osery, who caned in the best interests of the nation, the best interests of the Teamsters and the best interests of the industry."

Usery declined to call the proposed contract inflationary, but his hesitation was not shared by John Murphy, chairman of Galeway Murphy, chairman of Gateway Transportation Co. and a member of the negotiating team for Truck-ing Employers, Inc. (TEI), the largest of the trucking industry groups and the last to agree to the proposed contract.

"Any increase will be inflationary," Murphy said. "It will cost more to operate than it did yesterday."

Despite the end of the three-day strike, the Associated Press reported, some auto plants may be shut early this week because of a shortage of parts created by the halt in deliveries.

THE TERMS of the settlement were viewed as a major victory for Fitzsimmons, bolstering his leadership and bargaining reputation by meeting virtually all his contract demands.

The wage increases average roughly the 30 per cent Fitzsimmons had sought, with the firstyear package estimated at 10 per cent

But the Teamster president, up for reelection in June, passed up public chances to boast, saying mly, "We have achieved success for our membership."

Ratification of the proposed contract will be recommended unanimously by Teamster leadership. Members will vote by mail ballots under the supervision of Usery's Labor Department.

Most Teamster leaders dis-counted the impact of union dissi-dents who might challenge the con-Negotiations were concluded in Industry officials said they will continue to seek legislation that would enable them to increase truck sizes and to use twin (tandem) trailers in every state to help them increase productivity and avoid having to pass along all the larger labor costs to shippers. TRUCKERS' UNION and industry officials in Chicago, where drivers were the only major exception to the nationwide strike, said contracts would be signed here matching the national agreement.

Under the tentative agreement, 65 cents of the hourly wage increase would take effect immediately. Hourly pay has ranged from $7.18 to $7.33.

learning how to cope with success, which is much harder to cope with than failure. When you're a failure, no one wants a piece of you. And I'm happy to say that I no longer need the help of an analyst. Some time ago, my analyst said to me—he's a very decent guy, not your regular run of Hollywood analyst—he said to me, 'Goldie, you don't need me any longer. You're all right. You know what you are, who you are.' And I think I do. I'm vulnerable but I'm also strong. I think that's an inheritance from my mother, She's a strong woman, too."

Goldie Jeanne Hawn was born in Washington, D.C., on Nov. 21, 1945, to Laura and Edward Rutledge Hawn. "My Mom's a Jew from Pittsburgh, my Dad's a WASP from Arkansas, and I'm lefthanded."

Goldie and her sister Patty, 8 years older, were reared in Takoma Park, Md. The Hawns ran a gift and jewelry shop, and at night Ed Hawn, a professional musician, earned extra money by playing the violin, saxophone, and clarinet with society and symphony bands.

"I had a very happy childhood," Goldie recalls. "I started taking dance lessons at 3. My father gave me voice lessons at 10. There was never any conflict or competition or opposition. When I decided to go into show business, my parents never objected."

Off to New York

After Goldie was graduated from Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring, Md., she entered American University in Washington, D.C., studied drama for 18 months, then made the big break for New York. There she danced in a variety of chorus lines, survived as a go-go dancer, subsequently reached Las Vegas where on many occasions she was propositioned to "sleep her way to success." turnal offers Goldie had one response: "If I have to make it that way, I'm sorry, but the answer is no."

Goldie chose "the hard way." She journeyed to Los Angeles where she got a job as a dancer on the Andy Griffith TV show. Art Simon, an agent then with the William Morris Office, watched her.

"I went backstage after the program," Simon recalls, "and gave her my card. I asked her if she did anything else besides dance. She thought I was propositioning her, giving her the same routine she had heard hundreds of times before in Las Vegas. She refused to phone me, so I phoned her. I told her I was a legitimate agent, that my intentions were strictly honorable. All I wanted to do for her was to get her work. I convinced her, and she came in to see me. A week later I had her working in Good Morning World, A TV series.

"When that program folded, I booked her into Laugh-In, run by Rowan and Martin. She was an almost instantaneous success. Mike Frankovich signed her for Cactus Flower and two more pictures, and she was on her way."

A year before she really hit it big, Goldie married Gus Trikonis, an actor and director whom she met when both were working in the road show of Guys and Dolls. They were married in May, 1969, diverced in December, 1975. "With some men in my life," she says, "I've known disillusionment."

Of her relationship with Art Simon, Goldie says: "It was one of those things where I was young; I had no great drive except to be a dancer. Art saw something else in me. He pushed me, he believed in me. It's the same old Hollywood story that occurs so frequently between manager and artist. I started to grow up, to become a little wiser. I had my own opinion on what things I should and shouldn't do, and, like many managers, Art started playing the artist role himself. He became dominant, sort of omnipotent.

'I'd had enough'

"Art is only 37, I think. We were both growing up at the same time-only in different directions. I found some of his maneuvers, his impingement on my personal life, too strong. We had a seven-year contract, and I didn't mind paying him 25 percent commission, because he relieved me of a lot of burdens. But after five and a half years of his management and supervision, I'd had enough. I was willing to pay him on the balance. But he sued me, as I've told you, for $6 million. We settled, and Art will get percentages of my percentages for years to come. Which is OK with me. I've got another agent, Stan Kamen of the William Morris Office. I've got Eddie Traubner as a business manager; gradually I've learned about putting my financial house in order.

"I bear Art Simon no ill will. I wish him well, and I'm thankful that he's out of my life."

Of her ex-husband, Gus Trikonis, Goldie explains, "I honestly thought the marriage would last. He's 8 years older, and I know about the age-differential. But I relied upon him as a man of fortitude, as a man who would not let success, my success and his striving for success, break us up. We tried so hard to make the marriage last. But people don't change. The trunk of your tree remains basically the same.

Still resents paying

"Gus is Greek. He was the father of his family for many years. He couldn't play second fiddle. My career progressed faster than his. Now he's coming along nicely, directing films for Roger Corman. But I'm not here to promote Gus. He took $75,000 from me in the divorce settlement, $75,000 I don't feel he deserved. And I still resent it."

Fortunately for Goldie, she is willing to try marriage again, this time to Bill Hudson, 26-year-old leader of the Hudson Brothers, a trio of soft rock-androllers.

"I met Bill on an airplane," she explains, "from New York to Los Angeles. He asked me out for dinner, and I said no, I didn't want to go out to dinner. But he persisted. 'Listen,' he said, 'we have to eat, so when we get to L.A., let's each of us get into our separate cars, and I'll meet you for dinner at any restaurant you say.' I knew then he was a practical man, so that's exactly what we did. And we've been going together ever since. He's younger than I am, but we hope to get married in July.

Eyes on Vermont

"He's a very special man, a real family man, and I'm a real frustrated family woman. He's never been married, and we're going to try it. We're building a house in Malibu, but the trio travels a lot, and I'm going to travel with them. They're going to Japan, and I will, too. Luckily I love to travel.

"Another thing, this town has been very good to me in many ways, material ways. I have a house in Bel Air and a new Mercedes, but Bill and I aren't crazy about this town. We want a house in Vermont, a farm with people working it.

"What I've learned in the past six years," Goldie Hawn declares, "is a little wisdom. Success and stardom are great. They provide you with a maximum of comforts and a minimum of privacy. But if Bill Hudson makes me take a choice—not that he ever would—between marriage and a career, I'd choose marriage, a successful marriage. Because I've already had a successful career. I mean I'm still having it. But you know, without someone to love and someone to love you—it's not all that hot."

Goldie with actor-director Gus Trikonis shortly after their marriage in 1969. Newly divorced, Goldie says resentfully that she had to pay Trikonis a hefty settlement.

ne of the most controversial weapons to come out of the Pentagon laboratories in recent years is a new nuclear missile small enough to be launched just about anywhere, powerful enough to fly 2000 miles or more, and accurate enough to strike within 100 feet of its target.

Experts say the weapon—called the cruise missile—could drastically alter the conduct of warfare. For that reason a number of officials in Washington and Moscow think that it should not be built. Not unexpectedly, the military disagrees.

Although neither the United States nor the Soviet Union has started mass-producing long-range cruise missiles, both sides are working on them. The United States, which has a big lead in cruise missile technology, is spending about $150 million a year to develop the new weapons.

The idea of cruise missiles is not new. Basically, a cruise missile is a jet plane without a pilot and with a bomb in its nose. The German V-1 "buzz bomb" from World War II was the first cruise missile. In the mid-1950's the U.S. Air Force had a cruise missile called the Snark and the Navy had the Regulus.

But both cruise missiles had some substantial disadvantages: they were slow, vulnerable to anti-aircraft fire, and, most importantly, over long distances they were very inaccurate.

Consequently, by 1957, when the Air Force developed intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's), it got rid of the Snark. The Navy dilkewise with Regulus when it launched its ballistic-missile-firing Polaris submarines. The cruise missile was obsolete.

Smaller and better

But technology does not stand still. Advances in propulsion, warhead design and guidance systems—largely due to the "miniaturization" of electronics—have made the generals and admirals take a new look at cruise missiles. And what they see is not the large, inefficient and inaccurate weapon of the 1950's. The new cruise missile, besides being able to travel several thousand miles and land within 100 feet of its target, could carry small hydrogen bombs with as much as 200 kilotons of explosive power. (The bomb that destroyed Hiroshima was less than 20 kilotons.)

The difference in size between the old and new cruise missiles is striking. The old Snark, for example, was 67 feet long, five feet in diameter, and had a wingspan of 42 feet. The new cruise missiles are about 14 feet long and only 21 inches in diameter.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has expressed concern that the U.S. Senate's increased power to limit executive action by President Ford's administration may endanger the East-West balance of power. In an interview with the magazine Der Spiegel, Schmidt said-Ford's rejertion of the label "detente" has not changed his rolling of relaying tensions with policy of relaxing tensions with the Soviet bloc.

What one must register, fol-lowing Vietnam and Watergate, is a limitation by the Senate of the White House and State De-partment ability to act in foreign-policy matters," Schmidt said.

"I have understanding for this pendulum swing, but I do not see it without concern. The moment the balance of power were to be shifted decisively, or even an appearance of this were to be created, one of ee most important preconditions for relaxation of East-West tensions would fall away."

Sad childhood

A former White House aide says Lyndon B. Johnson's bitter-ly unhappy childhood molded the behavior patterns he exhibited after he became an adult.

Writing in the May issue of McCall's magazine, Doris Kearns said her talks with the late president revealed a child-hood of love given and taken away which affected nearly all his relationships as an adult.

She said that Johnson's mother was alternately cold and lov-ing to her son. She quoted LBJ as saying his mother would sometimes "hug me so hard I thought I would be strangled to death."

He added, however, that when sations with Johnson came at a time when he was "crumpled, ragged and defenseless."

The cross-country chase began after Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, alighted from the carriage he was to drive in a contest at Windsor Great Park, near the royal fami-ly's Windsor Castle 30 miles west of London.

"The horses started to amble away, then all of a sudden they started to gallop," one of the park staff said. "Everyone joined in the chase, Prince Philip included."

The horses stopped of their own accord about two miles away, and the carriage competition resumed. The prince came

Luce's disclosure to two visit-

By JOHN CREWDSON New York Times Service

WASHINGTON - Justice Department lawyers, stung by the belated dis-covery that FBI agents committed 92 burglaries of the New York City offices of the Socialist Workers' Party, will take steps to find out why the Federal Bureau of Investigation failed to produce the information sooner, a well-placed department source said., FBI documents describing the burglaries, which occurred between 1960 and 1966, were provided to the party, which made them public, by the Justice De-partment last week under the discovery provisions of a civil lawsuit brought against the government by the SWP.

Department sources said later that its lawyers defending the government in that case were not in-formed of the existence of the documents, which in-cluded descriptions of the SWP files photographed by FBI entry teams, until the day before they were said, other Justice Depart-ment lawyers in Washington conducting a general investigation of burglaries by FBI agents were not aware that the documents had been found until they saw news accounts of their discovery last week.

The sources said the FBI had previously made known to the Justice Department the recollections of some of its longtime agents that the SWP, headquartered in New York City, had been the target of an undetermined number of break-ins. But Justice lawyers had no idea of the timing or scope of the SWP burglaries, which came on an average of once every three weeks and produced some 10,000 separate photographs, until the documents containing ac-counts of those operations were discovered in the FBI's New York City field office.

The department's Civil Rights Division, which had been investigating all known FBI burglaries be-tween 1966 and 1968, is now considering expand-ing its probe to include the pre-1966 SWP burglaries, an official thora sold

Ancient biplane being restored

Douglas M2 to highlight Western's 50th anniversary

By HERB SHANNON Aerospace Editor

In a Douglas Aircraft Co. hangar, a small group of avia-tion buffs is restoring an M2 open-cockpit biplane, the first Douglas airliner.

The wood and fabric fuse-lage, small enough to fit inside the tail-engine nacelle of the McDonnell Douglas DC10 trijet, is being rebuilt by the same methods used in the original construction more than 50 years

Nylon and super adhesives unknown to the manufacturers of aircraft in the post-World War I period have replaced the muslin and canvas of those days, but there is no automated process to replace the hand-work required to fasten the fab-ric to the wooden framework and to seal it with old-fashioned aircraft dope.

Thin plywood covers are being refashioned for the in-board portions of the lower where mailbags were cockpits.

No detail is too inconsequential to be ignored in the restoration of the Douglas M2 antique. Its smooth, largeantique. Its smooth, large-diameter tires are no longer made, but Goodyear has re-created a set by grinding the tread off a pair of truck tires of the same size. Western Air-lines, sponsors of the project, robuilt an authorite Liberty enrebuilt an authentic Liberty engine and two spares.

Volunteers from Western's list of retired and active me-chanics have been working on the M2 framework and engines since 1974. Now joined by an enthusiastic cadre of the air-line's headquarters staff in Los Angeles and Douglas technicians in Long Beach, they are working against a final deadline only two weeks away.

The ancestral pride of both Douglas and Western must be flight-tested and approved to regain its certification from the Federal Aviation Administra-tion by April 17. On that date, Western will celebrate its 50th year as the only survivor of a handful of airlines which piohandful of airlines which pro-neered commercial aviation.

At 7:39 a.m. on the 50th anniversary date, the M2 will take off from Los Angeles International Airport to recre-ate its original 653-mile flight to Salt Lake City, via Las Vegas. The venerable aircraft is sched-uled to land in Las Vegas about uled to land in Las Vegas about noon and arrive in the Utah rapital shortly before dusk, as it did on April 17, 1926.

Pilot of the single-engine plane will be Capt. Ted Homan, who retired from Western in who fettled from vestern in 1974 and since has headed the M2 restoration project. Homan was 13 years old and an eager spectator when the historic first flight of Western Air Express landed at his home town of Las Vegas for refueling. For months the lad watched

the comings and goings of Western's M2s, their pilots and an occasional passenger riding

on the mail bags. His faithful attendance at the airfield finally paid off. On his 14th birthday, Nov. 26, pioneer pilot Mau-rice Green braced Ted in the mail compartment of the M2 and flew the boy over nearby Sunrise Mountain. As a finale to the boy's first flight, Green cir-

the boy's first flight, Green circled his family home.

Hooked for life, Homan stuck like model airplane cement. He hung around the field for nearly a year until Western gave him two weeks of vacation relief work as night watchman, aircraft refueling helper and 'for keeping the runway smooth.'

Seven years later he started working full time for Western as a radio operator. Eventually he worked his way up to flying later model aircraft as copilot, and remained on the Western flight roster until his retirement. He never worked for another company.

Many of the nation's airlines claim this month as their 50th anniversary through pre-decessor companies which were awarded air mail contracts in 1926. United and Continental both trace their lineage to Var-ney Air Lines, which pioneered a route in the Pacific Northwest. American points to even earlier, but short-lived routes served by firms later absorbed into the present network. Trans World can also claim its ancestry to a portion of the Western Air Express service.

But Western Airlines is the only one of the pioneers which has continued uninterrupted service under the same articles of incorporation since 1926. Only the name has been changed from Western Air Express, in 1937, when Douglas DC3 aircraft came on the scene and passengers replaced mail and freight as the prime source of American patterns," says Kevin Starr, San Francisco city librarian and au-thor of the book "Ameri-cans and the California Dream."

Fines for polluters, restrictions to curb urban sprawl, laws to protect dwindling natural resources and to guard against danger from nuclear power plants-how California succeeds with these and similar meas-ures may determine its future and set guidelines for the nation.

Californians are finding they can no longer take for granted even such basic symbols of their lifestyle as the heated swimming pool and the free-way. The one uses too much fuel, the second costs too much and produces too much smog, officials say.

"What we're seeing here is emblematic of an end of affluence, an end of expectation," says Starr. "If California was the first to discover that big is beautiful, it's now discovering that small is also beautiful."

To William Burke,

Reserve Bank in San Francisco, the change signals the end of "more than a century...in which rapid economic growth has been the hallmark of the Cali-fornia experience. Many Californians...have be come disenchanted with the pace and nature of their earlier growth." Herman Muller, a retired store clerk who's spent the last 30 years in San Jose, is among the disenchanted.

When I came here right after the war, this was just so beautiful, all the orchards stretching everywhere." recalls Muller, 67, who lives on a pension. "It was a nice town, you'd go downtown to shop, see a movie, meet your friends. Now it's just houses every place you go, they all look the same. Kids grow up for years and never know what downtown looks like."

THE disenchantment isn't just starting. In 1971, California Poll, a respected public opinion survey, reported that nearly one of every three Californians would leave the state if they could. Among the

Guaranteed challenge:

If you're a young person looking for some real challenge, now's the time to look into the Army. From electronics to carpentry, from cooks to combat arms, the Army today has more challenging opportunities to offer than anyone.

$361 a month to start

Army pay is better than ever. And with free meals, free lodging, and free medical and dental care, you'll be surprised how far that pay will go.

Job-training courses

Ever wonder where to get that "experience necessary" the classified ads always ask for? A good place is the Army. With hundreds of job-training courses, the Army can teach you skills you'll be glad to have later on.

Educational opportunities

Whether it's finishing high school or earning college credits, being in the Army can help you.

And if you sign up for the Army's newest educational program, Project Ahead, you'll be able to start college at the same time you enlist—with the Army paying up to 75% of your tuition and fees for approved courses.

Travel opportunities

Joining the Army can mean a chance to work and live in Europe, Alaska, Hawaii, Korea, Panama or almost anywhere in the continental U.S.

Join now, go later

You can do just that—join now and report up to nine months later—with the Army's special Delayed Entry Program. A terrific option for high school seniors and others with unfinished business ahead of them.

First come, first serve.

To find out which opportunities are open and to have the best chance of getting the one you want, see your Army Representative now. The address and phone number are listed in the Yellow Pages under "Recruiting."

been coupled with a slow-down in the number of new jobs and a slight de-cline in the state's share of America's personal in-come. Jobs grew from 5.1 to 6.85 million from 1955 to 1965, a 35 per cent rise, and from 6.85 to 8.5 million from '65 to '75, only a 24 per cent rise. Personal income jumped from 9.5 to 11.4 per cent of the national total between 1954 and 1964, but fell back to 10.9 per cent in 1974. Projections for seats in the House of Representatives in 1980 show California keeping its 43 seats, while fast-growing Florida jumps from 15 to 20 and three nearby states-Ore-gon, Arizona and Utah-

A major reason for fewer newcomers is the decline in California's once-mighty aerospace-electronic industry.

electronic industry, demographer Rasmussen and economist Burke agree. The field employed 600,000 persons at its peak in 1967 because of the Vict-nam war, the space race and booms in commercial aircraft and consumer electronics. It now has

As these sources diminished, the state joined the nation in the 1970 reces-sion, then failed to recover sion, then tailed to recover as strongly the next three years because aerospace continued weak. By 1973, the state had 7 per cent memployment compared with 4.7 per cent national-

During the more recent recession, Burke says California wasn't hit as hard as the rest of the country because it's less dependent on manufactur-ing-the first area to suffer in a slump. But for the same reason, the recovery here is taking longer.

While national unemployment has dropped steadily in recent months the California rate has stayed close to 10 per cent. In February, more than a million Californians couldn't find work, and a March California Poll said 18 per cent of the state's families have had someone laid off have had someone land our during the past year. Welfare benefits were going to 10.3 per cent of the state's residents in January. There were 1.4 million Californians on aid to families with dependent children and 1.5 million on food stamps—about 6 per cent and 11 per cent high-er, respectively, than the same month a year earli-

At the same time it faces economic troubles, California confronts the damage of unrestrained growth on the environment.

In a state with one registered automobile for every 1.8 residents, smog has become a way of life-and death. Tom Quinn, chairman of the state Air Resources Board, says suifates from fuel oil could kill 2,100 children and sen-ior citizens in Southern California between 1978 and 1980. Other natural resources have felt the impact of development:

-State forestry officials say needles on some trees in the Sierra foothills are turning yellow, apparently from impurities in the atmosphere.

The Sierra Club has filed suit to stop strip min-ing for borates and tale in Death Valley, claiming it is destroying a prime example of desert environment. Battles are raging between environmentalists and developers over the fate of Lake Tahoe and Yosemite Valley.

-Ocean beaches in Southern California are being croded because streams that once brought sand to replenish them were diverted by flood control projects for hous-ing developments.

But if California is a na-tional leader in polluting the environment, it also is a leader in trying to con-

—In January, Quinn's board fined American Motors $4.2 million for al-hotors 4.2 minion for allegedly failing to meet air pollution standards in some of its V8 engines.

—In February, the same board voted to all but eliminate lead additives from gasoline by 1980. The partier was 1980. The action was prompted by a survey showing that people living near the San Diego Free-way in Los Angeles and the Nimitz freeway in Alameda County had much higher lead content in their blood than residents of Lancaster in the

-The state Energy Commission earlier this year approved what it called the toughest energy conservation standards in the nation for new com-mercial and public build-ings. New offices will have mgs. New onlices will nave smaller windows and fewer lights, thus saving 22 million barrels of crude oil over 15 years.

—In March, the state Senate passed a bill re-quiring new toilets to use less water per flush. The goal is to unburden sewage disposal and water reclamation systems.

—California's 3,700 miles of freeway won't proliferate as rapidly in the future. The state Department of Transportation has called a virtual half to make row in income. halt to major new highway projects because of dimin-ished gasoline-tax income and rising construction costs. Instead, it's concentrating on maintenance, safety and mass transit.

Brown's proposed trans-portation budget for 1976-

GOV. JERRY BROWN
"It's a Limited Planet"

1977 is less than half last year's $614 million and has required cutting 2,800 jobs, many through layoffs.

Now swimming pools—a backyard staple in more than 250,000 California homes—face a doubtful future because the state Public Utilities Commission says it takes too much fuel to heat them. The PUC estimates that nearly 1 per cent of natu-ral gas consumed in Call-fornia goes for this "inferior...luxury" use of a natural resource "whose conservation is so vital."

Concern over conserving another natural resource—land—led voters in 1972 to pass a landmark initiative setting up a com-mission to control development within 1,000 yards of the state's 1,080-mile coastline.

Voters this June decide

the fate of a proposal that would establish strict safe-ty conditions for building nuclear power plants. Utility companies argue that passage will force consumers to pay millions more for electrical energy from coal.

Cities also are countering urban sprawl by estab-lishing their right to de-cide how and whether to

A LEADER of this fight is Petaluma, just 40 free-way miles north of San

The council—facing a shortage of sewers, water and schools—passed an ordinance limiting new housing to 500 units a year, to "protect the small-town character...-and eliminate the sort of urban sprawl that has developed elsewhere in this

The Petaluma Plan, bitterly challenged by builders and construction unions, survived its final test in Februay when it was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Our goals were achieved," boasted Petalarmeven, poasted Petaluma planning director Frank Grey. "We've slowed the American dream—the quality of life in our subdivisions increased."

Burke thinks the state's economic future is in its "knowledge industry"— the multicampus University of California, Stanford, Caltech and other educa-tional and research centers—which developed the technology to make the aerospace boom possible in the first place.

Whatever the shape of California's future, it seems certain to differ from the expansiveness of the immediate past. Jerry Brown's popularity indicates his pessimism has struck a responsive chord struck a responsive chord in his constituents.

Brown is spokesman for a California of shrinking hopes and expectations—just as his father was the voice of a California that knew mostly growth and boom. The success of Jerry Brown's newly announced presidential ambitions might depend on whether the nation as a whole is ready for his somber message.

"The whole genius of this country has been one of unlimited expansion," Jerry Brown said in an interview. "On the East Coast, there was a safety valve: Go West if there was a problem. And when we got to the Pacific Coast, we expanded throughout the entire

"Now we're finding limits...There's not a val-ley out here in Sacramento, San Fernando or Santa Clara where you can lay out cheap houses. The materials cost a great deal. The land is more scarce. The environmental restraints, when so many people live together, are such that it is much more difficult to do anything...

"This idea that we're charging lorward with greater and greater success and more progress, that may be a little bit unrealistic. Just maintaining where we are and not slipping back too fast is already a major accomplishment."

Feed your plants for up to 6 months in 12 seconds.

New ORTHO® Timed Release Plant Food formulas make feeding and growing healthy plants easier than ever. You just spoon on the clean, odorless granules and mix into the soil.

It takes only seconds to start plants on a steady, uniform diet that lasts from three to six months, depending on plant variety.

Each granule of these scientifically formulated fertilizers provides the balanced combination of nutrients needed by specific plants. The slow release of these nutrients lets you feed whatever you grow indoors or outdoors, from seedlings to mature plants, without the danger of overfeeding or burning.

Look for the family of ORTHO Timed Release Plant Foods at your Ortho dealers: African Violet Food 6-9-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; Pot and Planter Food 5-10-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; General Purpose Plant Food 12-6-6, feeds 3 to 4 months; Tomato and Vegetable Food 10-20-5, feeds 3 to 4 months.

You'll know they're better because they're from Ortho.

A cruise missile can fly 2000 miles and explode a nuclear warhead within 100 feet of a target, and its small size makes it easy to hide and launch.

MISSILE CONTINUED

But by far the most important improvement is in the guidance system, which operates on a principle called Terrain Contour Matching, or TERCOM. Cruise missiles using the revolutionary TERCOM guidance will actually "read" maps.

It works like this: A map of the missile's flight path is programmed into the missile's computer. As the missile flies along, sensors monitor the terrain beneath it and compare it to the map in the missile's brain. If it doesn't match exactly, the missile can make course corrections all the way to the target.

Counters air defenses

The new cruise missiles will even be able to fly zigzag patterns to confuse air defenses. They will also be able to spot obstacles, such as mountains, and fly just high enough to miss them before returning to their normal flight pattern 200 feel above the ground.

The new, improved cruise missile may well prove to be one of the great technological achievements of the decade. But that begs the real question: Do we need it?

We may be short of jobs and petroleum, but if there's one area where the United States has no shortage, it is in nuclear weapons. According to some estimates, the United States has 30,000 nuclear weapons throughout this country, Europe and Asia. This includes about 8000 long-range nuclear, or strategic, weapons—on ICBM's, nuclear missile submarines and hombers—as well as 22,000 shorter range, or tactical, nuclear weapons.

The U.S. already has a formidable fleet of 41 Polaris submarines with 656 ballistic missiles. If the Navy has its way, it would like to put cruise missiles on attack submarines as well, missiles small enough to fit into the torpedo tubes.

The Air Force plans to use airlaunched cruise missiles on bombers, both its B-52 and the B-1 that it wants to build. The small size of cruise missiles makes it possible to launch them just about anywhere. Indeed, that is the danger: they could be "hidden" aboard practically anything that flies, floats or rolls. A transport plane, a fishing trawler, or even a truck might be a suit able launching platform.

Up to now, all arms control agreed ments between the United States and the Soviet Union have depended on the ability of each side to count the other nuclear weapons. Using reconnaissance satellites, both sides have been able to see exactly how many ICBM silot long-range bombers and ballistic missile submarines the other side has. The has been possible because up to now has been necessary to put nuclear missiles in these large, easily identifiable weapons platforms.

However, if the United States goe ahead with its plans to build long-rang cruise missiles, and if Russia does the same, all arms agreements may become meaningless because no one will be able to verify them. That is why the cruise missile has become a central issue in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) now underway.

The first SALT agreement, signed May, 1972, did not include cruise mi siles because at the time both sides co sidered them obsolete. But now, both the U.S. and the USSR are attemping to update the agreement, the sitution has changed.

Kissinger's task

In talks earlier this year the delegtions for both sides tentatively agree to ban cruise missiles with a rang greater than 1500 miles. Secretary State Henry Kissinger must now pesuade the rest of the government to a lang, and there is some doubt that if will be able to do it. The admirals argenerals like cruise missiles and wa to start building them as soon as posible.

If the Department of Defense decid to begin mass production, the Sovi Union is almost certain to follow su So, unless the two superpowers agree ban these weapons, we may soon fir ourselves in a new and deadly arrivace.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) Argentina's new military regime has indicated that it may scrap Peronist decrees nationalizing some foreign companies economic sources said

The companies include the U.S. owned subsidiary of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., the First National City Bank of New York and the Bank of Boston

Others include the West German-owned telecom-munications company Siemens and the Swiss-owned Selectric company Italo-Argentina.

President Isabel Peron, ousted by a coup nine days ago and now under arrest in southern Argentina, had announced the nationaliza-tion decrees from the main balcony of the Government House to a huge -rally on Oct. 17, 1974.

The decrees were never carried out because of her eroding power base, but the laws were not repeal-

"It does not make sense to use national capital for Argentinizations instead of using the capital to create new production sources," said Martinez de Hoz. Argentinization refers to foreign-owned enterprises. "There are a few prob-lems which have been ar-tificially created with for-

Argentine takeovers of Martinez de Hoz announced the repeal of the Peronist foreign-invest-ment law, which was conheavily restrictive. He said a new law will be announced soon with "controls re-

Leftists claim credit for fire at Fiat plant

TURIN, Italy (AP) — A fire caused hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage to a Fiat assembly line Saturday and an anonymous caller said it was set by leftist guerril-deliberately.

Italian news agency Ansa said the fire was started by the Red Brigades, an urban guerrilla group that kidnaped and released the personnel chief of Fiat months ago.

156 nations finished the third of eight scheduled weeks.

Two key proposals before the conference are to extend a coastal nation's territorial sea to 12 miles and to give it "exclusive" fishing and oil-drilling rights up to 200 miles out to sea.

This would benefit only the 100 or so countries that have a substantial coastline. It would give them exclusive control over virtually all the world's fish stocks and known oil deposits.

The landlocked and geographically disadvantaged -countries that have no coastline or face out onto a small and crowded sea - sat meekly through the negotiating sessions in Caracas in 1974 and Geneva in 1975. They are now aware that unless they do something quickly they will forever sign away any claim to the richest third of the sea.

Adding to their anxiety are growing demands by Third World coastal states to control not only fishing and mining in the economic zone, but pollution and scientific research as well. To the landlocked and GDs, this smells of "creeping nationalization" that would eventually give coastal states total sovereignty over the 200-mile zone.

So after a series of little-noticed meetings, they

Since Premier Kukrit Pramoj dissolved the House last January to head off a threatened vote of no confidence in his shaky administration, there has been a minimum of active campaigning by candidates. Until the last moment, there were serious doubts whether the election would even take place or whether a military coup d'etat might force it agrandistion. force its cancellation.

In addition, a wave of violence, mainly directed against left-wing and reformist parties, led many candidates to cut down their electioneering, espe-cially in country districts and after dark.

At the end of February, the secretary general of the Socialist Party, Boonsanong Punyodyana, was shot dead in Bangkok as he was driving home late at night. On March 25 a hand grenade was tossed into an election rally of the liberal New Force Party at Chainat, about 80 miles north of here, killing 10 people and wounding many others. And on Thursday Deputy Educa-tion Minister Pancha Kaysornthon was wounded by gunmen while campaigning in his northern home town of Petchabun.

Many other violent incidents have taken place, and the Socialist Party leader, Col. Somkid Srisangkhom, who says he has received death threats and has been forced into virtual hiding to avoid assassination, described the election campaign as "the most violent and dangerous in Thailand's histo-

Whatever the outcome of Saturday's voting, many observers believed that it may be too late to stem the growing disillu-sionment of most Thais with Western-style parliamentary democracy. Since the end of military rule there has been a dramatic polarization of political opinion, with some activ-ists turning to the Communists and others forming extreme right-wing move-ments and calling for strong-arm government.

The silent majority of people in between have become apathetic and cynical.

Two Portuguese leftists blown up

Two members of the far-left Democratic Union Party were killed Saturploded in their car as they were driving near the northern city of Oporto.

Maria de Lourdes Perreiro, an 18-year-old high school girl, was killed in-stantly, and Maximino Barbosa de Sousa, 32, died in a hospital several hours later. De Sousa, a former Roman Catholic priest, was a Democratic Union Party (UDP) candidate for parliamant in elections to be held April 25.

Without a treaty coastal states would claim 200-mile zones anyway, they said, but with the treaty the landlocked states at least stood to gain some revenues from mining in an international zone beyond the 200-

Major opponents of the landlocked demands are countries that would have to share their economic zones. These do not include the United States and the Soviet

Ford out of town Capitol rally asks job help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 2,000 demonstrators marched to the Capitol on Saturday to demand that Congress adopt legislation committing the federal government to full employment.

The demoustrators, most from the Northeast and Midwest, called for reduction in inflation and aid to cities. They also endorsed extension of unemployment-insurance benefits, a debt moratorium and expansion of the food-stamp program.

Police estimated that 2,000 persons took part in the rally, hearing a congressman, mayors and labor leaders call on the government to do more for the jobless. The marchers had hoped to deliver a giant pink slip to President Ford, but he was out of town.

The demonstration was sponsored by the National Coalition to Fight Inflation and Unemployment. Its president, Sidney A. Von Luther, said the demonstration was held in this Bicentennial election year to deliver a message to the President, Congress and the candidates.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said it is a historical irony that, as the nation prepares to celebrate its 200th auniversary, citizens "must assemble here protesting to the Congress and the President that the time has come

The major legislation the marchers want passed is sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif. It would set as a national goal the lowering of the unemployment rate to 3 per cent within four years. It would also direct the President to submit a plan to achieve the goal.

The demonstrators urged that the bill be strengthened to insure no unemployment in the United States. The rally came a day after the Labor Department had reported that unemployment dropped to 7.5 per cent in March, but several speakers questioned the statistics.

proportions."
"Approximately 4,000 citizens of this state will die in the next year of this dread disease," the report said.

"It is the leading cancer killer in woman ages 25 to 74, is the leading cause of death in the 40-to-44 age group, causes untold and widespread or foreign and widespread suffering and is responsible for staggering costs in primary, sec-ondary and tertiary health

The report stressed the need for a coordinated system involving health systems in both the public and private sectors.

The logical manager of such a program," the re-port said, would be the state commissioner of health, Robert P. Whalen, or a special assistant.

FUNDS to establish such a program "may be available" under the Na-tional Health Planning Law and the Nurse Train Law and the Nurse Transing Act, the report said. Additional financing from the state "may be in order," the report added, with the hope that "the system should ultimately be largely and the state." be largely self-support-

Seven die as fire sweeps Miami hotel

By MARTIN MERZER

MIAMI (AP) - Seven persons, some of them too old to crawl out of windows and jump to safety, died Saturday when a fire that authorities said "in all probability" was deliberately set swept through one of Miami's oldest hotels.

Thirteen others suffered burns and other injuries, many caused by 20- and 30-foot leaps.

A Fire Department spokeswoman said officials found at the rear of the building an empty containing the said of the said o tainer that had held a flammable liquid. Investigators said the fire began in the back of the hotel.

Earlier, police questioned three men, one of them a former employe of the hotel, but officers said the three were released and the investigation was con-

The lire erupted at about 1 a.m. and quickly spread through the 70-year-old Avondale Hotel in the heart of downtown Miami and an adjacent, unoccupied hotel. A third hotel was less severely

Firemen at the Avondale told of elderly victims' standing at their windows, screaming for help and then falling back into the flames before rescuers could reach them.

"Had these old people been a little stronger, they could have stepped out the window, onto a ledge and then onto an adjacent roof," said Fire Chief Don Hickman.

Ramiro Gomez, the resident landlord of the hotel, said an explosion jolted him awake. Gomez, he crawled from his room heard people upstairs holl-ering, screaming. It was full of smoke."

Gomez, who finally was helped to the street by a friend, was clutching his three bulldogs, which followed him to safety. Dressed only in a sheet and dirtied by his ordeal, Comea waited for hours to Gomez waited for hours to learn the fate of a fourth dog. Finally, the animal trotted out of the ravaged building.

"It was horrible. It was horrible," said Joel Meyers, 38. "People were just standing at the window, screaming and trying to get out." Meyers broke a leg jumping from a second-floor window. Itis wife escaped uninjured.

Four hours after the fire started, and as the last remaining flames were extinguished, firemen found 43-year-old Billie Sutton alive, sitting on a bed in a second-floor apartment.

"Help," the woman, burned over 80 per cent of her body, cried feebly.
A Fire Department spokesman said officials believed the woman hid in a closet and found an air pocket to escape much of the fire, then managed to get to the bed. She was later reported in critical condition at a hospital.

Fire officials said that, although the hotels were among Miami's oldest structures, they were well-

Still playing guitar at age 129, Miguel Carpio is the oldest person in Ecuador's mountain village of Vilcabamba, where long, tranquil lives are commonplace.

The Old Men and Women of the Mountains

by Paul Martin

VILCABAMBA, ECUADOR. he first time I saw Miguel Carpio he was walking along Vilcabamba's main street with his great-granddaughter Jolanda. We sat and talked and Don Miguel said that he had given up farming some years ago. He still enjoys music and played the guitar and sang for us. He retains an eye for the ladies but conceded that he'd have a little trouble catching them if they moved too fast. His hearing is keen and he speaks clearly of recent events as well as the distant past. Miguel is slightly bent and walks with a cane, but he's in superb condition for a man carrying 129 years.

He's one of the oldest men in the world; perhaps the oldest. Vilcabamba, his home town, has become worldfamous for the health and longevity of its residents. The village's 1972 census showed a population of 819, including seven men and two women more than 100 years old. There are fewer than 7000 centenarians in the United States, but if we produced them at the same rate as this tiny community, we'd have more than 2,500,000.

Peaceful in the Andes

Resting peacefully in the Ecuadoran Andes, the village showed some changes between my first visit in October, 1973, and my second trip this past December. The population has grown to about 1100, electricity lights homes and stores, and the young men spend their evenings in the new pool hall. My interpreter for both visits was Father John Moriarty, a Roman Catholic priest from Chicago who has spent the last nine years in Ecuador.

His fluent Spanish and knowledge of the culture were a great help to me. In 1973 we talked with 103-year-old Micaela Quezada. She had worked all of her life as a seamstress and we watched her thread needles and read newsprint without difficulty and without giasses. Micaela was a spinster in a community where nearly everyone is married. She told us she had known Miguel Carpio all of her life and he was considerably older than she. Micaela died about a week before I returned to Vilcabamba.

The condition of these longevos is at least as impressive as their long lives. Generally, they see and hear well, their minds remain alert and they work, usually at farming, into their 90's or longer. They show little physical and mental deterioration.

A seamstress' skill

Clodevea Herrera is a delightful old lady of 100. Like Micaela Quezada, she was once a seamstress, and she, too, easily threaded needle after needle. She is relaxed and alert, with a calm good humor and a clear memory. "God has favored us with long lives," she smiled, "and I would like to live as long as He wants me to, 50 more years or until tomorrow is all right."

I asked Rafael Vasquez if I could take pictures of him working with his machete in the park. The park was surrounded by a fence and the gate was locked. A youthful 84, Rafael easily climbed over the fence.

Vilcahamba lies about 260 miles south of the Equator. It receives direct rays of the sun all year long, usually considered especially dangerous to the aging. In Quito, Ecuador's capital, in December I spoke with Dr. Jorge San-tiana, a noted cancer specialist who has been to Vilcabamba three times to study these oldsters. He found them free from skin cancer, unusual for their ages and latitude.

"These are simple, dignified people," he said. "The area is very quiet and they are isolated from the pressures of urban civilization. The rich land provides nutritious food. They eat slowly and small amounts. There is little variation in the temperature throughout the year and they don't suffer from diseases created by extremes of heat or cold. They walk a great deal and work hard, which keeps them in superb physical condition at advanced ages. I've studied them carefully and they don't seem to get sick."

Heart specialists visit

I also spoke with Dr. Miguel Salvador in Quito. An internationally known cardiologist, Dr. Salvador may be the world's leading authority on the longeroes of Vilcabamba. He has visited the village four times and in 1969 led a medical team investigating the possibility of establishing a recovery center there. The team included nine cardiologists, six technicians, four social workers and 18 medical aides. They gave physical tests to 158 old men and 180 women and found no aging in arteries or in circulation, and no heart disease in the family backgrounds.

Says Dr. Salvador: "My interest is not just in old age but in the factors that enable these people to avoid arteriosclerosis. If we can find out, we can take a big step in preventing heart attacks, hypertension and other circulatory problems. They eat natural foods, which has to be a major reason for their unique state of health. They don't need medicine. Their illnesses seem to heal themselves."

Dr. Salvador points out that there are neither doctors nor hospitals in Vilcabamba. When they get sick they fast or take herbs or other natural remedies.

In December, when I talked with Father Andres Gomez, the priest in Vilcabamba, he observed, "We have an unusually high percentage of men and women in their 80's and 90's who still work. Though very poor, they're tranquil and don't worry about anything."

Studying the village

Other studies of the village have been conducted by Dr. Alexander Leaf, chief of medical services at Massachusetts General Hospital and a professor at Harvard Medical School, Dr. Harold Elrick of San Diego, and Dr. David Davies, an English gerontologist. Observers feel the 5100-foot altitude is important and diet is a fundamental.

Broken bones are a rarity among these men and women says Dr. Leaf, who also studied the oldsters in southern Russia and among the Hunzas in Pakistan. He learned that constant activity kept their bones mineralized,

Draft

I have heard that most of the local draft boards have been closed, but I've also been told that all 18 year-old men must register with the Selective Service System by the end of this month, and I'm truly confused. Can Action Line find out when, where and how young lads of 18 are supposed to register, so they won't get in any trouble with Uncle Sam? Mrs. G.F., Westminster.

All of the nation's draft boards have been closed, and this year males are not required to register when they reach 18. The registration requirement is still part of federal taw, and the President may reinstitute the procedure if he chooses, but a spokesman for the Selective Service System, said it appears unlikely registration will be resumed "in the foreseeable future." The government's authority to draft men expired June 30, 1973. but the registration system was re-tained at a cost of almost $50 mil-lion a year to operate all the local boards. As a cost-cutting measure, the registration process was suspended, and the Selective Service System's 1,400-member staff is being reduced to 100 full-time em-ployes at the agency's ployes at headquarters.

Last October I ordered on credit his and hers heavy duty coats from Fingernut Corp. in St. Cloud, Minn. When they arrived, my wife's coat was too small. I wrote the company and received instructions from them to "return all merchandise," which I did. They then sent back one coat, which I refused, since I wanted a full order of both coats. I still have no coats, but am being billed for $51. I keep writing them letters, but keep getting more bills. I need some help. J.A.M., Long

Capper

Some time ago I saw an article some time ago I saw an arricle that had been reprinted from Capper's Weekly in Topeka, Kan. Is this newspaper still being published and if so, how can I subscribe? I remember reading it many years ago. N.A., Artesia.

Capper's Weekly, which has brought national news, farm re-ports and homemaking tips to the Midwest since 1879, is still being published. Most of the newspaper's 425,000 subscribers live in rural areas of Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado and Oklahoma, but there are 12,000 of them in California. "Most of them are transplanted midwesterners," said James M. Rankin, the general manager of Capper's Weekly. The tabloid newspaper was started in Tankin under another name and Topeka under another name and taken over in 1913 by Arthur Capper, who later represented Kansas for 30 years in the U.S. Senate. After his death in 1951, the weekly was purchased by Stauffer Publications inc., which owns the Topcka Daily Capital and State Journal newspapers. You can subscribe for one year by sending $9 to Capper's Weekly, Sixth and Jefferson Streets, Topeka, Kan. 66607.

Ring thing

We recently moved into a house with a fiberglass bathtub and we'd like to know how to remove a ring from this type of tub. We've tried everything, R.D., Long Beach.

The home economists Action Line consulted suggested you try a solution of one-third bleach and two-thirds water. Let the solution stay on the sides of the tub for about 15 minutes and then wipe it off. A mixture of half vinegar and half water, hydrogen peroxide or a spray cleaning product such as Formula 409 also may remove the ring, but you shouldn't add any of these cleaning compounds or ammonia to bleach because the combination of such ingredients can produce toxic fumes. Manufacturers of fiberglass bathtubs and shower stalls do not recommend the use of scouring pads or powdered cleansers because they are too abrasive. If the surface of the tub has been scratched, the hard water stains and soap scum will be more difficult to remove.

GOV. BROWN AND KING HUSSEIN ANSWER QUESTIONS FROM PRESS

Hussein in S.F. hospital

By MIKE DUNSTAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Jordan's King Hussein was admitted Saturday to Letterman Army Medical Center for a "routine physical examination" expected to take two days, a hospital spokesman said.

George Provoo, Letterman public affairs officer, said Hussein was not ill. He's not here for treatment," after Hussein was admitted following an hour-long meeting with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Provoo said that the examina-tion had been planned for at least a week and that Hussein was sched-uled for release Monday morning.

He said the King normally undergoes an annual examination at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., but changed his routine because of engagements on the West Coast.

The King canceled a tour of the University of San Francisco scheduled for today, but was expected to keep a local luncheon engagement

Monday afternoon, Provoo said. Hussein arrived amid tight security Saturday for a three-day visit to the San Francisco Bay Area.

Hussein and his wife, Queen Alya, arrived early with their entourage of diplomats for a visit with Brown at the posh St. Francis Hotel — site of an attempted presidential assassination last Sept. 22.

Traffic was blocked briefly on California 101 as Secret Service agents and about 30 motorcycle police escorted Hussein's motorcade from San Francisco International Airport. The king waited for about a half-hour before Brown arrived at 2:05 p.m. for their meeting.

Hubbard Building defies demolishing

by now had started to disperse.

It was apparent that the spunky Omar Hubbard building, which had been judged unsafe and an earth-quake hazard, had defied the best demolition experts, modern tech-nology and even the law of gravity. The grand old lady of yesteryear had asserted her rights — not to die, but to survive. At least for another day.

What went wrong?

"I don't know...I don't understand. This has never happened before," said a bewildered Beau Bryson, project engineer for X-bernex, hired by the contractors, Roger Roy General Engineering Contractors Inc. of Chatsworth, to avoid the slow process of battering the building down with wrecking balls and sledge hammers.

"All the charges went," Bryson said wearily, red-eyed from the allnight chore of planting the 350 charges of explosives. "It was a charges of explosives. "It was a piece of cake...the building should have come down easily. But it did-n't snap. It didn't crackle. It didn't pop. It just stood there.

"Like Newton and the apple...that's how it should have come down."
With that, he went off to look for his assistant, commenting, 'They've probably tarred and feathered him by now."

Many of those involved are call-ing the Hubbard Building a jinx. One is Roger Roy, who heads the firm contracted by the city to raze the building, which is located in the city's new civic center super-block on the site of the future Museum of Art.

2 killed as plane skids off carrier

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The pilot of a single-seat jet fighter and a deck crewman died when the plane caught fire on landing and skidded off the deck of the carrier USS Enterprise.

The deck crewman was killed as he dived off the deck onto cat-walks to get out of the way of the careening A7E Corsair. Three other men on the deck were injured.

The plane touched down, but wasn't stopped by the arresting wire and caught fire as it skidded up the deck, officials said. The pilot ejected as the plane plunged into the ocean, but he became tangled in his parachute lines and drowned.

The Navy said the accident happened while the Enterprise was conducting aircraft carrier qualification exercises about 250 miles west of San Diego just before midnight Friday.
Identification of the dead and injured was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The Navy, said the plane was from Fighter Squadron 122 based at Lemoore Naval Air Station near Fresno.

"Thirty-five years I've been in this business...and we've never had anything like this before," he said, chewing on a cigar in his office on wheels, a motor home parked near the project.

This whole thing has been a joke from the beginning. They give us a contract, but we can't demoiish the building. We start wrecking it the old way, during the daytime. But that was too noisy, and they told us to stop.

"So we started using a wrecking ball...put a tractor on top of the roof with a 100-foot crane. But they told us to stop that; concrete was falling all over the street. They said do it at night, for safety reasons.

"We worked two hours at night and had to quit...it was keeping people awake.

Then, this guy (Peter Devereaux) files a suit against the city, trying to save the building after it's already being torn down. He serves papers on us, but they don't give the court date. When we get that, he cancels the hearing at the last

"It's been a real nightmare," Roy said wryly. "We've already lost $10,000 on this job, bringing in equipment we can't use and going to court. When this building hits the ground today, I'm gone and I never want to see it again." But the indomitable Hubbard

Building didn't hit the ground, much to Roy's chagrin. So what now?

"That building is solid, you know." he said with a sheepish grin. "What else can I say? We'll reload it and shoot it again.

With that, he headed for his car, "I'm going to the hills to ride my horse," he said. "I'm not going to worry about Long Beach."

City strike talks proceed in S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Labor leaders and a city negotiator sat down together Saturday for the first time since the start of a fourday municipal strike that has idled public transit and stymied weekend recreation.

Former Mayor George Christopher joined in the session at a downtown hotel as a neutral observer. The talks were the first face-to-face negotiations since 2,000 union members walked off the job early Wednesday in the third municipal walkout in two years.

Christopher indicated that the meeting would probably not bring a quick end to the dispute over pay cuts when he emerged from negotiations to say: "It looks like it's going to be a long one."

Mayor George Moscone said he was encouraged by the negotia-tions, which started after both sides agreed on Christopher as an impar-tial public observer.

CHRISTOPHER met first with the Board of Supervisors and its negotiator, Patrick Mahler, and later with the San Francisco Labor Council to be filled in on the issues

"I welcomed the king to California and I asked him questions about the Middle East," Brown, an announced presidential candidate, said after the meeting.

"It was a chance for me to learn first-hand about the Middle East situation, and he expressed his hope that the future in the Middle East will be one of peace."

Hussein arrived in the United States on March 29 at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., to begin his 10-day hopscotch tour of the country.

He was scheduled to spend a day in Los Angeles Tuesday and return to Jordan Wednesday.

About 600 confused bystanders looked on as Hussein's motorcade arrived, and many thought it was President Ford.

entrance throughout the meeting, further snarling traffic conjested by a municipal strike that has crippled public transportation.

The downtown hotel was the site of a presidential assassination attempt Sept. 22 when Sara Jane Moore fired a shet at Ford. A by-

"The participants are sitting down in an atmosphere in which everything is open to discussion. Moscone told a news conference.

He said each side had express-ed willingness to meet around the clock if necessary.

Jet door falls 20.000 feet, misses girl,4

MODESTO (AP) - A 60pound door broke away from a San Francisco-bound airliner Saturday and hurtled 20,000 feet to the ground, crashing 50 feet from a child playing in front of her home, authorities

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said the door broke free from an American Airlines 727 jet carrying 34 passengers from Oklahoma City. It did not affect the aircraft's approach to San Francisco International Airport.

The 31/2-by-51/2-foot landinggear door plunged into the front yard of a home owned by Robert Wood, crashing 50 feet from his daughter, Kel-ley, 4, who was playing in the Arms-gap bogeyman given new life

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) In 1960 it was the "missile gap." In 1976 it's "detente." But the presidential campaign issue is the same. Is the United States falling behind the Soviet Union in military strength?

Republican challenger Ronald Reagan has been the most strident critic among the candidates, declaring that U.S. Soviet arms agreements "guarantee the Soviets a clear missile superiority sufficient to make a first strike little fear of reprisal."

Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson, another con-sistent critic of detente, says that by next year the Soviet missile submarine force will be more powerful than the American underwater fleet. He has urged a crash program to rebuild the U.S. Navy from its present 477-ship size to a fleet of at least 650 warships. The leading Democratic challenger, former Geor-gia Gov. Jimmy Carter, believes the U.S. would have trouble controlling sea lanes through the Atlantic if challenged by the Soviets. He also ques-tions concessions made by the U.S. in strategic arms limitation talks, although Carter says the U.S. is in no imminent peril from Russian military domina-

There has also been a marked increase in Russian production of such basic items as tanks, artilized chemical warfare weapons

In attempting to cut President Ford's $101 bil-lion defense spending proposal, congressional critics argue that only where Russian military developments threaten U.S. interests should they be considered in American defense planning.

"We no longer take a global view of foreign policy," said one congressional source familiar with the campaign to cut the budget. "We've got to stop saying the Russians are spending 'X,' the trends are 'Y,' therefore we must spend 'Z."

FOR example, about 500,000 of the Russian soldiers are along the Chinese border, causing a steady drain on Moscow's military budget. Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says about 16 per cent of the increase in Russian military spend-ing from 1964 to 1974 is directly attributable to the troops on that border.

Aspin and defense spe-cialists at the Brookings Institution, a private re-search organization, also note that among the Pentagon's count of Soviet military manpower there are about 900,000 reservists, who would not be involved in the initial fighting should war break out in central or northern force.

NONETHELESS, there is little dispute that an awesome military machine, including the armies of the Warsaw Pact nations, is arrayed against U.S. and other North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations in Europe.

A Brookings study not yet published will suggest, for example, that most of the 40,000 U.S. troops now in South Korea be transferred to Western Europe And besides troop strength, the Soviets have in recent years developed and produced highly sophisticated mobile antiair-craft weapons and groundto-air missiles which would knock down many U.S. fighter planes attempting to stop ground attacks against West Germany or other NATO allies.

AFTER the 1973 Yom Kippur war in Egypt, many defense analysts noted the successful use of wire-guided missiles to de-stroy hundreds of U.S.made Israeli tanks. Some declared the tank extinct as a weapon of ground warfare.

But since then, most specialists, including Brookings' Robert G.

Weinland, have taken a longer look and concluded that the Israelis violated a major rule of conventional

JJ.S. urged to make better isea-power use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States can and should apply the principles of sea power more effec-tively than the Soviet Union in the Mediterranean, according to a study released by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research

The study, by Jesse W. Lewis Jr., says that al-though the U.S. Sixth Fleet has an overwhelming preponderance of power in the Mediterra-nean, the Soviets have used their presence there to skillfully advance their national interests at expense of the United States.

Lewis proposed increased surveillance of potential trouble spots and development of a continuing Mediterranean expertise in American diplomatic and intelligence circles.

Lewis, formerly Mideast correspondent for the Washington Post, is currently serving as political-military affairs officer at the U.S. Embassy in Saudi Arabia.

warfare—always use infantry troops in concert

That has vindicated one Soviet policy in Europe where Russian military planners have dispatched 11,500 tanks compared to 2,100 from the U.S. In all, Warsaw Pact nations have 19,000 tanks in Europe, NATO nations 7,000.

U.S. officials say Russian armor troops are poorly trained and American tanks better made than their counterparts in the Soviet arsenal. There are also new TV-guided "smart bombs" and various other kinds of weaponry designed to destroy tanks from afar, but the numerical comparison of potential firepower is nonetheless startling.

IF only numbers are considered, it can also be argued that the Soviets have taken a clear lead in sea power. Since 1965, Rumsfeld says, the Russians have built 800 new warships while the U.S. Navy has been increased by only 300 ships.

Brookings researcher Weinland says U.S. aircraft carriers steaming through the eastern Mediterranean would be particularly vulnerable to attack that it with the state of the s

A Library of Congress study done at the request of Sen. John C. Culver, D-lowa, said, "The USSR can concentrate power thats and when it would be sent to the contract of the c where and when it wants before hostilities break out, while the U.S. Navy must cover extended sea lanes. The U.S. is, however, now committed to building up to a Navy of about 600 ships by the mid-1980s. Many are to be expensive nuclear-powered vessels, a policy decision disputed as unnecessary by many defense critics.

The decline of the U.S. shipbuilding industry is cited as a key reason for the current size of the U.S. fleet, rather than a con-scious decision to allow the Russians to get ahead. The U.S. has long held an advantage over the Soviets in long-range bombers, and the Air Force is pressing for ap-proval to go ahead with

Meanwhile, the Soviets have turned out tactical lighters which many spe-cialists say are faster and more agile than any U.S. fighter in use and a match for the F15, the newest American plane now com-ing into use. Whatever the comparison in quality, the Soviets are also building far more fighter planes than the U.S.

To resupply the Syrian and Egyptian armies in 1973 and more recently to deliver weapons to Angola, the Russians used long-range AN22 transport planes, proving a newly established ability to extend supply lines around the world.

The U.S. has giant C5 transport planes of com-parable range, but their life is limited by wing problems.

Many defense critics say it doesn't matter how many long-range transport or sophisticated fighter planes the Russians build, if they are not in a position to be used against U.S. interests at home or abroad. They ask, for example, if the large number of Soviet tactical fighters don't reflect the need to protect the long border with China.

In the end, the debate over U.S. versus Soviet military strength comes back to doomsday. What if the missiles begin to fly and a nuclear war begins?

It is at once the simplest and most complex of questions. One Democratic presidential candidate, former Sen. Fred Harris, joins those who say it doesn't matter — that the U.S. and the Soviet Union have amassed such destructive arsenals that one notch of increased sophis-tication or a few more warheads don't matter.

But others, like Penta-gon research chief Malcolm Currie, note the traditional firepower of Russian missiles combined with an intensive effort to match the U.S. lead in accuracy and numbers of warheads. To Currie, it all adds up to a future ability of the Russians to knock out U.S. land-based Minuteman missiles before they can be launched, leaving only U.S. submarine-based missiles as a deterrent. Currie also cites the dispersal of many new Soviet industrial centers to isolated parts of the country. "They're postured to survive any war as an industrial power," he says. Currie believes those kinds of developments could make nuclear war "thinkable" to a future generation of Soviet lead-

To counter the Russian threat, U.S. military re-searchers must be permit-ted to develop missiles so accurate that the Russians know any first strike would be futile, Currie says.

Those who see no point to continuing the nuclear arms race, like Rep. Aspin, say enough is Aspin says, for example, that even if the Soviets knocked out most landbased missiles, the U.S. would still have enough missiles to drop 13 war-heads on every Soviet city of more than 190,000 population lation.

One thing is clear.
There are no simple answers and no quick election year solutions.

Writes Gordon Tremaine of Maplewood, N.J.: "I've read that America has a 300-year supply of coal. If that is true, why is the U.S. short-ol energy?"

It's true, but...theoretically, America does have a 300-year coal supply at present rates of consumption. Trouble is, this is coal in the ground, still to be mined—so it's only potential energy. Actually, coal provides just 18 percent of the energy America uses, and boosting that share isn't going to be easy.

What's the problem? There are several. Only about 50 percent of the coal mined by underground methods is recoverable with present mining technology. There is a shortage of miners and mining engineers. And coal can't be burned in many places due to environmental regulations and the threat of environmental lawsuits. Pending legislation threatens to erect still more barriers to coal development, making expansion of the industry uneconomic.

"NOW THAT'S REALLY BRINGING COAL TO OUR ATTENTION."

Not just for stoking. Some 4,000 companies, big and small, own U.S. coal reserves. Mobil is among them. We believe there's more to coal than stoking it into a furnace. It can be converted into high-energy gas for heating homes. Or liquid fuels for transportation.

Gasoline from coal. In the labs we're turning coal-derived methanol into high-octane gasoline. Today gasoline made from coal would cost much more than gasoline made from crude oil. Maybe twice as much. But we're working with the federal Energy Research and Development Administration to perfect the process and trim the cost. By the 1980's gasoline from coal could be more competitive (especially if the price of conventional gasoline goes up further). However, it would cost several billion dollars to build a plant to make no more than one percent of the nation's gasoline. If energy dollars continue to be squeezed between price controls and rising costs, raising that kind of money won't be easy.

Needed: trade-offs. We think it's possible to use more coal right now without any environmental sacrifice of consequence. Low-sulfur western coal, for example, is clean-burning and should be put to work. But there's got to be some environmental give and take. It makes little sense for America to import foreign oil at a cost of $66 million a day when Americans are sitting on so much coal. It's something to think about.

dense and strong. "With inactivity at any age," Dr. Leaf says, "our bones lose their calcium salts and become thin and fragile, just as muscles atrophy and become smaller and weaker with disuse. In spite of treatment with hormones, vitamin D and high intakes of calcium and phosphorus, osteoporosis [a porous and fragile condition in bone tissue] in our old people has resisted cure. Continued physical exertion remains the most potent measure against this debility."

Manuel Patino is a shy, gentle little man who farms eight hours a day, six days a week. He goes to church every Sunday and says he eats mostly green bananas. While some might wonder about his diet, no one can question his superb health and clear mind.

High in carbohydrates and low in protein, the diet here would upset nutritionists in the United States. Meals are generally beans, corn, potatoes, yucca (a starchy vegetable), banana soup, bread, fruits such as papaya, oranges and grapes, and little meat—about 30 grams a week.

The U.S. Academy of Sciences suggests a daily intake of 2400 calories for persons over 55, and Dr. Guillermo Vela of Quito reported that in Vilcabamba the average among the longevos is 1200. Generally slender, their low-fat diet delays the onset of fatty deterioration of the heart and arteries.

We asked 93-year-old Modesto Burneo if he could read without glasses, and he replied, "Yes." When Father Moriarty handed him a magazine and pointed to a paragraph to read, Modesto laughed and said, "He's just like St. Thomas—unless he sees, he doesn't believe." A widower for the past two years, Modesto has five children.

We heard of many men and women who came to Vilcabamba with severe heart conditions or arthritis and after several months regained good health.

Frank Krammel, a railroad worker from the United States, came to the village in the summer of 1970. Tall and thin, in his middle 60's, he was so badly crippled with heart trouble he was unable to walk even a block without resting. He spent three months in the village and gradually his health improved. He eventually walked for two or three hours a day. He returned home a new man.

Nature at her finest

Vilcabamba means "sacred valley." It is an ecologist's dream, with clear water provided by two rivers, pure air, and a temperate, even climate. Pollution is unknown.

What can we learn from Vilcabamba? Remain physically active and live in an environment that offers pure water, clean air, simple food and a gentle climate. However, it seems to me that this is only part of the story. These longevos seem free from fear and anxiety. Partners with nature and in tune with their surroundings, they know little of physical ailments or mental breakdowns.

If there's one thing we've proved in Western civilization it's that too much will never be enough. We can well profit from the lives of these villagers—the simplicity, health and peace, the freedom from striving and stress. The longevos' superb health seems to reflect an absence of greed that keeps their surroundings pure, their wants simple and their lives purposeful.

Compromise on food stamps seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of legislation to gevamp the federal fooddamp program are workng on a new compromise aimed at making more poor people eligible for free stamps, Sen. Robert bole, R-Kan., said Saturflay.

If such a compromise is reached, it could avert a major floor battle when the Senate begins debating the bill Monday, an aide to Dole said.

Although an original sponsor of the bill, Dole had previously complained that the version approved by the Senate Agriculture Committee earlier this Sear did of a far enough Sear did not go far enough in helping low-income families.

He and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., chair-man of the select nutrition committee, had vowed to fight for amendments to make the stamps easier to obtain for poor people. If In a statement, Dole said he and McGovern have been negotiating with Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., in hopes of "reaching a compro-mise...to help truly needy families obtain food stamps."

The Dole aide said agreement on the compromise appears close, although specific figures have not yet been decided.

The committee bill

would prohibit middle-income families and college students from receiving food stamps and make the stamps available only to families whose monthly incomes, after taxes, are no more than $100 over what the government determines to be the national poverty level. Dole's aide said the proposed compromise would enable some low-income families to obtain stamps

Under both current practice and the commit-tee bill, only persons with no income can get stamps without paying for them. Others who are eligible pay discounted amounts for the stamps, with the discount decreasing as income increases.

The committee bill would save the govern-ment $635 million annual-ly, the Congressional Budget Office has estimated.

Dole said that, if the compromise version is enacted, it would still save taxpayers some $250 million, including an estimat-ed $50 million in reduced administrative costs.

By some estimates, the proposed compromise would enable an estimated 1 million more poor people to obtain the stamps than would be covered under the committee bill.

However, the basic ban on stamps for middle-income families and college students contained in the committee bill would be retained, Dole said.

Dole said he is "striving for a balanced reform of the food-stamp program one that cuts out the abusers with the highest incomes while enabling many impoverished families to receive needed nutritional assistance for the first time."

DETROIT (AP) American Motors Corp. Saturday said it will operate three plants that had been scheduled to close Monday due to the nationwide Teamsters strike.

In the wake of a tentative agreement reached Saturday in the Teamster negotiations, the auto company said it was asking its 11,000 employes at the Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., and the Bramp-

Callaway bid to aid resort as Army secretary told

By MICHAEL PUTZEL Associated Press

WASHINGTON—While he was secretary of the Army, Howard H. Callaway sometimes used official stationery in asking Eastern Airlines not to cut off charter flights to his Colorado ski resort.

It was also learned that contrary to promises Callaway made to the Senate, Callaway was elected acting board chairman of the resort at the corporation's annual meeting in March 1974 while Army secretary.

,Callaway resigned as chairman of President Ford's campaign following reports that he sought favorable government action for his Crested Butte ski resort white serving as Army secretary.

James Reinke, government affairs executive for Eastern Airlines, confirmed reports that Callaway had written a number of letters to Eastern executives in 1973 trying, unsuccessfully, to persuade them not to cut off charter flights to Crested Butte.

Reinke said he had a number of conversations with Callaway and other Crested Butte executives after Eastern decided, in the wake of the energy crisis, to eliminate most of its charter flights and devote its available fuel to the scheduled service.

Callaway and his brother-in-law, Ralph O. Walton, sought on several occasions to persuade Eastern to reconsider, and some of Callaway's letters were written on official secretary of the Army stationery. Reinke

Callaway wrote one letter to Eastern Board Chairman Floyd D. Hall on Sept. 11, 1973, outlining the ski resort's problems and urging the airline to continue the charters. That letter, an aide in Hall's New York office said, was written however, on "plain white bond," and Callaway identified himself only as the majority stock-holder of Crested Butte Development Corp., the ski

Eastern's decision to discontinue the flights stood, and Callaway's corporation turned to other airlines for the service. Braniff International and Johnson Flying Service, a supplemental carrier, eventually took over the Crested Butte charter operation.

Callaway, a former Republican congressman from Georgia, was board chairman of Crested Butte Development Corp. when former President Nixon nominated him for the top Army post in 1973.

At his Senate confirmation hearing on May 3 that year, Callaway promised the Armed Services Commit-tee that he would sell all defense-related stock and take leave from his directorship in several nondefense-related corporations.

Apparently in line with that promise, Callaway tendered his resignation as Crested Butte board chairman effective May 15, 1973, the day he was sworn in as an Army secretary.

Five months later, the corporation held a board meeting in Callaway's Pentagon office, and minutes of that meeting show that Callaway chaired the proceeding until his resignation was officially accepted, and Walton was named the board chairman.

Secret Witness case summaries

Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 65 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with re-wards totaling $43,000 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the case list below, one of the selected and varying summaries of Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount, depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information DIRECTLY through Seeret Witness - that is, to notify Secret Witness

FIRST — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Se-cret Witness post-office

A FRENCH specialty

by beth merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

This recipe is a variation of a hearty, tastetantalizing yet economical French specialty known as cassoulet. Beans are its principal ingredient; meat (usually lamb or pork), poultry (usually duck) and sausage are added; and the whole is made savory with garlic, onion and herbs.

While the authentic recipe is simmered for hours in an earthenware top-stove casserole, our version takes just under an hour to cook—using canned beans, leftover meat or poultry (or both), and sausages. But the seasonings are all there, and the pork in the canned beans adds even more flavor.

RAMEKINS PROVENÇALE

- 2 cups cubed leftover meat or poultry, or both
- Salt and pepper to taste 3 tablespoons
- vegetable oil medium onion.
- chapped 1 to 11/2 cups
- boiling water
- 1 garlic clove 1 herb bouquet*
- each) pork and beans with tomato sauce 1/2 lb. sausages.

2 cans (1 lb.

- browned and halved
- 1/2 cup chili sauce. strained
- 1/2 cup buttered soft bread crumbs

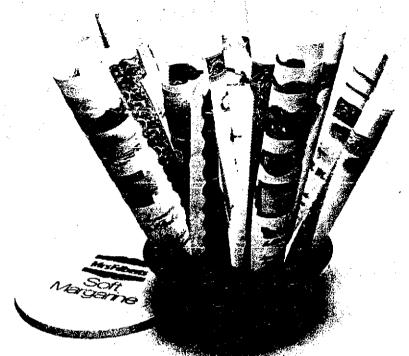

Cut meat into 11/2-inch cubes. Season with salt and pepper. Brown on all sides in very hot oil. Drain off excess oil; add onion and cook until golden brown. Add enough boiling water to cover meat mixture. Add garlic and herb bouquet; simmer 15 minutes. Remove garlic and herb bouquet.

Rub insides of deep ramekins with garlic. Spoon layer of beans into ramekins, then a layer of sausage and pieces of cubed meat. Cover with layer of beans. Add chili sauce to liquid in which meat was cooked; pour over food in ramekins. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Makes four to six servings, depending on size of ramekins.

*Herb bouquet: sprigs of parsley, bay leaf, leaf thyme, celery tops, etc., tied in cheesecloth so it can be removed easily.

À comprehensive plan for industrial development of a 215-acre former Nike missile site in Garden Grove—if the Irvine Co. acquires control, of the property—was filed by the company Friday with Gar-den Grove officials.

The company outlined a 10-year development which officials said would be industrial and commercial in nature. It would have 160 acres of industrial buildings for small industries, 10 acres for industrially oriented commercial firms and the remainder for industrial sites of one acre each or Garden Grove has rezoned the Nike site, which is bounded by Knott Street, Chapman Avenue, Western Avenue and a flood-control ditch south of Katella Avenue, for indus-

Company officials said industrial and commercial enterprises on the site would provide employment for up to 7,200 persons. These projects would generate up to $600,000 annually in city tax revenue, about the same for the county and an estimated $1.1 million for the Gar-

Auto Theft

Most of the car thleves in this country are amateurs.

Careless car owners who park without locking their vehicles will lure more than 90,000 young people under the age of 21 into stealing a million vehicles, according to M. Jay Wanamaker, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America.

In recent years, some 80 percent of all stolen cars were unlocked and some 40 percent had the key in the car.

裳 Dector Visits

Twenty-five percent of all children under 17 in the United States do not visit a doctor within a year, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

On the average, about four visits to a physician's office per year is normal for children under 17.

Upper-income children living in urban areas are most likely to have visited a physician during the year.

* Football Injuries

Football can be a deadly game. Approximately 10 football players a year die from indirect football-related causes such as heart failure and strokes. Another 19 or so die directly from head and neck injuries. So reports the latest "Annual Survey of Football Fatalities" released by the American Football Coaches Association.

More than half of these victims were high school players, others were participants in sandlot foot-

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that in the year ending June 30, 1975, 318,000 football-related injuries were treated in hospital emergency rooms throughout the country.

*Sex Education

Twenty-three experts from 15 countries, convened by the World Health Organization to advise on sex education policies, believe that sex exists for pleasure as well as procreation.

The experts advocate a change of attitude toward human sexuality. They say that young people should not be educated to believe that sex

"In many countries," their report explains, "the existence of sexual taboos and myths and resulting guilt of secrecy imposed by society on sexual matters are important obstacles to sex education.

"Every person has a right to receive sexual information and to consider accepting a sexual relationship for pleasure as well as for procreation.'

Where Graduates Go

This is the age of professionalism on college campuses. More college graduates are advancing to graduate and/or professional school to better prepare themselves for the real world.

A whopping 65 percent of Yale's 1200 graduates last June entered graduate or professional school-a 5 percent increase over the class of 1974. Of those 1975 graduates, 22 percent entered law school, 15 percent Ph.D. programs, 11 percent medical school, 10 percent government service, 5 percent business school and 37 percent others.

What many of these post-college graduates are rudely discovering is that there are frequently no jobs, regardless of their impressive academic credentials.

"I hope the fact that so many students are entering graduate school is not a death wish on their part," explains Priscilla Elfrey, Associate Dean of Yale College for Career Counseling. "I ask them, 'Do you have any idea what the return on your graduate school investment is going to be?

"Far too many students here are convinced that since they are from Yale, they are the ones who will be employed. Someone has to get the jobs, they say, and we are the chosen ones.

"It just doesn't work out that way," explains Elfrey. "Those students who take a leave of absence have a better perspective on this institution."

RINGO STARK

Ringo, the Frustrated Combox

According to Allan Williams, one of the Beatles' first managers, drummer Ringo Starr almost became a cowboy 15 years ago.

Ringo was looking for a job at the time and wrote to the Chamher of Commerce in Houston, Tex., asking if it knew of any cowboy openings.

The chamber replied with a list of the employment agencies in Houston. Two weeks later Ringo was asked to replace the original Beatles drummer, Peter Best, and quickly accepted the offer. He has always, however, had a yearning for the life of a cowbov.

Little bit of luck (and salt) brings in good fish catch

By JACK O. BALDWIN Maritime Editor

When commercial fishermen sprinkle salt on the deck it's not because it's slippery

And when a fisherman shows up wearing unmatched socks it's not because he dressed in the dark.

Commercial fishermen, despite the fact that many are deeply religious, are a superstitious lot, according to Lt. Arthur Bryarly, marine patrol officer of the Department of Fish and Game in Long Beach.

"If a trip is going poorly, quite frequently crewmen will sprinkle the deck with salt hoping the fishing will improve," says Bryarly, who has been dealing with commercial fishermen for 25 years. He has seen fishermen salt the decks after a visitor--- who they believe may have brought bad luck aboard-- goes ashore.

Bryarly tells of some superstitions held by those who fish for a living:

"Portuguese fishermen will try to overcome a bad luck-spell by burning incense on the boat until the sweet-smelling odor is replaced by the even sweeter smell of fresh caught fish. Bait Schemen use a more painful tactle for fishermen use a more painful tactic for trying to end bad luck. They pull a bucket over their heads and run headfirst into the side of the bait tank. That could be hard on the ears.

"Purse seiners won't sail to lish in Mexican waters on Fridays. And the skipper of a boat whose keel was laid or launched on a Friday has a hard time finding a crew.

"A 43-man erew is unlucky. It may also bring bad luck to allow a woman aboard the returning boat until all fish have been unloaded.

"If a sea bird lands in the rigging, the crew gets jittery. But if the bird is a land bird—that brings good luck."

Boats manned by Italian crews may display a set of bull horns painted red. but other boat crews may favor having a set of deer horns.

Some San Pedro commercial fisher-men will chop off the tail of the first caught tuna and nail it to the bow assure a successful season. (This practice is somewhat more difficult to accomplish on modern-day steel-hulled boats.)

But to assure a good bluefin tuna season, it's the other end of the fish that's lopped off. Off comes the head and the beheaded fish is then allowed to bleed into the boat's empty hold.

Some superstitions may be rooted in good old fashioned common sense,

NATIONALLY KNOWN SPEED READING

Long Beach (Spec.) Golden State Reading Lab, Inc. will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Long. Beach area.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effectice program available in the hendmore.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tope so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life. In just 4 weeks the average student should be reading 4-5 times faster. In a few months some students are reading 20-30 times faster attaining speeds that approach 6000 words per minute. In rare instances speeds of up to 13,000 wpm have been documented.

Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one haur, orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend any of the meetings for information about the Long Beach classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible.)

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming . . . now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and compre-

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These special one-hour lectures will be held the following times and places.

Long Beach Meetings Thurs., April 8, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. Friday, April 9, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. Set., April 10, 10:30 a.m. & 1:30 p.m.

These meetings will be held at Great Western Savings & Loan Assoc., 5200 East Second.

Tues April 13, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. Wed., April 14, 6:30 & 8:30 p.m. These meetings will be held at the Long Beach Hilton on Queens Way.

If you are a businessman, student, housewife or executive, this course, which took 5 years of intensive rej search to develop, is a must. You can read 7-10 times faster, comprehend more, concentrate better, and remember langer. Students are affered an additional discount. This course can be tought to industry or civic groups at "Group rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits best in your schedule.

. By SID MOODY Associated Press Writer

By the spring of 1812, circumstance, with no lit-tle brushwork by himself, had painted James Madison into a corner.

Pacing the White House. a building soon to be burned, he knew he had gambled and lost. So it would Theory was one thing for "Jemmy" Madison, the Father of the Constitution. Reality was more unchartable, particularly when events moved more quickly than the transatlantie packets. And Napoleon was cheating.

Madison, as "small as a piece of soap" (actually he was, 5-feet-6), had subtly shifted Jefferson's policy of economic coercion against the warring Euroagainst the warring European powers to preserve American neutrality. Now he, but a price on it. By Macon's Bill No. 2, enacted May 1, 1810, the United States declared she would trade with whichever has trade with whichever na-tion, England or France, renounced its seizure poliey against American shipping. Hopefully, this would also coerce the other belligerent to do likewise, and American vessels could sail on in peace. Unless Napoleon, desirous of American sup-port, reached for a lie in-side his waistcoat. Which

TO THE BRITISH, Na poleon was evil incarnate. Their struggle to the death was everyone's. Why didn't the Americans see this. if only because the French had seized more American ships than the British since 1807? Because Americans had other things in sight.

There were 7,239,881 people in the United States by the 1810 census. More than a million were across the Alleghenies, 400,000 in Kentucky, 230,000 in Ohio. But Indians blocked the lust for expansion. With

Fourth in a series. some justice, frontiersmen accused the British in Canada of fomenting Indian resistance.

in the South, planters coveted East and West Florida, held by a weak-ened Spain, Britain's pro-tege in the war against Napoleon, Further, Britain was abolishing the slave trade. The planters felt a stroke against Britain would loosen her influence among the trading states of New England. At the same time, the South was largely Republican (a party that evolved into the Republican-Democrats, Democrat-Republicans and finally the Demo-crats). They feared the power that arming would put in the hands of the northern manufacturing classes. Yet land — Canada and the Gulf Coast was a lure that overrode politics. On the frontier, if you were challenged, you fought. As simple as that.

ter in August 1810 that he would honor Macon's Bill, Madison chose to believe him, ignoring ample evidence that France continued to victimize American shipping, Madison thought Britain would also have to fall in line and reinstituted an embargo with Britain March 2, 1811. Gradually, it worked. The new textile mills in England's Midlands, in-creasingly dependent on American cotton, were revolutionized by the invention of the gin. No cotton, no jobs. Spinning frames were smashed by trames were smashed by rioting workers called Luddites (after a man, Ludd, who sabotaged the first one). But Britain, cor-rectly, insisted France had not stopped pirating American ships. As evi-dence, London noted Napoleon was threatening war with Russia because the Czar had opened Baltic ports to American commerce. At the same time, Russia was pressuring Britain to avoid war with America. Russia did not want a potential ally distracted in time of need.

BRITAIN, however, sim ply did not believe America would fight. The U.S. consul in London reported opinion there was that we do not mean to go to war, notwithstanding all our preparation, and the idea of our taking Canada is laughed at." But the strain was telling, and June 23, 1812, Parliament suspended the measures against American shipping. It was too late.

Americans in Paris. meanwhile, had been insisting in vain that France prove she had revoked her decrees. Finally, in March 1812. Napoleon's foreign minister produced an edict to that effect, allegedly signed by the Emperor at St. Cloud almost a year earlier, and blandly said it had already been deliver-ed to Washington and might have been lost at sea. It was undoubtedly a forgery. Again, it was too late, even to save face for Madison. Napoleon had duped him into a point of no return against Britain.

In December 1811, the War Hawk Congress voted to increase the regular army to 35,000 men and raise 50,000 militia. When the U.S. frigate President all but shot a smaller British ship, Little Belt, out of the water May 16, 1811, millions had cheered. But it echoed somewhat hollowly. War fever was relative. A group of Federalists voted for war measures because they hoped the Republicans would botch hostilities and be repudiated. Some anti-war Republicans still hoped a show of force would stare Britain down. Madison was on a run-away horse. And not much of a horse.

SECRETARY OF WAR William Eustis, distinguished more as a physi-cian, ran his department with but seven clerks. By May 1, 1812, he reported only 7,000 regulars had signed up. The governors of Massachusetts, Conissue that had not even been under serious negotiations for several years.) With considerable opposition (19-13 in the Senate), necticut and Rhode Island refused to call up militia. Others questioned whether Congress declared war June 18, 1812.

By July, word of Brit-ain's June 23 suspension reached America. Too late. Five months later Napoleon lay ruined before Moscow, Too late. And Jemmy Madison was grand opening today in Anaheim Hills introduces The Country, a new neighborhood of single-family view homes by Warmington Development, development's first increment being introduced today includes 34 homes sched-uled for move-ins by mid-May. When com-plete, The Country will have 120 residences.

The exclusive community, on Carmen Cir-cle near Nohl Ranch Road and Imperial Highway, is amid the rolling hills of what the builder terms one of Orange County's most prestigious residential areas.

Prices range from $67,000 to $33,000 for the selection of four floor plans. The one-and twostory homes offer from 1704 to 2324 square feet of living area with three or four bedrooms and 2 or 2½ baths.

COUNTRY THE offers quiet, rural atmosphere and ideal family environment, yet is close to every convenience, Warmington president of the Irvine-based building firm, says.

Miles of bridle trails wind throughout the scenic countryside sur-rounding the homes and the area offers full cquestrian facilities. Nearby are private and public golf courses, tennis courts, parks and other recreation.

The terraced lots and more windows are included in the homes to maximize the views of Santa Ana and the surrounding Handsome hills. exteriors are available in 12 individually-detailed architectural stylings accented with brick, stone, rustic beams, wood siding and shingles, wrought-iron and shake roofs. There are wide, covered entries and two- or three-car garages in various plans.

Custom-quality ap pointments are found throughout the interiors. There are vaulted ceilings, massive woodburning fireplaces, large formal dining areas, family rooms (with wet bar in some homes) and an additionupper level bonus room in one plan.

Elegant master suites have private bath/dressing room and walk-in closet or double wardrobes. Plush wallto-wall carpeting is included in living and dining room, halls, stairs and all bedrooms and there are decorator-designed lighting throughout.

Irvine building center

The building of Construction Center, an environmentally protected industrial complex for contractors and related uses being developed by the Irvine Industrial Complex, began in late March.

Craig Lyon, sales manager of the project, reports earth-moving equipment has begun to shape the 50-acre site at Jamborce and Barranca roads into the first development of its type in Southern California. Construction the contractors and such related uses as storage yards, recy cling plants, vehicle storage, landscape contractors and ready-mix cement plants.

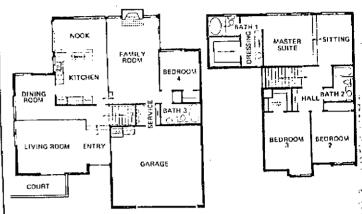

He said 80 per cent of the development has been reserved by 20 companies. Occupancy is scheduled for midsummer of this year.

Lyon noted that im-proved lots are being offered on a sale basis only, in increments of one acre or more,

It's tough making a buck — tougher, still, to hang onto it. And, for major purchases, such as a house, the task sometimes seems sometimes seems seems sempossible, especially leave for the young.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

Plush survival seems

Plush survival scems to be the code of our greedy real estate world. Homes that are really worth little are sold for too much. The real estate commissions are the only real profits. Kids today work just as hard for their money as we did or still do. Kids with families are trapped into buying $50,000 homes with 30-year debts. The monthly payment takes a large chunk of income, along with furniture pay-

> What do you suggest to newlyweds who look forward to buying that first home? How can they save for outlandish down payments and budget for high rate in-stallments? I think there is a real need for stylish, low-cost homes with practical rates. Our 200th year, hopefully, will be a stopping point in the ridiculous spiral increase in unworthy home struc-tures. — V.A.W., Lake-

ANSWER: You make some very good points

— points that bother as many people within the real estate/home construction industries as they do among potential home buyers. One of the big drags on home construction, in fact, is that the inflationary spiral in land, material and wages has steadily increased the median price of homes to the point where it takes a most unusual newlywed to qualify as If the only home, for

000 a year? Fortunately, the home construction industry isn't populated by a bunch of complete idiots, so, for the past couple of years, there HAS been a decided trend toward more "no frills" housing to keep the prices down as low as possible. Many features that were standard a few years ago are now optional. This is helping, but it isn't entirely solving the problem by any means.

What can the newlywed do about this?

ANSWER: It's one of those things that you should take care of as soon as possible be-cause, if anything should happen to you, and if you don't happen to have a will, it could get very sticky for your wife. Stale faws vary considerably, but if you should die intestate (without a will), the state steps in and divides up the property. While the wife naturalare also in line for a piece of the estate.

The best way for you of income in the U.S. is becoming increasingly unequal. The rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer.

According to Andrew F. Brimmer, a Harvard University economist who laft the Federal Reserve's Board of Governors in 1974, it's the blacks and the poor whites who are losing ground.

"In general," Brimmer told the 142nd annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. "over the last five years, income has been redistributed so as to favor whites vs. blacks, the hetter-off vs. the poor. the newer regions of the country vs. the old, and the suburbs vs. both rural areas and central cities."

TWO-STORY LIVING ROOM IN DEANE'S WALDEN PLAN

'Gold Nugget' awards won by all four Deane plans

"When you're in competition with builders from the West Coast, we feel you're up against some of the finest talent in the na-tion," says Cary Gar-land, director of mar-keting for Deane Development Co. of Newport Beach.

"That's why we take particular pride in the fact that not just one, or two, or even three of our homes in the Village of University Park in Irvine have been honored in competition with builders from the 14 western states. All four plans eligible at tion received the presti-gious 'Gold Nugget' award." the time of the competi-

JUDGING criteria upon which the awards were based included "concern for living environment; innovative planning and design: functional, imaginative floor plans; interior-exterior relationships; elevations; site planning and land-scaping, and value," according to a publica-tion of the National Association of Home Builders, which sponsors the annual builder "Best In The West" competition.

Deane's "Walden" plan at University Park received an Award of Merit in the single family home under 1,650 square feel cate-gory. Judges were quoted as saying: "A first rate, well done house." Walden has two bedrooms and two baths, with prices start-ing at $70,500.

Next in size of the Deane plans at Univer-sity Park is the "Bendemeer." It was presented a Grand Award in the singlefamily home between 1,650 and 2,000 square feet category. Judges noted that the plan's "site planning, floor plan, interior design, good elevations and innovative concepts add up to a home with good market appeal.' Bendemeer has three bedrooms and two baths, with prices beginning at $75,000.

"A very urban kind of house with a dramatic entry. An excellent floor plan and good indoor-outdoor relationship," was part of what the judges had to say of "Candlewood" plan Deane University Park, when awarding the home an Award of Distinction in the single family home between 1,650 and 2,000 square feet category. THE LARGEST of the Deane homes in University Park is the 'Kensington," with its four bedrooms and three full baths in two stories. Judges gave this home an Award of Merit in the single-family home, more than 2,000 square feet category. "A design that makes the most of vertical spaces and the attention given to interrelated horizontal spaces," commented the panel of experts. Kensington prices start at $81,750.

A fifth plan, intro-duced at Deane Univer-sity Park after the contest was held in 1974, has since sold out.

Leisure World: its security is 'fine if you like old people'

SECTION 8-Page 8-1

Robert Breunig, who is 49. remembers meeting an elderly chap from Leisure World at a hardware store in Rossmoor recently.

"I got to talking with him and asked him how he liked it there," snid Breunig.

"'H's fine,' he said, 'if you like old people."

A reporter sat beside an 84-year-old man outside the Alpha Bela market in the Leisure World Shopping Center the other day and posed the same question.

A slight wind rustled the few wisps of white hair on the old man's head as he stared reflectively through his glasses.

"ON THE whole," he began slowly, "particularly for a single man, you're better off here than in

"The only thing that might bother some people," he said, "is the rules. Some of them are really indicated by the rules of them are really the rules. They even the rules were really the rules. ridiculous. They even tell you where to put your kitchen towel (as a precaution against fires), and there's sort of a curfew on noise after 10. They also say you can't do this or that before 7 in the morning. I'm an early riser, and it eramps my style a little."

To Ben Nicholas, on the other hand, Leisure World is the closest thing to paradise for retired folk like him. And many Leisure Worlders agree

At 82, Nicholas is a short, spry man of seemingly inexhaustible energy. It's reflected in his activities at Leisure World.

HE'S A key figure in the project's Democratic Club; he swims every day; he volunteers his services to a program called Emergency Meals (for temporarily in-capacitated Leisure World residents); he's deeply involved in Leisure World's foreign-affairs club, and he's been active in the campaign to get the Legislature to pass a bill called the Natural Death Act.

Of course, the absence of monetary worries has something to do with his current well-being. Nicholas saved a tidy sum during his years in the laundry-equipment business. But Leisure World is the big factor. It's Ben Nicholas' universe and final fling all wrapped up in a reasurring bundle of security.

"These are my most rewarding years," he says. At one time he was bothered by gout, migraine headaches and diabetes. Not anymore, he'll tell you.

The wall that surrounds Laigues

The wall that surrounds Leisure World — the wall that suggests an almost paranoid obsession with protection — enables him and his fellow residents, moreover, to walk the project's streets without fear — at any time of the day or night.

"FRIENDS ask us how we can live with a wall around us," says Rose Nicholas, Ben's wife. "It's easy," she adds. "A lot of people have moved here in recent years because they're scared to go out at night."
"People (also) move to Leisure

World because their homes were broken into six or seven times," says Marilyn Marshall, a consultant in adult education for the State Department of Education. Or, if they're like one couple in the project, they move there because three of their former neighbors were killed within two years.

Against that backdrop, it's easy to see why the key to Leisure World's popularity is its security. Residents can live within a protection. live enclosure without losing their freedom of movement.

In addition, Leisure World offers 24-hour standby medical service, which the residents also

IN THE project's early days, there was a prepaid health plan, too, but overuse of the program pushed its costs so high that Leisure World's directors scrapped the plan in favor of a pay-as-you-go arrangement.

Fourteen years ago, Leisure World founder Ross Cortese touted his pioneering housing development the nearest thing to a utopian senior-citizen project.

Cynics snickered at the time. After all, Cortese's description was the sort of thing you would have expected from a developer with 6,500 empty apartments on his hands and a $150 million investment to recoup.

Today, despite the failure of the prepaid health plan, Leisure World is a proven success, and the skeptics are no longer chortling.

. (CORTESE, incidentally, is not associated with Leisure World in Seal Beach anymore. He's associated with others, though — such as the one in Laguna Hills. His management firm was ousted from the Seal Beach retirement community during a residents' revolt in the mid-1920s, when the project was still in its shakedown phase. An independent company has since been brought in to manage it.)

Today, retirement communities like Leisure World house an estimated 1 million seniors. Their security features, moreover, no long-er seem novel in a world searching desperately for solutions to crime and terrorism. Leisure World's cinder-block wall and guarded entrance are but genteel reminders of the eight-foothigh chain-link fence — and armed guards — that surrounded Inns-bruck's Olympic Village earlier this year.

Their counterparts may be found in hundreds of walled hous-ing tracts, as well as in the myriad security apartment buildings that have become the sanctuaries of America's frightened upper and middle-class urbanites.

IF THE self-imposed segrega-tion of Leisure World's 9,500 resi-dents appears to augur a future organized along rigid class lines — as in Aldous Huxley's pessimistic novel "Brave New World" — Lei-sure Worlders don't see it in that

"This is a singing, dancing, happy community," says Marj Shippey in a statement that seents to affirm Ross Cortese's early description of the project.

For Leisure Worlders, "utopia" is a 541-acre expanse of garden apartments, manicured lawns, four large clubhouses and an assortment of other facilities, including a pool, shuffleboard courts and a nine-hole golf course.

The clubhouses are bechives of activity. As Mrs. Shippey, editor of the Leisure World News, points out, "there are tons of organizations to join." Around 200, in fact. Which gives you some idea of the almost dizzying pace of life in the project — at least for the joiners, of whom there seem to be oodles.

OBVIOUSLY, Leisure World is not a place where oldsters go to sit out the rest of their waning days in the sedentary company of other

"They don't stop living when they come here," says Jack Davis, the administrator of Leisure World. They play more and travel more - perhaps, as one observer noted wryly, because they realize there's only so much time left. The symbol of Leisure World is not the rocking chair. It's the bicycle — or rather the tricycle, which is even more popular.

If there's an unwritten code among Leisure Worlders, it's that their community is not a place for the very sick or invalid.

It's true, the administration runs a program that enables Lei-sure Worlders to hire themselves out as part-time nurses or housekeepers for incapacitated or convalescing residents.

Crouthamel of San Pedro spends a profitable busness life waiting for other people's ships to come in.
Charlie is a ship's chandler. Translation for landlubbers: A chandler supplies all ship needs except fuel. Maritime companies fitting out for voyages go to Charlie's Harbor Ship Supply to buy their groceries, beer, wine, fresh meat, inflatable life rafts, toilet paper, napkins, cutlery, lea strainers, deck and engine supplies.
There's much more to the Crouthamel inventory, but you get the idea. Ship provisioning is big busiess. Or as Charlie Crouthamel says:

Or as Charlie Crouthamel says:

"If a company like mine isn't doing $500,000 or so of business every month, it just isn't in business."

Swabbies might call the Crouthamel enterprise the world's biggest "slop chest," but Charlie likens the business to a country store. And I suspect he's right, for if the old jot-'em-down stores at the crossroads didn't have what you needed in stock, it just wasn't to be had.

TRICYCLES, ALONG WITH BIKES, ARE POPULAR AT LEISURE WORLD

THE COUNTRY store analogy probably owes to Charlie's boyhood in Lansdale, Pa., where life was simple and the best thing a customer or merchant had going for him was his integrity and ability to deliver. At least Charlie sees things that way.

Charlie dropped out of school in the seventh grade. Child labor laws were pretty slack in those days, and wages were just about as small as the boys who could find jobs.

Charlie was 15 in 1910, when he went to work as a carpenter's apprentice for $4.50 a week. A job scarcity in the winter of 1912-1913 caused him to sign up with the U.S. Navy as a shipwright in the Phila-

Then came a tour with Tanner Brothers Ship Provisions, which went bust when the Depression hit. Undaunted, Charlie went into partnership with one of the Tanner brothers, Buck.

HE RECALLS his first order for Tanners: "It was 10 heads of lettuce and five pounds of tomatoes. And the reason I got the order is that a ship's captain was returning Tanners' favor in getting his son out of

City files odd lawsuit

The Museum of the Sea on the Queen Mary has had serious financial difficulties.

Expected industry sponsorship for museum exhibits was not forthcoming. So money had to be borrowed to pay for the exhibits.

Attendance has been far below the initial estimates. It is easy to say that someone, somehow, could have done better with the museum. But no one now has any easy answers.

TO ALL THE museum's financial problems, publicity problems have been added by wrangling between city officials and officials of the nonprofit foundation that operates the museum.

There have been public quarrels between Long Beach City Manager John Mansell and Mayor Tom Clark on one side and the volunteer museum directors on the other. Those quarrels have omade it harder to solve the questions that trouble the entire Queen "Mary operation — questions brought on by the fact that the operation has been divided, rather than unified, since Diners Club had to pull out of the original operating contract.

In the long run, publicity problems are worse than financial problems. Financial problems can be cured with money. Sometimes publicity problems can't be solved at all. These problems can stifle an operation long after the money problems have been solved.

TO THE ALREADY serious publicity problems, city officials have now added a lawsuit against the museum foundation.

The alleged purpose of the law-suit is to compel the foundation to pay $2.2 million it allegedly owes the city for utilities, insurance and security and custodial services. The suit also asks that the foundation be required to pay a $2,500 penalty for each day it remains in charge of the museum. In addition, the suit asks that a court restrain the foundation from disposing of museum assets. And the suit asks that the foundation's 40-year lease be terminated; the city would then take over the museum operation.

Technically, the lawsuit may

The foundation can't pay $2.2 million it doesn't have - a fact that has long been obvious to city officials, for the debt has piled up over several years.

No one could seriously think the foundation would sell the museum assets. For that matter, who would buy them?

And the museum directors had already said that if the city officials had someone ready to take over the entire Queen Mary operation - something everyone agrees is the ultimate solution - the foundation would hand over the keys to the museum at once. Otherwise, the museum directors said, the city could take over the museum by Sept. 30, at the close of the already planned busy sum-

AT BEST, THE suit can establish the exact size of the foundation's debt without establishing any way to pay it. And the suit can assure that the museum directors will not eat the fish or sell the other exhibits.

The price that city officials are prepared to pay for these curious victories is high. There is more bad publicity for the museum, for the Queen Mary and for Long Beach. There is a widening of the gap that separates the museum directors from the mayor and city manager. Such a split between community leaders is not good for

There is in any event small likelihood that the suit can very much speed up the takeover of the museum by city employes, who probably know less about running a museum than those now in

THE PEOPLE WHO pay the costs — and will pay them whatever the outcome of the lawsuit - are the citizens of Long Beach.

They have every right to demand that their city officials stop squabbling with museum leaders, abandon any attempts at vindication or vengeance, try to mend the damage already done, and undertake a program that will make the Queen Mary the superb attraction it should be.

Warehousing children

After Los Angeles County's 411bed juvenile facility at Sylmar was destroyed in the 1971 earthquake, a move began to rebuild it.

The primary argument for rebuilding is that $9.1 million in federal disaster aid is available for the job. That would pay close to half the cost.

BUT ALL THE experts on rehabilitation of juvenile offenders agree that such huge facilities are counterproductive. The proper function for a juvenile hall is to detain before trial those boys and girls who would endanger themselves or others if they were turned loose. The National Council on Crime and Delinquency estimates that no more than 10 per cent of arrested juveniles should be detained.

The waste of federal and county money in the Sylmar reconstruction would be only the beginning. The Los Angeles Coalition for Youth and Justice argues that a rebuilt Sylmar facility would cost more than $344 million for construction, operation and maintenance over a 20-year peri-

Architectural plans for rebuilding the Sylmar facility are on the county supervisors' agenda Tuesday. For pratical purposes, this may be the last chance to head off a wasteful and ineffective pro-

Supervisors James Hayes and Ed Edelman oppose rebuilding Sylmar. We hope at least one of the other supervisors joins them.

HAYES FAVORS building smaller detention centers. Even these may not be necessary. Alternatives include temporary group homes, supervised detention in an offender's own home, and neighborhood self-help services that get at the causes of delinquency and provide counseling on school and family problems, on drugs and on employment.

Whatever alternatives are chosen, it would be a mistake to rebuild Sylmar simply to take advantage of the availability of federal funds.

In the short run, it would be bad for the children who are sent there. In the long run, in addition to that problem, it would be bad for the laxpayers who would foot the bills - not only for Sylmar but for the crime it would do little to

Kennedy's cover-up exposed

WASHINGTON - Somewhere in this broad land, to judge from the polls, a goodly number of voters have been waiting for Teddy. They can forget it. With publi-cation of Robert Sherrill's The Last Kenne-dy, the senior senator from Massachusetts no longer remains in the ball game. He's been called out on fouls.

The book is a bombshell. It picks up on the piece Sherrill wrote in July 1974 for the New York Times, amplifies the conflicting evidence, and comes to a crushing conclu-sion: Kennedy's cover-up of the Chappaquiddick tragedy makes Nixon's cover-up of the Watergate scandal look like a child's game of peek-a-boo.

KENNEDY'S MANIPULATION of "everything and everyone," in Sherrill's view, "was undoubtedly the most brilliant cover-up ever achieved in a nation where investigative procedures are well developed and where the principles of equal justice prevail at least during some of those moments when people are watch-

A dozen other books, to be sure, long ago sought to expose the half truths and whole lies of Chappaquiddick, Sherrill's stinging narrative carries a special quality all its own. He comes to this wretched affair as a certified liberal; he is Washing ton correspondent for the Nation. His profound disappointment in Edward Kennedy - his shame and scorn for the senator's conduct — can be sensed like hot tears, unshed, beneath the cool discipline of his prose. In quite another context, I of his prose. In quite another context, I myself once knew the feeling.

It will be seven years this July since Mary Jo Kopechne died in the watery wreck of Kennedy's Oldsmobile sedan. Many persons will have forgotten the characters in this drama, the lines they spoke, the roles they played. Sherrill's gift is to bring it all back.

EVERYTHING that we know — really know — of Chappaquiddick can be summed up in a few sentences. On July 18, 1969, Kennedy went to a cookout party on Chappaquiddick Island at Edgartown, Mass. The quests included five men, all of them old Kennedy friends, and six young women, all of them veterans of Robert Kennedy's 1968 campaign. Some time that night, Kennedy's car went off a narrow bridge. Mary Jo Kopechne's body was re-trieved the next morning.

On July 25, Kennedy pleaded guilty to a charge that he "did operate a certain motor vehicle upon a public way and did go away after knowingly causing injury . . without stopping and making known his name, residence, and the number of his motor vehicle." Kennedy was sentenced to two months in the workhouse, suspended. His driver's license was suspended for one

Those are the bare bones of the story.

After seven years, those bare bones are about all we have. Twelve critical hours are still blank. As Sherrill makes clear from an exhaustive examination of the record, it is impossible to this day to put together a clear, corroborated account of who attended the party, what they had to drink, when Kennedy and Miss Kopechne departed, whether they left together, how and when Kennedy got across the channel

to Edgartown, whether the young woman drowned or was asphyxiated. And so on.

THIS IS BECAUSE some of the evidence was destroyed, some of the police work was amazingly feeble, and a long-delayed inquest was conducted with curious ineptitude. Mainly, the mysteries remain because everyone clammed up. They stonewalled it. "The word is Nixon's," remarks Sherrill, "but the pra-tice is Kennedy's."

"I don't believe the public is general

aware of how very successful simple a lence can be in a situation like this Sherrill says. In the case of Watergat Nixon kept talking and his aides kept ba bling, and relentless and unfriend investigators could not be suppressed. investigators could not be suppressed the case of Chappaquiddick, Kenned made one cotton-candy statement, hriends locked their lips, and the bloo hounds of justice curled up like puppiand slept. After a while, the frustrate press went away.

The Last Kennedy is a reminder the books can affect history. One thinks Tom Paine, Edmund Burke, Emile Zol Harriet Beecher Stowe — a list could a long extended of writers whose works.

long extended of writers whose works, and of themselves, shaped the course events. Sherrill's damning version events. Sherian's dantaing version "J'accuse," coming in a spring when a untarnished Kennedy could have hi party's nomination for the asking, will fin its place on this significant shelf.

THE SAFETY IS ON AGAIN, OFF AGAIN, ON AGAIN..."

Bill Simon wants to be No. 2

WASHINGTON — While the public gaze is upon the presidential candidates, a few less ambitious men are campaigning quietly for the vice presidency.

One of the most promising is Treasury man, who has been loyal to President Ford but has managed to please the Ronald Reagan conservatives at the same time.

Jack Anderson Les Whitten

Washington wise men are saying that a Ford Reagan ticket, given the clash of per-sonalities, would be hard to forge. Bill Simon would be available, in such an event, as Reagan's stand-in.

It cost $55 million, consists of a circular tower resting on a rectangular base which is divided into three parts.

It boasts a lake in the lobby, a seven-story atrium and 1100 rooms, which start on the 15th and progress to the 70th floor.

Rates range from $30 a day for a single to $880 a day for a 16-room suite.

The circular hotel was designed by architect John Portman, is owned by Portman Properties, and is managed by Western International Hotels, a subsidiary of United Airlines.

In Great Britain, the license fee for operating a color TV set has risen from $24 a year to $36. The British Broadcasting Corp. . deeply in the red, has applied for a further increase but has been told license fees will have to remain at the present figure for at least two more years.

In Ireland, TV viewers have to pay $54 a year for color set licenses and $32 for black and white sets.

The money goes for the production of TV programs.

TOO EMOTIONAL FOR THE ENGLISH

It is common practice in Europe for small groups of muscular young men to exchange embraces and even kisses on every weekend when one of their teammates scores a goal at soccer.

Such behavior has come under sharp attack from England's football association, which fears that Britain's reputation as "a nation of firm-lipped untouchables" is in jeopardy.

Accordingly, England's football association has drafted on-the-field standards for its soccer players to downplay "demonstrations of pleasure."

Predictably, the London press believes this practice was "something the British footballer learned from the foreigner."

WOMEN AT TORYO CLUB WITH RENTED DANCING PARTNERS

The practice of paying professional male hosts has really caught on in Japan.

In Tokyo alone there are now more than 150 clubs where women pay men to dance, drink, and flirt with them, and possibly do more.

Most of the women searching for excitement at these clubs are married, and in many cases husband-neglected.

Almost five years ago, Ginza Knight was established as one of the first host clubs in Tokyo.

According to its manager, Kunio Maeda, "We now have more than 90 men to look after our clientele, most of them women in their 30's and 40's. Many of them are lonely or taken for granted and want a night of dancing or fun or entertaining conversation.

"We charge these women $2 a half-hour to rent a host. Food and drinks are extra. If they ask for a particular host, the charge is $2.30 an hour.

"Some of our hosts earn as much as $3000 a month. These are the men who encourage our clientele to eat and drink heartily. Most of our hosts are single, and they must obey strictly our house rules. For example, they must dress neatly; they must act politely; they cannot dance with their partners cheekto-cheek. Everything must be on the upand-up. We do not encourage after-hours affairs.'

Whether such affairs are encouraged or not, they take place. One host estimates that he has affairs with at least 10 percent of his women customers.

"That's how I've managed to build up a loyal following," he points out, "and a stabilized budget."

Another host, a former Tokyo policeman. recently confided to a reporter: "Generally there are two types of women customers. One who will never come back if you go to bed with her. She is so ashamed. The other will come back regularly if you go to bed with her. It's best to move slowly before you make a judgment. What you want in this business are regulars. One must judge his customers carefully."

No big environmental problem is involved

As the storm over nuclear power swirls about the state, Californians are pondering its pres and cons as they face the issue in the June election. Many feel they lack the knowledge to vote intelligently on Proposition 15, the initiative which proposes to put the brakes on building and operating nuclear power plants. In the following articles written for the Portland Oregonian which we are presenting in six parts, Dixy Lee Ray explores the issues involved and in clear, simple language, explodes some of the myths propounded by foes of nuclear power. Dr. Ray, a marine biologist, is former chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission—the editor.

By DIXY LEE RAY

Nuclear power is here, it is proven, it is safe, it is sound, it should be used. No industry has ever developed with so much care from the very beginning.

It would be a great tragedy, in my view, if this nation failed to exploit energy from the atom because of the organized opposition of so few, which, sadly, influences the lears of so many.

MORE THAN 25 years have been spent in developing nuclear power plants. The first reactor in this country began turning out electricity in 1957. The entire nuclear technology is based on decades of research

Counting all the operating nuclear

reactors in the nation, including those used in research and those propulsion reactors in the Navy, we can count more than 2,000 reactor-years of experience and not one single incidence of harm to any member of the public in any way. I would call that a safe technology.

In fact, I would say the nuclear power industry has a safety record which cannol be matched. Yet, there are those few peo-ple among us who would attempt to lake this energy alternative away from us; take it away by deliberately raising emotional questions about nuclear energy that play on the fears of the public.

THESE EMOTIONAL questions have been raised primarily on five grounds and each issue, to varying degrees, has been successful, all too often, in raising fear because people don't really know very

But fear requires ignorance; it can never be bred except in the absence of information. Yet regardless of whether a fear is real or fancied in terms of factual information, the fear itself is rational and once someone is motivated to be afraid, the fear is quite real even though the information that caused the fear may be

The five most common fears expressed by those opposing nuclear power are:

- Environmental considerations, including the handling of radioactive waste products, and thermal pollution.

— Health considerations, including near-and long-term storage of radioactive nuclides, radiation dangers. Safety considerations, including the possibilities of catastrophic accidents, such as a nuclear reactor core melt-down. - Fear of terrorism, sabotage or diversion of nuclear materials into hostile hands for either revolutionary or economic

 Economics and fuel supply prob lems, with arguments ranging from the inefficiency of some nuclear reactors and the cost per kilowatt hour of nuclear energy to concerns over finite uranium reLet's take these fears one by one and apply some facts to the fancy.

With respect to environmental problems, there is always the siting problemto wit, where are you going to put the plants? Nuclear plants are plants are no different from anything else when it comes to siting problems. Whenever anyone sug-gests locating any plant—oil refineries, wage treatment plants, slaughter houses, all kinds of things—there usually is agree ment that the plant should be built, but somebody will say, "Oh, no, not in my backyard; you can't put it here." Locating nuclear plants is no different.

WHAT WE have to do is recognize that places need to be selected, perhaps as an objective of good land use planning, for all kinds of plant construction because development will be opposed without such a

The first big environmental opposition to nuclear plants was related to something called thermal pollution. A nuclear plant generates heat as does any thermal plant for the generation of electricity in order to cool the material that makes steam. To keep the fuels cool enough, water is used and that means that warm water is discharged into a natural waterway.

Biologists, of whom 1 am one, have expressed considerable fear about this discharge and invented a term called "thermo-pollution" for fear that the increase in water temperature would be adverse to the living organisms in the natural waterways. Experience has shown, however, that far from being adverse, in nearly every instance the somewhat warmer water has turned out to be a place where the fish, not being totally stupid, prefer to

Indeed, in most places where there is a warm water discharge, this is where fishermen soon learn to go to catch the fish.
In England, for example, the discharge

from the nuclear power plants into some of the bays of the North Sea has resulted in a commercial fishery developing almost overnight. A fish closely related to sole and flounder is being raised in the warmed water from the nuclear plant discharge and those "thermal" fish reach maturity and are marketable four years in advance of those that live in naturally cold water.

WHAT ABOUT radioactive waste? Now there's a question that really scares people. Well, a great deal has been heard about the problems of radioactive waste leaks at Hanford in Eastern Washington. would like to point out that all of that has to do with waste from the weapons program, which began 25 years ago. The decision then made to store it in a liquid form buried in tanks in the ground was based on the known technology a quarter of a century ago.

But no waste from commercial nuclear

Moreover, the technology for handling wastes, such as radioactive materials, in nuclear power plants has been well developed through research in the past 25 years and the only reason that firm deciyears and the only reason that firm decisions have not yet been made is that we don't have enough waste available yet from nuclear power plants to justify re-processing conversion to solids, incorporation into glass or ceramics, or made into a totally insoluble material for storage or other dispensation.

WE EXPECT that this waste from conventional nuclear power plants will arrive about the middle-1980s. But in the meantime, research is continuing and many useful things are being discovered about radioactive wastes. In fact, today's radioactive waste or nuclear garbage might well turn out to be tomorrow's recoverable resource.

One such waste, radioactive cesium, which is now being separated from the weapons waste at Hanford, is one of the most economical ways, we find, to sterilze sewage, just as we found that radioactive boron is an excellent material for sterilizing materials in hospitals.

Radioactive cesium can also be used to sterlize grain, perfectly safely. It is like sterilizing with ultra violet; indeed, it is an alpha emitter, but an easy material to shield. Nothing harmful would get into the grain, but what it would do is kill off all the spores and all the fungus and all of the insect eggs and things like that. When you stop to think that between 25 and 40 per cent of all the grain that is raised and in the world today is stop to think that between 25 and 40 the world today is used to feed insects, fungus and bacterial rot, one can immediately see a real need for radioactive cesi-um as a means to increase the world's food

WOULD IT BE prudent, then, to make a premature decision now, in light of all the hysteria over radioactive wastes, and bury all of this nuclear waste in a perma-nent way, so that technology is deprived of an opportunity to put it to work for man-

There is a theoretical possibility that when we develop sufficiently powerful neu-tron generators, which will happen in the fusion research program, that a beam of neutrons directed against the radioactive waste might possibly degrade all of that radioactive hot stuff to stable isotopes.

Those are just some of the reasons why there is no decision right now to dispose of these wastes for all eternity. What's the big rush? There's no problem yet. (NEXT: Is nuclear power a public health danger?)

The United States has one set of rules for the very rich and another set for the

In your Sunday, March 28, paper there were two articles that show an example of this double standard.

On page B-1 you flashed "Police decoys trap clients 'lishing' for sex." That article told how some middle-class citizens "fish" for sex while the police department picks them off.

The Parade magazine Personality section answered a question by reporting that it's true that the CIA provided federal funds for the "female companionship" of various visiting dignitaries. I'm sure this is only one example of how the hard-earned middle-class tax dollars are wasted procuring sex for the very rich.

We have given too much power and money to too few. They have put themselves on pedestals and are telling the masses to do as I say, not as I do — and,

God only knows why, we have been.
These sad articles on sex were just the straw that broke the camel's back. I'm tired of seeing how those few that are in office, or have money, can buy or talk their way out of everything from traffic tickets to murder.

If the middle-class Americans would only stop fighting among themselves and wake up to what's happening in our country, only good could come from it.

List of words you hate to hear: Vict-nam, Watergate, Nixon, CIA, bribes, Agnew, illegal wiretaps, Lyndon B. Johnson, assassinations, imperial presidency, cobra venom, Mafia murder contracts, conspiracy, perjury, illegal campaign con-

Now, why have so many in the audience left us before the above list was half finished? Because they were tired of hear-ing of these things. They are bored with them, or made angry by them, or sad-dened by them, for the words evoke a decade of American disillusionment.

I LIST THEM here not to depress you, but to raise a point about the survival of Gerald Ford and the rise of Jimmy Carter. Is it not curious that none of the words on the list are ever discussed in this odd presidential campaign, although they all go to the heart of what the campaign is

No, it is not curious at all. If Americans no longer want to read such words, what same politician would risk alienating us by speaking them aloud in public? Quite sensibly, the politicians do not mention them. This does not mean that they do not add up to the most important single issue in the campaign. They probably do.

This might be called the disillusionment issue. Assume for a moment that popular distaste for our list reflects a distaste for—even fear of—government, the supreme symbol of which is the presidency. If so, we might reason that Americans actually prefer not to have a president this year. If it were feasible, we might very well go forth and cast an overwhelming ballot for Nobody for President, feeling that we now deserve a respite from the agents of our disillusion.

The constitution denies us this relief. We cannot elect Nolwdy. We can, however, elect somebody who is very close to being Nobody. Gerald Ford, for example. The reason Renald Reagan has done so badly after the brilliant polls of December is probably because he threatened, if elected, lo become a president. All that talk about putting more dynamic punch into the foreign policy and shaking up the bureaug cy—it was terrifyingly presidential. Rea-gan was threatening to become another take-charge guy. Johnson and Nixon had been take-charge guys, and the results were Vietnam and Watergate.

Ford, by contrast, seems delightfully incapable of taking charge of anything. He leaves the foreign policy in charge of Henry Kissinger, whose more impetuous adventures can be canceled by the Congress, and his economic policy is in charge of Adam Smith, who has been dead since 1790. True, Ford can still bomb the Cambodian navy, appoint Supreme Court justices and pardon old presidents, but with a and pardon old presidents, but with a Democratic Congress ready to cancel almost anything else he might undertake, we are assured of intense inaction.

This, of course, works in Ford's favor in the big contest this fall with the Democratic candidate. Whoever wins the presidency, the Democrats are a political think to relate the part of Congress. Then certainty to rule the next Congress. Then, as now, we can anticipate Congress and President efficiently canceling each other out to achieve a presidency (indeed, a whole government) that is as close to nothing as the Constitution permits.

THE DEMOCRATS, obviously, are hard pushed to match Ford's lack of presidential threat. Interestingly, those who have survived the presidential primaries this far are Jackson, who threatens to presidentialize the foreign policy but also promises gales of somnolence; Udall, who comes from the House of Representatives, which has never threatened to do anything; and Carter, of whom very little is

Of these, Carter does best right now in public-opinion polls, which indicates that if we cannot have a highly approximate No-body like Ford, our next preference is for an unknown quantity—our old friend, more often enemy, x of the high-school algebra

Leisure World: its security is 'fine if you like old people'

But the program doesn't contradict the code. It reinforces it by relieving the residents of the onerous burden of taking care of their neighbors — that is, beyond looking in on them occasionally and doing little lavors for them.

THE RESIDENTS welcome the opportunity to be neighborly — it's an integral part of their life. But only up to a point, as two women made clear. "People who become incapacitated want their neighbors to help them, but we didn't come here for that," the women said.

It's generally understood, then, that a person who loses his mobility for good will go to a nursing home. Curiously, though, most Leisure Worlders are ambulatory to the end, according to Dr. J. Y. Feinstein, head of the project's medical clinic.

"We find that periods of debility and immobility are shortened by an active life," he says.

People who come here have to be capable of self-care," says Jack Davis. And nowhere is that fact driven home more emphatically than in the project's admission re-quirements: People don't get into Leisure World these days unless they can take care of themselves and have sufficient savings to insure their financial security.

TO BUY stock in the project it's a stock cooperative, in effect a person has to have a monthly income at least four times larger than his monthly payment.

Today the average new resident has to plunk down $14,000 just to buy into the project, indicating that only a better-heeled clientele can afford to live in Leisure World.

The combination of inflation and fixed incomes has made life difficult for a minority of Leisure Worlders — especially those who moved in 10 or 12 years ago on marginal resources.

ON THE whole, though, Leisure World is a relatively affluent community. There's no better testimony to that than the competition between the three or four savings institutions in the complex. They practically trip over each other in their eagerness to attract depositors from the project.

And the deposit figures are enough to make a banker swoon.

In one year alone, the Great Western Savings and Loan branch at Leisure World saw its deposits rise from $86.7 million to $103.5 million, according to Manager John Machado.

Do Leisure Worlders forsake a certain responsibility to the larger community when they move into the project?

"I SUPPOSE we're open to a charge of provincialism," says George Supple, president of the Golden Rain Foundation, the project's elected governing body.

I must admit that most of my time is devoted to enhancing the good life here.

Many, however, feel that Lei-sure Worlders are entitled to their semi-isolation from the outside. As one person put it: "When you're older, maybe you have the right to put the world's problems behind you in the interest of satisfying your long-deferred wants."

And yet how account for the

And yet, how account for the high degree of political activity in the project, as evidenced by Lei-sure World's large Republican and Democratic clubs?

The truth is, it's hard to generalize about Leisure World's isolation: Its residents are at once insular and involved, active and passive. It depends on whom you happen to meet in the project. In a way, Leisure World is an extension of the larger community, with all

IN ANOTHER sense, though, it poses unique problems, as many Seal Beach residents will testify. With one third of the city's popula tion, Leisure World holds the balance of political power in Seal Beach. Yet Seal Beachers find it difficult to influence Leisure World voters directly. They find it especially difficult to circulate petitions in the project.

As one resident of the city's downtown section put it: "They can rap on our doors for signatures, but we can't rap on theirs."

As Seal Beachers soon discover, freedom of movement is a one-way street in Leisure World. Outsiders must get special permission to get into the project, and permission is not readily granted.

Nor is Leisure World liked by all who live in it, either. Some find the heavy presence of other oldsters depressing and would sooner be with younger people. (The minimum age in Leisure World is 52, the average 75.)

"PERSONALLY, I don't mix with the people here," said one resident who plans to leave the project. "It's not because I don't like them. I just see enough of old people."

But the constant reminder of old age doesn't seem to bother the majority of Leisure Worlders, who often say that retirement living is not for everyone.

"When you're engaged in all sorts of activities," says Ben Nicholas, "you just don't think of old age." Besides, he adds, "elsewhere, no one gives a damn about cide they don't want any part of a car club. Maybe with some adults in the group, we could open some doors for them, then the boys could prove that there's no reason not to trust them."

The car club members, led by 27-year-old George "Santos" Nunez, nodded agreement.

"Julie doesn't want us to go over there (the Neighborhood Boys area of Norwalk)." Nunez said. "She's a strong horse, and we follow her wishes." low her wishes." Nunez said the car club, formed in 1968 with youths from several Southland cities, serves as a social group for those "who might not otherwise have anything to do.

He said members gather to work on their cars, discuss automo-tive business, play football or baseball and have picnics or barbecues.

A donor recently offered to give the group some boxing equipment for recreational use, he added, but the club hasn't been able to accept the gift because members can't find a gymnasium to use.

If a nonviolent car club has problems finding places to congregate for constructive activity, Mrs. Estrada reasoned, other clubs, including gangs, must also need adult

"Something good has to come out of all of this," she said, looking at the just-received graduation photograph of her dead son.

The police can find the boys who shot Oscar and prosecute them, but that's not going to solve the problem. There will be other

(To date, police have arrested eight youths in connection with the shooting. Two have been released pending further investigation, and six are still in custody.)

The only solution, she reiterated, is a parent-involvement program to focus on obtaining recreational facilities for all community

"The cities, unfortunately, have been very negative," she said.
"We've gol to prove to them that there's nothing to be afraid of.

"A lot of people at city hall in "A lot of people at city half in these communities just look at the boys and think, "They're Mexican-American, and they're in a group," so they must be looking for trouble. That doesn't have to be true.

"We want to convince the community people to get involved, to provide these boys with places where they can gather and have a good time. We also want to talk to the parents of the gang members. They must be as hurt and bewildered as we are. I'd really like to hear from them.

"My son is dead," she said re-signedly. "There is nothing we can do for him, but we have to work with the others. We have to see if we can help them.

"We've tried to think and think why my son was killed, but there's just no reason. I'm sure those kids didn't know what they were doing."

Nunez said he thought the gang members who shot Castillo had been drinking heavily and were, to a point, the victims of boredom. there's not a car club or other group for the boys in the barrio to join, they get hooked up with a gang," he said. "They don't have anything else to do but roam."

According to Jesse Lucra, so-cial services director in Norwalk, city officials are working on the problem of gang violence. "We problem of gang violence. "We have four community workers, and right now, they are working in the One Ways, Varrio Norwalk and Cheshire areas of the city," he

"We thought when we began our program last year that those were the three main areas of gang activity in the city," he added.

"One area we haven't been able to work, because of limited funds and personnel, is the Norwalk High School area—the area where the Neighborhood Boys gang origi-

"We just don't have the man-power to do what we'd like to do." Lucra said. He added that city officials have initiated programs to get parents involved in stemming gang activity but admitted, sadly, that even parent involvement doesn't always work.

"I understand that one of the boys arrested in that shooting is the son of one of our most involved mothers," he said. Lucra said he believes one way to help stem gang activity is to provide alternate recreational opportunities for youths before they reach junior high school age. Most of the gang members begin their street careers at about age 12, he Lucra's department and special gang details formed late last year at the request of Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess have been working together closely on pro-grams designed to prevent gang violence by channeling the youths into other activities.

Mrs. Estrada said she believes such efforts help, but still chides community leaders for not doing more to stem gang violence. Her fears that programs such as the social service plan in Nor-walk and sheriff's gang detail are not enough to curh the trend-39 homicides in Sheriff's Departmentpatrolled territory last year were gang-related— are somewhat rein-forced by the views of police from other jurisdictions.

The fact that Oscar Castillo was killed in Long Beach, a city that has seen little gang activity in recent years, might be attributed to the sheriff's crackdown on gang violence, according to Officer Mick-ey Bennett, of the Long Beach juvenile diversion squad.

"The gang members don't run in their own territory, because they are known by law-enforcement officers there," Bennett said. "They come to Long Beach our other cities where they're not known, for their recreation. That way, they won't get hassled."

But to Julie Estrada, running the gangs out of one town and into another solves no one's problems.

"As long as these boys aren't given something to do...as long as the parents don't get involved, the gang violence will continue," she said.

"It's too late for my son, but maybe we can get together; and save someone else's son.

Duple resigns as police president

Harry Duple, president of the Long Beach Police Officer's Association for the past seven years, re-signed Friday and applied for disability retirement from the police depart-

The association's board of directors, meeting in an emergency session, imani-mously named Sgt. Ralph Abraham, present secre-tary, to succeed Duple. Sgt. Michael Tracy was elected secretary to replace Abraham.

Duple, who joined the department on March 2, 1959, worked in the patrol, vice and traffic divisions and was one of the first pilots when the helicopter program was started in September 1968.

Abraham joined the department on Sept. 24, 1962, and was promoted to sergeant in April 1968. He has worked in the patrol and detective divisions.

"I hope the cooperation between the city administration and the association continues and I expect it will, as Harry Duple and I were close personal and professional friends," Abraham told the board.

It must be the good air in Ojai where Jim Messina maintains his elaborate recording studio.

Messina and Kenny Loggins got into an excit-ing fast-paced show at the Inglewood Forum, luring a sleepy crowd to its feel.

The two are rapidly changing their image.

EXCEPT for two acous-Loggins' composition
"Love Song" — the show brewed up an elaborate blend of country-western music. It was expensive, however. The new electronics were offered at a cost to the mellow soft rock sounds the duo usually conjurs up.

Woody Christman's
country fiddling and occasional clog dances added extra spark to the show. The concert's low point was, a raspy saxophone noise from a two-man horn section.

The tempering of the baritone was over-bearing. leaving in its wake disjoinled words and music. It may be that, for the sake of making the arrangements more elaborate, Messina fell overboard into a well of sound. To borrow a bit from Shakespeare, it was "much ado about noth-

In all fairness, however, there were moments of pure joy provided by a mellow flute. The wandering sounds were a solid addition to intricate arrangements.

During the 90-minute show, the two traded spotlight solos, with Messina coming out the more dis-tinctive. Messina's agility

NEW YORK — What does a TV star do to amuse himself when his series, which has become a household word, suddenly isn't in business any

Mike Connors, the attractive Armenian-de-scended star of "Mannix," looked for another series

— but he also gave thought to making good use of the money he earned in eight good seasons. He invested in all those things you're not supposed to invest in — a heavy-weight fighter, oil wells and a gold mine.

Earl Wilson

MIKE'S REAL name is Krekor Ohanian. The Krekor was Anglicized to Kirk and he's using his real name as the name of the character in a new TV film pilot for a prospective series called "The Killer Who Wouldn't Die." Kirk Ohanian was quite ebul-lient about his new TV cffort and also about his in-vestments as we talked the other night in Philadelphia on the Mike Douglas show and the next day in

"Yes, I bought a piece of a heavyweight fighter," admitted Mike, once a basketball star at UCLA. "I'm 6 feet 1. That was retty good for a guard in pretty good for a guard in my day, now 1 would be a midget," he said. "This fighter, Howard

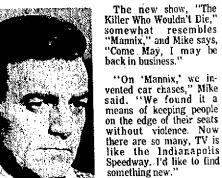

Smith, is fourth rated heavyweight. Frazier and Forman are ducking him. He's had 23 fights, won 18 by KOs, lost one fight. A fighter has to get a name. It's show business, all promotion. He can whip them all, but they sidestep him. He's 27, weighs 208, is a college graduate and has never been in trouble."

"NEVER BEEN in trouble?" I asked.

"Most fighters have been in trouble," Mike shrugged. "We pay him every week so he doesn't have to work and can train. I'm trying to get Burt Reynolds and Doc Severinsen to back him, too. Burt and Lee Majors already have a welter-

"I invested in oil in Texas and got $250 a week from that ... that's better than nothing. I invested in a new process of gold min-ing." He shook his head. "So far I haven't seen any results. I got into vineyards around Fresno. where I come from. That started out badly. On Dec. 12. I had to have the money in escrow. On Dec. 14 they had the worst frost in years, in fact the only frost in that area in seven years. Eighty per cent of the grape crop was lost."

"Mannix," he said, was a back-breaker. Its eight-year success meant that

Four actresses played it wrong

By DESMOND RYAN Knight News Service

Who are the four most Hollywood these days?

There are probably many candidates, but an educated guess would ineducated guess would melude Ellen Burstyn, Coleen Dewhurst, Anne Bancroft and Angela Lansbury. All share the dislinction of having been offered the role of the murse for which Louise Fletcher won an Academy Award in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." All

Milos Forman, the Czech director who also won an award, brought up the matter in response to a question about the relalive dearth of good women's movie roles during an interview in Bever-lly Hills.

"They didn't want to play a villain," Forman explained. In fact, in Forman's subtle and ambigous interpretation, the nurse is much less of a monster than she is in Ken Kesey's novel.

FORMAN SAYS it took months of scouring construction sites and reservations before he found Will Sampson, the giant and silent Indian in the film. Sampson was found through an Oregon used-car dealer who speaks indian dialects. Sampson is from Yakima, Wash., where he lived a life of bucolic simplicity painting scenes from nature.

"He asked me what he should do after the pic-ture," Forman recalls with a laugh. "I said go back to Yakima. Now he lives in Los Angeles and has an unlisted number."

Comics may yearn to play Hamlet, but Charlton Heston cherishes the no-tion of doing Macbelh with a Scottish accent. He con-fessed to this on the set of "Two Minute Warning," a movie about a sniper in a packed football stadium. "It can be done. Orson Welles did it," he insisted before resuming his standard cinema heroics. A clear case of "If it were done, 'twere well it were done quickly."

You are missing something if you haven't tried a Classified Ad lately. HE 2-traordinary judgment by Sean Connery, is a man of modern preoccupation in a medieval setting. He and Little John (a superlative characterization from Nicol Williamson) return to the verdant splendor of Sherwood Forest, where an aging Will Scarlett says that the people "want to hear about the things we

The movie is a leisurely treatment of the resumption of the relationship between Robin and Marian (Audrey Hepburn, back after too long an absence). After Robin and John trudge off with King Rich ard (for once accurately portrayed, by Richard Harris, as a bloody-minded (twit) she has taken up residence at a numery.

THE ONLY thing wrong with "Robin and Marian" is its screenplay, from the hand of James Goldman. It is sometimes silly -"You never wrote," says Marian. "I don't know how," replies Robin - but mostly it sounds like middle period Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Many of the lines sound like cues for songs, but their banality cannot de-tract from the uniformly splendid quality of the act-ing in "Robin and Mar-ian" and Lester's intriguing perception of the story.

THE sumptuous photography of David Watkin is used to reinforce the prevailing image of the film.

'Moses' not like DeMille's

By AL HAAS Knight News Service

The poster outside the movie house where "Moses" was playing modestly promised "the movie most magnificent human spectacle ever filmed.' Those who went inside the theater, however, found something other than a Cecil B. DeMille biblical spectacular. Rather, they are confronted by Burt Lancaster and a cast of 10s.

"Moses" is not a bad film. It is reasonably conceived and acted. It's just that the producer and the director, Sir Lew Grade and Gianfranco DeBosio, tried to take the Israelites to the brink of the Promised Land on an economy flight.

There is probably not a mob scene whose partici-pants could not be counted on the limbs of a centipede. When pharaoh chases the tribes of Israel to the Red Sea, all we see are little clots of horsemen and all of two chariots.

I can remember Troop overnight hikes that had as many tents and warm bodies as the encampments of the fleeing Is-

raelities.
And those Malachites who attacked the Israeli-ties' camp certainly made up in ferocity what they lacked in numbers.

Ah, yes, but so much for protests of one haunted by the ghosts of DeMille's casts of thousands, by the spectres of the costly legions that once clustered about Charlton-John the Baptist-Ben Hur-Moses Heston. But "Moses," a modification of a movie Sir Lew made for television, is not without esthelically redeeming values.

An authentic scale model of the plaza in which President Kennedy was assassinated is one of many attention-grabbing devices used by Dr. George Michael Evica—seen here holding a pointer—in his unusual U. of Hartford course.

A New College Course

They Study the JFK Assassination

by Jonathan Braun

s the Warren Commission Report on the assassination of John F. Kennedy accurate? Was Lee Harvey Oswald really the lone gunman responsible for the President's death, or was there a conspiracy? And if there really was a plot, who else was involved—and why?

If questions like this trouble you, perhaps you ought to enroll in ISP-223, a course in the University of Hartford's Interaction Studies ₱rogram entitled "Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963: The JFK Assassination."

The 25 students taking the experimental, three-credit course being taught by Profs. George Michael Evica and Harald Sandstrom seem to have been attracted by the air of mystery that still hangs over the assassination—an event most of them are obviously too young to remember in any significant way.

"I was only 6 years old when it took place," says Zachary Obedin, an 18year-old freshman. "This is my chance to find out what happened."

"It all comes down to this," says Professor Evica, "exactly what happened in Dealey Plaza in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 22nd, 1963, between 12:30 and 12:32 in the afternoon?"

An English professor with 21 years of teaching experience—more than 10 of them at the University of Hartford—Evica is director of the Connecticut Citizens Commission of Inquiry, a statewide organization whose sole purpose is pressuring for a Congressional reopening of the inquiry into President Kennedy's assassination. The group is one of 85 similar chapters that are affiliated with the Washington, D.C.-based Pointing to a slide of the man accused of killing Kennedy, Evica raises the theory "Lee Harvey Oswald" was not one man—but an alias used by many.

Citizens Commission of Inquiry, headed by the controversial assassination investigator Mark Lane.

"The course is really an outgrowth of a national conference that was sponsored by the Connecticut Commission and held here at the university last October," Evica says. "We had 3000 people participating in four days of discussion. There was a great outpouring of student interest, and it seemed obvious that many students were into this subject in a serious way. So Harald Sandstrom and I teamed up, approached the administration and convinced them to let us give a full, one-semester course wholly devoted to exploring the assassination."

Initially, 30 students enrolled in the course, but five dropped out because of the heavy work load.

In-depth research

"This is no easy ride," explains Sandstrom, a youthful, soft-spoken political science professor. "For many of these students—and they seem to be an exceptional group—it is the first time they have ever been asked to do a piece of in-depth independent research. It's quite a learning experience for them."

A required, 30-page typewritten research paper focusing on a specific aspect of the assassination will be the main factor in determining each student's final grade.

"My topic is the autopsy conducted on the President," says Zachary Obedin. "It's pretty grim stuff—and pretty chilling, too."

The unmistakable sense of fear—the notion that they are wading into murky and potentially dangerous waters—is common among those in a three-hour class that meets Wednesday afternoons.

"I attended the October conference," says Mimi Spillane, a sophomore whose research area is the news media coverage of the assassination. "Because of that experience I wanted to learn more about the case. Now that I have, I'm scared."

'Something ugly'

"We all are," adds Professor Sandstrom. "There's the feeling of being on the threshhold of something very big and very ugly."

Subject matter aside, much of the course's supercharged atmosphere can be attributed to Professor Evica and his dramatic teaching style - compelling. enthusiastically delivered lectures peppered with sarcasm and a variety of attention-grabbing devices. They may include a frame-by-frame showing of the critical 22 seconds of the "Zapruder film" of the assassination, or a series of slides of the rifle Oswald allegedly used to kill the President, or a presentation built around an authentic scale model of Dealey Plaza—the only such model, says Evica, in existence outside Washington FBI headquarters.

A continuing interest

"He is an acknowledged expert in this field," says Sandstrom of the tall, bearded Evica. "I can't touch his expertise. But I can try to give it an additional academic dimension from the stand-point of political science."

Sandstrom says he has always been interested in the role of assassination in politics. As for Evica, how did an English professor—a published author and poet whose specialties are myth and ritual in literature—get intensely involved in investigating one of the more tragic and puzzling episodes in American history?

"When Kennedy was killed, I mourned as everyone else did," Evica says. "Two days after, like millions of Americans, I saw Jack Ruby shoot Lee Harvey Oswald on television. From the moment that shot was fired, I suspected conspiracy. You see, I might have bought the theory of a single, crazed assassin . . . but not two in three days. That stretches credibility too much. So I began my own study of the case."

That was over 12 years ago — and Evica has been at it ever since.

Our famous glare-cutting lenses are finally in our own frames.

Polaroid frames.

In over 80 different European styles by international designers for our glarecutting lenses.

The lenses we first created to filter out up to 99% of horizontally reflected glare, while absorbing up to 96% of ultraviolet rays. Their 7-layer construction is beautifully designed to prevent optical distortion, and be comfortable to the eye.

Polaroid's unique S13 coating process makes ours the most scratch resistant polarized plastic lenses you can buy. And they are exceptionally shatter resistant.

Yankees give up; where now, Andy?

"I don't have power of attor-ney," Osmond said Thursday while in New York to appear before a hearing by commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn had been expected to make a decision Saturday—but the Yankees made it for him. Kuhn said, "I was advised this afternoon by George Stein-brenner that the Yankees were not going to press their claim regarding Andy Messersmith. As far as I am concerned, that closes the matter.

Later, Kuhn told The Associated Press: "I didn't have to reach any final judgment."

He said his most worrisome concern was with the charge that the Yankees had acted in

"It was clear to me that the Yankees dealt in good faith," Kuhn said. "They were genuine-ly trying to bring about a deal. The charge that they behaved badly is (inceasonable.

It was also clear to me that at one point last week, all the parties concerned thought they had a deal. In fact, Andy even was talking about what number uniform he would be wearing. "I think the fault was with the agent, Osmond. His behavior

STEINBRENNER said the Yankees had been determined to proceed in the Messersmith hearings because it was "imper-ative that certain facts be set straight."

He said one of those facts was allegations that the Yankees did not always act in good faith. He also denied that the Yankees plied Osmond with drinks in order to persuade him to sign an agreement for his client.

"This alleged statement was totally false and was damaging." Steinbrenner said. "Mr. Osmond's own testimony under oath stated that, in the seven hours he was with Yankee per-sonnel in negotiations that day

IN NEW YORK, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said Steinbrenner beat the commissioner to the punch because he knew the Yankees' claim was going to go down for the count.
"I think it was wise of them,"

Miller said "because neither the commissioner nor anybody else could sustain the claim. The claim was phony."

Steinbrenner said he felt confident of a favorable decison from Kubn.

Whitworth, Haynie in lead

By DOUG IVES Staff Writer

RANCHO MIRAGE-It came RANCHO WIRAGE—It came as no surprise to gambling buff Pam Higgins that she lost her lead to Kathy Whitworth and Sandra Haynie Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle Golf Championship.

Winds gusting up to 30 mph blew across Mission Hills Country Club and Higgins, who rates wind players, said there are no better golfers than Whitworth and Haynie when the elements take over as they did on this day.

Both Kathy and Sandra are nalive Texans who grew up playing in the wind.

Despite faltering down the stretch, when the wind was at its worst, the pair posted even par 72s to take a two-stroke lead over Higgins, who could do no better than 76.

Tied with Pam is Japan's Chako Higuchi, who played early, missed the wind and shot 69.

Whitworth and Haynie stand at 214, 2 under-par. The scores have grown progressively worse since the opening day when 16 broke par. Eight carded 71 or better Friday and only three achieved it Satur-

One of the parbusters was Laura Baugh, who posted a 71 to vault from 41st place into a tie for 13th, five off the pace. Because of the quality of the players ahead of her, Laura probably will have to shoot 67 or 68 to have a chance for how first career victory.

choice after the midway point and has lowered those odds to 12-1. But she's not that confident because of the two women ahead of her. Whitworth has won 76 tourna-ments in her long career, Haynie 39. Higgins has won one. It's nice to be in contention,' said Higgins, a pert, 30-year-old who surprised the press Friday when she confessed she loved to gamble, betting on all kinds of sports and card games.

"I'll get to the winner's circle sometime this year, if not tomorrow," Pam promised. "You can make book on that."

If the wind blows today, she doesn't give herself much of a ers who were asked to speed up play, then slow down, then speed up again. It was to accomodate television, a media they cannot afford to knock.

Carol Mann, Jane Bialock and Sandra Palmer were assessed twostroke penalties for slow play, ap-pealed at the close of the round and had the penalties lifted.

For Blalock it was vital. She is still in contention at 217.

Whitworth, an LPGA Hall of Famer and leading money winner of all time—as well as this year was 6 under par at one time and had opened up a three-stroke lead. That's when the wind came, although she didn't blame her collapse on the elements.

A Japanese wrestler?

to sell than Ali and the Lion of Flanders, which fell somewhat short in the department of credibility.

The point is that Ali would seem to be too smart to become involved in the possibility of losing to a wrestler. But if the contest is on the square, it is almost inconceivable that he could win.

But on to the interview.

Most of the American reporters working the Grand Prix were apprehensive about the language problem, their knowledge. edge of French being limited to Claudine Longet and their Spanish to "one green chile burrito, por favor."

But Anoki presented no problem. He carries his own interpreter around in his pocket-which in his case, at 6-4 and 245 pounds, is not so much a figure of speech. The fellow's name is Ken Tajima, whose command of English would embarrass Alistair Cooke and who smiles more than Jimmy Carter.

CURIOSITY ABOUT Anoka's first name is cleared up immediately as he explains through Tajima that "I emigrat-ed with my family from Japan to Brazil in 1955, and it was there that I acquired the name.'

His given first name is Kanji, he is 33 years old and nobody would dispute to his face that he is what he says he is: a black belt karate expert and also world heavyweight wrestling champion.

However, in the interest of honest reporting, your reporter inquired about one Terry Funk from Oklahoma, who also claims to be world champion but theh-heh) obviously is an impostor.

"I've fought with him and defeated him time and time again," Anoki declares, dismissing Funk as easily as he would swat a fly.

ANOKI'S SUPPORTERS in Japan expect no more trouble from Ali. Antonio is very big in Nippon. Not only is he married to Milsuko Baisho, a leading movie star and singer—no doubt the Doris Day of the Rising Sun—but he is founder and president of his own promotional supports the start of the sta tional organization.

"I own a company called New Japan Professional Wrestling Co., Ltd.," he says, as if he needed to explain who he

"Basically, it is professional wres-

If there is a clown in the ring June 25, it will be Ali.

"It won't take long." Anoki says, sizing up his man like a lumberjack about to fell a sapling, "as long as he will stand up and fight with me, like a man."

Anoki is momentarily distracted and becomes very excited about a plane sky-writing a Toyota ad, but soom returns to his stoic demeanor.

Anoki and Ali already have met-at a recent press conference in New York, which every flack recognizes as the eenter of the universe. Anoki wasn't im-

NORTH PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Here's Jack Nicklaus' thumbnail appraisal of his chief rivals in the Masters Golf Tournament, starting Thursday at the Augusta National Club:

Johnny Vi iller - "As fine a player as there is in the game with an excellent swing. Goes through periods of very hot golf, then cools off for a while. More consistent now than when he first joined tour because he is stronger and taller. Chipping and putting one of main strengths." there is in the game with an excellent

Tom Watson — "As good a head as there is in golf. Not intending to be derogatory, he probably has greatest room for improvement of any player on the tour. Not winning consistently because he doesn't have all the shots yet."

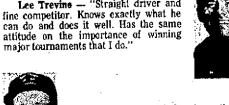

Tom Weiskopf — "I am surprised he hasn't won at least six major championships. He is one of the top three or four players in the game. Has talent, strength, size, length off the tee and wonderful tempo. With more experience, he will blow the world apart."

Hale Irwin - "A super competitor, sound golfer, good athlete. A good driver and a good mind."

Hubert Green - "May be the sleeper in the tournament. A straight driver, positive thinker. What he lacks in form he makes up in determination and abil-

Lee Trevine — "Straight driver and fine competitor. Knows exactly what he can do and does it well. Has the same

Gary Player — "A threat any time to win any tournament. Had a bad year in 1975 but now is active and a real threat

Ben Creashaw - "Started off fast in his pro career, winning about $30,000 in his first two tournaments, the Texas Open and World Open, then went into a mild slump as all of us do. He has gone through a lot but appears back on his game. A fine competitor. I have always felt he would be one of the top players on the text.

Happiness is winning at Penn St.

Joe Paterno took a businan's holiday during a whirlwind two-day visit to Southern California.

Scheduled to speak to the First Friday Friars at Disneyland Hotel, the highly successful Penn State football coach attended USC practices before and after his luncheon engagement, huddled with the coaching staff and talked to the Trojan players.

Was he trying to recruit even more talent for his powerful Nittany Lions, who have been in eight bowl games in the 10 years Paterno has been head coach?

"Naw," said the 49-year-old Brooklyn native, during a poolside conversation at the Inn of Tomorrow. Why would a kid want to leave this area? "Oh, maybe in an unusual circumstance I might go after a good California kid, but we've got quite a few good players in my area, too. "I'd like to get on the USC schedule, frankly. But with schedules completed 15 years in advance, that's

"Mainty, I was picking the brains of Johnny Robinson and his staff. It does a coach good to learn someone else's ideas.'

His 5-2-1 bowl record is only slightly behind his 94-18-1 standard, which makes Paterno the winningest active college coach in the nation.

The game he remembers most vividly was the 1968 Orange Bowl, won by Penn State, 15-14, over Pepper Rodgers' Kansas team in the last seconds.

"We were behind, 14-7, with 1:18 to play, but we got the touchdown and had to go for the two points," said Paterno, reliving the game as if it were played only last night.

We went for two and missed. I was in agony. But Kansas had 12 men on the field, so we got another shot and this time made it. I think my mother, who says novenas every day, had something

"So did Art Rooney, the Pittsburgh Steelers" owner, who knew what a religious woman my mother was. After the win, Rooney wrote me a letter. It said: 'I'll trade my brother and two sisters for your mother.' His brother is a priest, too."

THE BOWL GAME that Paterno recalls with the nost distaste was the last Sugar Bowl affair, won by Alabama, 13-6.

It was widely publicized that Bear Bryant "hand-picked" the Nittany Lions because he wanted to improve his own bowl record by playing a team not considered in the class of, say, Oklahoma and Nebraska last season.

"I agree that Bear had a lot to do with Penn

"I agree that hear had a lot to do will reinle State's appearance in the Sugar Bowl, but people were a little unfair," snapped Joe.

"We deserved a major bowl bid. We had a good team. We lost to Ohio State by eight points and to North Carolina State by a point or two, but that's no

"Bear thought Alabama had a shot at winning the national championship and was miffed when the Orange Bowl took the Big Ten runnerup (Michigan) instead of the Southeastern Conference champion (Alabama). He thought he'd get saddled with the Big Ten runnerup originally, if he went to the Sugar Bowl, so he would rather have played Penn State than fool around with any runnerup.

"The critical talk didn't bother my players. Our seniors had been to the Orange and Cotton Bowls, so they wanted the Sugar Bowl. How many kids can say that they've played in all three of those major bowls?"

during his tenure.

"We're in an area like Southern California where there are lots of good high school football players," he explained. "We're in a good football position, too, because Penn State hasn't had a losing team in 38 years, and kids like being with a winner.
"I've had fine staffs, too, I've never let a guy go.
The only reason any of my assistants left was to

"I've been better off than my old coach at Brown, Rip Engel, who took the Penn State job and brought me over as an assistant for 16 years. Rip had fine teams, but no recognition and no major bowls.

"Engel and Bud Wilkinson, whose Oklahoma teams were doing so well when I was young, had a lot of influence on me with their techniques, organization and philosophy."

PATERNO HAS a pretty good philosophy him-

JOE PATERNO . . . 'I'm not nice'

"I believe football is first played with the heart and the mind, then the body," said the man who has coached such stars as John Cappelletti, Franco Har-ris, Lenny Moore, Lydell Mitchell, Rosey Grier and

"Without morale—which I term pride, loyalty and discipline—there's no way you'll have a winner. Newspaper guys have portrayed me as a nice guy, but I'm not nice when it comes to discipline.

"The fun of football is when you work your tail off all week, then on Saturday look up at 70,000 people in the stands and say to yourself, 'Baby, this is it.'

"I've seen more games lost by teams scared to death than anything else. That's terrible, and ridiculous. You've got to have contidence. People can smell confidence. I don't know if John McKay is a better coach than anyone else, but he smells of confidence."

PATERNO SMELLS of confidence when he talks about recruiting. He concedes that the job is easier for him now because of the Lions' great record during the past 10 years, but he had reservations, too.

"I work less, but harder, in a sense," said the happy Italian, with a big smile. "Other coaches now are telling the good kids not to go to Penn State because they win too much and you won't play there." I have to overcome that.

"Then, the big schools in my recruiting area—

Maryland, Pitt, West Virginia and Syracuse—are hustling and scrambling like the dickens now. I've got to work hard to keep up with them, but we're fortunate in still getting most of the kids we want."

PATERNO WAS ASKED if he ever would go into pro football coaching after having turned down hefty financial offers from the New England Patriots and, more recently, the Philadelphia Eagles.

"It was only money," replied Paterno, mustering another smile. "I have a good job now, a home that's paid for, two cars and can adequately support my five children, the oldest of which will be 13 next week. That's all I want. I never expect to be a rich man.

"I'm at the stage in my life where I feel I have enough financial security, and, more importantly, I don't particularly feel that pro football is a challenge to me now.

"I like college football better, too. Some day I may go into pro coaching, but right now, no.'

PATERNO ENDED on another philosophical

Clearly, Joe Paterno is very much alive.

Dunn 'trying not to think about Ali' First Europe, then the world!

LEICESTER, England (AP)—Richard Dunn, a nobody in boxing until he had passed 30, is on the verge of fighting Muhammad Ali for the world heavy-weight title . . . and he's trying not to think about it.

Dunn meets Bernd August of Germany for the vacant European heavyweight crown in London Tuesday. If he wins that one, he goes in against Ali May 24 in

"Life has suddenly become a lot of fun," says Dunn, 31, who never boxed for the British title until last September. "I'm trying like hell to put Ali out of my mind. Thinking about Ali is no way to train for a fight against this German guy. A European title fight is a big one and anyone could win it.

"But how can I help thinking about Ali?" the Briton added. "It's fantaștic the way life has worked out."

This big, tough, red-haired, lantern-jawed scaffold worker, who sports tattooed pictures down both his arms, seemed at the end of a mediocre career. He was knocked out three times in four months in

RICHARD DUNN Life begins at 30

But six months ago he suddenly hit the jackpot, outpointing Bunny Johnson to become British champion.

Optimistic Britons, reared on a long tradition of horizontal challengers for the world heavyweight title, dream of Dunn's enthusiastic two-handed punches catching Ali by surprise.

One fact about Dunn is not disputed. He's as tough as a brick wall.

In his early boxing days, Dunn appeared in small-town shows, fighting two and three opponents in one evening. He was a parachutist in the Army and made more than 60 jumps. Then he got too heavy and they stopped him.

He is 6-foot-2 and expects to go in against August weighing 212 pounds. He has orders from his manager to knock the German out quickly.

"The contract for the Ali fight merely says Dunn has to be European heavy-weight champion," George Biddles said. "It does not stipulate a knockeut against August-but I do.

"I'm not interested in a points win. If we are going to fight for the world title, we want to justify by

"I teach a course in tragedy," he says, referring to one of his four literature courses, "and I see a parallel between the JFK assassination and some literary figures. To me, Kennedy was the young hero who in a way captured the imagination, love and loyalty of a whole country ... regardless of what is now said about his personal life. Like all heroic figures, he was filled with great passion. So it should come as no surprise to anyone that he was as interested in women, it appears, as they obviously were in him."

"The single bullet theory is really the key to the whole case. If you break that,

IF YOU HAVE IRON-POOR BLOOD ALL THE VITAMINS IN THE WORLD WON'T HELP.

Iron-poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. And taking vitamins can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take Geritol, every day. Geritol is so rich in iron, each tablet contains more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol's iron will actually build your blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

leaving a large "sucking" wound. According to the Warren Commission, the same bullet then passed through Connally's wrist, breaking bones, and finally embedded itself in his left thigh.

"The bullet," says Evica, "was supposed to have been found, according to the Warren Commission, on the floor of Parkland Memorial Hospital after it you prove conspiracy. Of course, it still doesn't tell you why or who."

One of the more bizarre questions with which Evica deals in his classroom lectures is the suggestion that there might have been more than one Lee Harvey Oswald. Clicking through a startling slide presentation of various photographs of the alleged assassin—

Numerous angles

"There seem to be an infinite number of angles to the case," says class member John Richters, whose special topic is the Ruby investigation. A data processing manager from the neighboring Hartford area, Richters is not a matriculated university student. "But I am taking the course for credit," he points out. "It's costing me $180 plus $50 in books and lots of time in research."

Does the Hartford course signify a trend? Could be. At

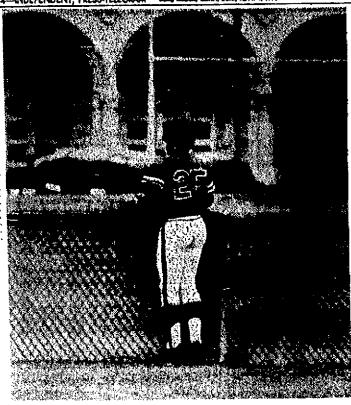

Monterey Peninsula College, a California two-year college, 40 students are taking English 195, a two-credit course that covers both the John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy assassinations. There may be others, too. Students these days are asking some hard questions and they aren't satisfied with the generally accepted, official answers.

\( \frac{\seconds}{2} \) called single bullet theory is a fraud—

Cold weather line favors USC for now

By GARY RAUSCH Staff Writer If UCLA and USC had gone head-to-head Saturday afternoon-instead of facing California and Stanford respectively—the Trojans would have departed Westwood with a 75½-68½ victory.
That score is based solely on performances during the Trojans' 105-35 romp past the Cardinals and the Bruins' 79-65 decision over the Golden Bears.

When the crosstown an-tagonists do collide next month, the verdict should be a lot closer. Hopefully, the weather will prove more accommodating

It was cold and breezy at Drake Stadium Saturday and only 6,565 brave souls endured the lengthy double-dual meet. Few were still around when Stanford's Tony Sandoval ran away with the 5,000 meters (13:53.2) and only a handful when the Trojans and Bruins coasted to mile relay wins.

The final tally showed USC yielding only two Stanford victories in 17 events while sweeping three itself, and California showing some surprising strength in capturing six blue ribbons from vaunted

If the summary listed frost-bitten toes, coaches Jim Bush and Vern Wolfe would have headed the list.

"I haven't been so cold in a long time," said Bush, shivering inside his turtle neck sweater and UCLA blazer. "The weather had performed today. Plus, I didn't think Cal was that good." a lot to do with how we

The Bruin coach said he also thought the time had come to break up the monotony and give some of his athletes the day off, so to speak, by switching them to events other than their specialties.

"My guys are tired. We've already faced four of the top teams in the country, three of them in the top six. We're also coming off final exams. Why, my mile relay team hasn't worked out together in three weeks. So we're tired from exams as well as big meets."

California performed admirably considering speedster Wes Walker was left in Berkeley to recover from a heel infection which hospitalized him dropped the baton in the 400-relay, No. 1 Bruin high jumper Jay Meisner failed to clear a height and only one Bruin and one Bear contested the 100 meters, UCLA was led by Mike Tully, James Owens, Willie Banks, Bennie Myles, Brian Theriot and Jeff Haynes.

Tully won the pole vault at 17-0 while Owens breezed (13.6) in the high hur-dles. Banks was the Bruins' lone double winner (24-10%) long jump, 52-8 triple jump).

Bush elected to use speedster Myles in both relays as well as the 230, pulling him from the 400 and an expected duel with Cal's James Robinson, a 47.5 victor.

Theriot, who also dou-bled in the relays, gave Robinson a run for awhile before fading to third (48.1) behind Grant Niederhaus (47.9), the Bruins' intermediate hurdler. Haynes withstood several Cal challengers before winning the 800 in 1:50.8.

"In freezing weather like this, I'm just proud of the whole team," said Bush. "I don't think there's any way you can dope the big meet (USC-AI OII wnat out here today."
Standing with his hands in his pockets, his collar turned up and shivering noticeably, Wolfe concurred with Bush.

"There's absolutely no way to honestly dope it out now. I'll say this, though. It should be very interesting."

The USC coach also agreed that weather was a factor Saturday. For his Trojans he also added jet

we got off the plane from Hawaii at 8 this morning. I think one of my distance runners is still asleep on the bus."

The Trojans competed in the islands last weekend and, in order to take advantage of a reduced rate on the charter flight, remained an extra week.

"We put on clinics at high schools and things like that to help defray expenses," Wolfe explained. "Coming from a very warm climate to this cold was a shock. I also think a few of our people did too much surfing and swim-ming."

One in particular was pole vaulter Russ Rogers, who soared a lifetime best last Wednesday. and Trojan record 18-11/2
On a day when Cal last week. Saturday the junior whom Wolfe calls "a world class vaulter" failed to clear an opening

"All that time in the water just tightened up his leg muscles. He had no spring at ail."

Ken Randle showed no ill effects from the trip by zipping to a 10.6-20.8 sprint double. He would have placed second in the 100, but teammate Joel Andrews pulled up within 25 meters of the tape.

"It acts like a cramp," said Wolfe of his freshman's injury. "I say acts because this is the third time he's had that problem. Joel has so much trouble with his lower hack, I'm beginning to think it may be a sclatic

YANKEES GIVE UP CASE ON MESSERSM

sioner was told about the Yankees' decision. The Yankee owner said he did-n't think the commissioner was going to make a deci-sion Salurday.

Miller laughed when in-formed of Steinbrenner's opinion, saying: "It was a face-saving move. He knew the commissioner was going to rule against him.

Steinbrenner said: "I think had we been able to sit down head-to-head, this matter probably could have been resolved."

When asked why he

smith to clear everything up. Steinbrenner said, up, Steinbrenner said, "because of the way his agent reacted. My people tried to talk with Osmond and he wasn't about to discuss anything.

MESSERSMITH had charged that the items in the written agreement Osmond signed were different from the terms in the uniform contract Osmond was later presented.

The differences were in the area of a no-cut con-tract and when the interest on the deferred payments would accrue.

Steinbrenner said the only difference Osmond cited was that the contract was not a pure no-cut. According to Steinbrenner, Osmond said he didn't want the Catfish Hunter form of no-cut.

"Our people said, 'Write it anyway you want and bring it back.' We thought it was the only thing they didn't like. It turned out there were other things." Miller said the problems surfaced when the Yan-kees took the paper agree-ment of Sunday morning and plugged it into the holes of the uniform player contract.

The contract did not conform to the paper," Miller said. "The contract excluded some things and put in some other matters not covered in the paper."

STEINBRENNER left the door slightly ajar when asked what would happen if Messersmith now came to him and asked to start from scratca.

"If he came to me and said he really wanted to be a Yankee, I'd be glad to have him. We took our-selves off the hook and we took the young man off the

"What if we had been awarded him and he had appealed to the courts? That might have taken two years and he would not have played. This is in no way a criticism of Andy, whom I found in these proceedings to be a very fine young man-which is still more important than being a very line young pitcher."

"My only issue with
Andy." Steinbrenner continued "would be his statement that the Yankees did not deal in good faith, and the testimony offered clearly shows that we

On the issue of whether Osmond had power of attorney—a device used by an agent to bind his-principal—Miller said Os-mond didn't have it. Miller said Osmond testified before Kuhn that he never claimed to have power of

I have stated that there really can be no place in the Yankee organization for any player who cannot find it in himself to understand and feel this.

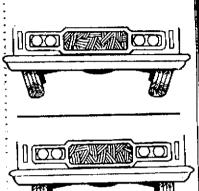

"I bear them (Messersmith and Osmond) no malice, but I feel that it is essential to what I am trying to build here—to borrow the title of a great movie—'The Pride of the Yankees.'"

Geiberger four-shot leader at Greensboro

(AP) — Al Geiberger, who went into a decline after winning the 1966 PGA national championship then resurrected his career nine years later, flashed that shy, almost embarrassed smile of his.

"Surprised," he said. "I guess that's the best way to describe it. I'm sur-prised to be leading by four strokes. There were so many guys so close I didn't think anybody could really pull away."

But the unassuming Geiberger romped away from a closely-bunched field with a late birdieeagle-birdie burst, fashioned a second consecutive six-under-par 65 and established a commanding, four-shot lead Satur-day in the third round of the $230,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf

The first thing you have to do to get a lot of car for not a lot of money is believe it's possible.

The 1976 Fiat 131 Sedan.

You can't believe that a car costing as little as ours could come with rack-and-pinion steering, a five-speed gear box, front-wheel disc brakes, radial tires, undercoating, tinted windows, door-to-door carpeting, a rear window defroster, an adjustable steering wheel, and complete rustproofing? Plus the room of much larger cars? And the performance of much more expensive ones?

Then, before you spend your money on any car, you'd better test drive a Fiat 131. Because not only is it possible, but all those things come on a 131 with a choice of either two doors or four.

My slacks didn't stretch. I"shrank" 79 pounds.

By Shirley Wentz-as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

Me, at a gross 200 pounds. Next to my baby daughter, I really look like I weigh more.

hat's right. I went from a solid 200 pounds to a trim 121 and wound up looking like Mrs. Baggy Pants. But it was the most beautiful sight in the world to me.

Funny thing is, I never really thought I looked as big as I did. My husband certainly never said anything to me about my weight. And it's probably just as well because I hurt easily. I remember once, when visiting my father-in-law, he said: "Shirley, you make two of your sisters." I didn't say anything but I didn't go back for another six months.

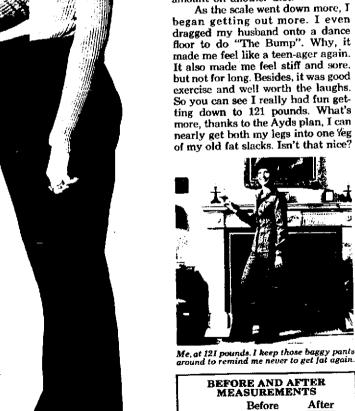

Meanwhile, I tried several drastic ways of losing weight. Mainly through the mail. By that I mean I sent away for diet pills. One ad said something like "Lose weight overnight while you're sleeping." But like the other things I tried, these pills didn't work, either. So I continued to eat ice cream, potato chips, pizza, bread-enough fattening food to fill out a size 20 dress. I also tried "starving" myself. But I got sick and even had dizzy spells.

Finally, I went to my doctor and asked him for some reducingdrug pills that would work. But I didn't get any satisfaction there, either. He simply said: "Shirley, if you'd just set your mind to losing weight, you could do it." My problem was I knew I couldn't do it without help. So I went back to looking through magazines for some kind of reducing aid. And you know what? I found one. Only it's spelled A-y-d-s, the reducing plan candy that contains vitamins and minerals but no drugs. I bought a box of the vanilla caramel kind at one of the stores in Hanover, Pa.; then I

I took two Avds before each meal, either with hot coffee or with hot broth, and those candies really helped satisfy my appetite. I was able to eat regular meals, but I ate smaller portions. At supper, for instance. I'd have a piece of meat, potato, a vegetable, even a little bread. And I was happy. Of course. the weight didn't come off overnight, but I sure lost it steadily. I know because I kept a record. There's a chart in each Ayds box and by writing down how many pounds I took off each week, I always knew where I was at. Why, in the first few weeks, I dropped 10 pounds, yet I overheard a woman in a store say it took her three months to lose the same amount on another diet.

Vandalism takes much tax money

With the approach of California's general trout season, we like to have good thoughts about the outdoors—the sparkling lakes, rushing streams, clean campgrounds and delicious fish, if you can catch them. Yet all of that beauty is facing the usual menace of the senseless vandals who wreck campground facilities, destroy fences and small buildings and even run auto-destroy fences and small buildings and even run automobiles over desert turtles just for the hell of it.

Jerry Harrell, chief of public affairs for the California Bureau of Land Management, writes about vandalism in the current BLM Newsbeat, and what he has to say is sickening to a true sportsman.

We don't like to make an issue of bad things, but perhaps some of the following excerpts from Jerry's story may make an impression. This columnist, like story may make an impression. This columnist, like longtime, friend Jerry, does not have a solution to vandalism. If somebody has the answer and can put an

of this country billions of dollars.

Jefry writes: "Vandalism is a growing problem on National Resource Lands administered by the U. S. National resource Lands admisselved by the damage is being done not only to facilities like campgrounds, toilets and signs, but to the lands and the resources themselves."

HE LISTS these examples:

• Motorcyclists tear up an ancient Indian intaglio in the desert of Southern California.

• Pot hunters loot and destroy artifacts of the Anasazi culture in southwestern Colorado, in one instance using a vehicle to knock down an intricate wall of mud and stone. Petroglyphs (rock drawings) are ripped off by commercial black-market operators and souvenir hunters alike.

• Vandals in BLM's Ely, Nev., District break into a extinct species of desert fish, smash the recorder, cut and scatter the wires.

Desert tortoises in several southwestern states, including California, are smashed by off-road vehicles, or collected by people who want them for "pets."

What is the answer? BLM Director Ed Hastey of the California area and some of his resource managers the California area and some of his resource managers and officials in other states believe that the long-range answer is information and education. They feel that an informed user of public lands will be a thoughful user.

""Our whole effort in the California desert is predicated on the assumption that most people will do the right thing when they know what to do," says Hastey.

"We also know that a minority, possibly 10 per cent of the users, will not respond on that approach. On-the-ground law enforcement is needed to deal with that minority."

"WE ARE CONFIDENT that we can reach the thoughtless person who picks up a desert tortoise and takes it home, only to release it later or discard it," Hastey continued.

"It's also a thoughtless act when somebody digs up a cactus plant for his home garden. We feel that through education such people can be convinced of the need to leave rare desert plants in their native habitat.

"However, the type of vandal who knowingly kills a desert tortoise or deliberately defaces or destroys desert plants and artifacts probably can be reached only through legal sanctions."

through legal sanctions."

BLM does not have general enforcement authority, BLM does not have general enforcement authority, as do other federal land and resource management agencies such as the U.S. Forest Service, National Park Service and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. So, BLM historically has resorted to civil action in court or, in some cases, stood by helplessly while individuals or corporations misuse or abuse resources entrusted to BLM's care.

BLM doesn't intend to create another police force. Rather, it is assembling an elite lorce of highly trained professional special agents who will work closely with state and local enforcement agencies. There will be a team of eight special agents, two in Washington, D. C., and the other six in Sacramento, Reno, Boise, Billings, Salt Lake City and Phoenic Salt Lake City and Phoenix.

NATIONAL RESOURCE LANDS total 175 million acres in the western states and 272 million acres in Alaska, a total of 447 million acres. BLM adminsters 16 million acres in California, or about one-sixth of the surface area of this state.

Vandalism against signs is one of the most frequent types, whether by target shooters, souvenir hunters, people who want to vent their anger against the government, or people who hope to keep public lands for their private use by tearing down directional signs.

In Saline Valley in the California desert, where signs ually last only a few days before being destroyed or partly fluned, a family of three died of thirst in one recent year when their car broke down and they tried to walk out. They were only two miles from water but didn't know it. There was no sign.

Twenty-five volunteers spent three days of hard labor over the Washington birthday period to help protect intaglios on National Resource Lands north of Blythe. The intaglios include three man-like figures, two four-legged animals and a coiled screent. They installed 435 fence posts along one side of a road easily accessible to off-the-road vehicles. BLM hopes to fence in the area permanently. A previous fence was constructed at another site 20 years ago and vandals immediately ran vehicles into it, hoping to knock it down.

"I teach a course in tragedy," he says, referring to one of his four literature courses, "and I see a parallel between the JFK assassination and some literary figures. To me, Kennedy was the young hero who in a way captured the imagination, love and loyalty of a whole county ... regardless of what is now said about his personal life. Like all heroic figures, he was filled with great passion. So it should come as no surprise to anyone that he was as interested in women, it appears, as they obviously were in him."

No single theory

A persuasive speaker, Evica denies being committed to any one theory regarding the case. "As an independent researcher," he adds, "I am now convinced that the so-perfectly intact, copper-jacketed lead bullet, entered the back of Kennedy's neck, exited just above his tic, and entered then Texas Governor John Connally's back, where it broke one of his ribs before exiting through his chest, allegedly fell out of the Governor's thigh while he was on a stretcher. Even more incredibly, it was found virtually unmarked....

"The single bullet theory is really the key to the whole case. If you break that,

IF YOU HAVE IRON-POOR BLOOD ALL THE VITAMINS IN THE WORLD WON'T HELP.

Iron-poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. And taking vitamins can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take Geritol, every day. Geritol is so rich in iron, each tablet contains more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol's iron will actually build your blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

leaving a large "sucking" wound. According to the Warren Commission, the same bullet then passed through Connally's wrist, breaking bones, and finally embedded itself in his left thigh.

"The bullet," says Evica, "was supposed to have been found, according to the Warren Commission, on the floor of Parkland Memorial Hospital after it you prove conspiracy. Of course, it still doesn't tell you why or who."

One of the more bizarre questions with which Evica deals in his classroom lectures is the suggestion that there might have been more than one Lee Harvey Oswald. Clicking through a startling slide presentation of various photographs of the alleged assassin—

"I've learned a lot—and I'm scared," says Mimi Spillane, one of 25 taking the course.

"In a way, it's like studying to be a private detective," says freshman Zachary Obedin.

blowups that would lead an observer to believe he was viewing at least two different individuals — Evica states: "Perhaps we should consider the possibility that Lee Harvey Oswald was not one man at all, but a cover identity available to a number of intelligence agents who physically resembled each other."

Numerous angles

"There seem to be an infinite number of angles to the case," says class member John Richters, whose special topic is the Ruby investigation. A data processing manager from the neighboring Hartford area, Richters is not a matriculated university student. "But I am taking the course for credit," he points out. "It's costing me $180 plus $50 in books and lots of time in research."

Does the Hartford course signify a trend? Could be. At

Monterey Peninsula College, a California two-year college, 40 students are taking English 195, a two-credit course that covers both the John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy assassinations. There may be others, too. Students these days are asking some hard questions and they aren't satisfied with the generally accepted, official answers.

를 called single bullet theory is a fraud that two, possibly three, rifles fired that 를 day at Kennedy."

The single bullet theory is a product of the Warren Commission's finding that Commission Exhibit 399, an almost

Third Los Al magic mile for the Butler

So Jo Butler became the second pacer in Los Alamitos history to record three magic miles in a single season when he won the co-featured fifth race n 1:59 4/5 Saturday night. The six-year-old Adios Butler pacer led all the way to defeat Chris Pick and joined BC Count as the only horse to make three of the swift trips during one season on the Orange County track. Dick Hogan was in the bike and took So Jo Butler to the lead immediately. He went the first quarter .

in .29 3/5 and came hme in .29 2/5 to just break the two-minute mark and gget his third win in four starts on the spring meeting. BC Count recorded his three two-minute trips earlier this spring and either or both horses figure to have enough starts remaining to equal the career mark for magic miles currently held by Windy Way. So Jo Butler was sent off as the even-money favorite in the race and had to withstand a late charge by Chris Pick and Gulliver to get the win.

"Each school brings a maximum of five players, and the lowest four scorers are used in deter-mining school standing," coach Bernette Cripe explained. Competition is stroke play rather than handicap.

In addition to the awards earned by the top four university teams (at present LBSU ranks third), the conference also will honor the best two two-player teams and the three individuals with the lowest scores.

Following the conference season, the top seven women golfers in both the northern and southern leagues in the state will compete in the California Collegiate All-Star Tournament in the Solvang area

it's to Laugh

My slacks didn't stretch. I"shrank"79 pounds.

By Shirley Wentz-as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

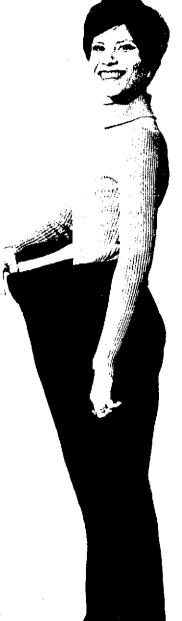

Me, at a gross 200 pounds. Next to my baby daughter, I really look like I weigh more

hat's right. I went from a solid 200 pounds to a trim 121 and wound up looking like Mrs. Baggy Pants. But it was the most beautiful sight in the world to me.

Funny thing is, I never really thought I looked as big as I did. My husband certainly never said anything to me about my weight. And it's probably just as well because I hurt easily. I remember once, when visiting my father-in-law, he said: "Shirley, you make two of your sisters." I didn't say anything but I didn't go back for another six months.

Meanwhile, I tried several drastic ways of losing weight. Mainly through the mail. By that I mean I sent away for diet pills. One ad said something like "Lose weight overnight while you're sleeping." But like the other things I tried, these pills didn't work, either. So I continued to eat ice cream, potato chips. pizza, bread-enough fattening food to fill out a size 20 dress. I also tried "starving" myself. But I got sick and even had dizzy spells.

Finally, I went to my doctor and asked him for some reducingdrug pills that would work. But I didn't get any satisfaction there, either. He simply said: "Shirley, if you'd just set your mind to losing weight, you could do it." My problem was I knew I couldn't do it without help. So I went back to looking through magazines for some kind of reducing aid. And you know what? I found one. Only it's spelled A-y-d-s, the reducing plan candy that contains vitamins and minerals but no drugs. I bought a box of the vanilla caramel kind at one of the stores in Hanover, Pa.; then I started following the Ayds plan.

I took two Ayds before each meal, either with hot coffee or with hot broth, and those candies really helped satisfy my appetite. I was able to eat regular meals, but I ate smaller portions. At supper, for instance, I'd have a piece of meat, potato, a vegetable, even a little bread. And I was happy. Of course, the weight didn't come off overnight. but I sure lost it steadily. I know because I kept a record. There's a chart in each Ayds box and by writing down how many pounds I took off each week, I always knew where I was at. Why, in the first few weeks, I dropped 10 pounds, yet I overheard a woman in a store say it took her three months to lose the same amount on another diet.

As the scale went down more, I began getting out more. I even dragged my husband onto a dance floor to do "The Bump". Why, it made me feel like a teen-ager again. It also made me feel stiff and sore. but not for long. Besides, it was good exercise and well worth the laughs. So you can see I really had fun getting down to 121 pounds. What's more, thanks to the Ayds plan, I can nearly get both my legs into one 'eg of my old fat slacks. Isn't that nice?

Me, at 121 pounds. I keep those baggy pants around to remind me never to get fat again.

PRINCIPAL at Whittier School on Walnut Avenue, Andrew Allegretti wants teachers to visit parents in their homes. Stories by Patricia de Luna Staff Writer Staff photos by Kent Henderson and

Teachers often knock twice

Elementary school teachers in the central area of Long Beach, for the last several years, have been taking a shortened day of school to troop out into the heighborhood and visit in the homes of their students.

They arrange invitations through the children, then knock on doors, and chat over coffee. The idea is that children are better served if parents and teachers get to know each other.

In the largely minority, heavily welfare and transient area of central Long Beach, these casual conversations are a way to share cultural information and eliminate misinformation. "The only way to dispel myths about the central area is to go into the homes and meet the parents as people," says Andrew Allegretti, the school principal who originated large-scale vistations.

"A social visit can do more than a conference in the more sterile environment of a school building, says Dale Clinton, now community relations assistant at City Hall and one of the first black community leaders to suggest that teachers get to know the community better. "Then the youngsters know that the teacher is human and not someone set apart."

Ten years ago when the federal poverty program was getting underway, a few teachers and school liaison workers began making independent visits into

know more about the youngsters," says Mrs. Clinton, an anti-poverty program liaison at the time.

The large-scale visits began when Allegretti and other staff at Burnett School on Hill Street decided to give it a try. The idea caught on, spread to the two other elementary schools in the area, and was adopted by individual teachers at other schools, including the junior and senior high schools in the immediate area.

NAMED "OPERATION home call," the organized visits are thriving at Burnett and Whittier School on Walnut Avenue, just south of Pacific Coast Highway, but were eliminated at Roosevelt School on Linden Avenue.

At Roosevelt, says principal Carl Martin, supporters of the concept rely once again on the school's community liaison worker and individual teacher initiative to make home contact.

We had the program for three years and gave it up two years ago. We now make home visits with more sensitivity, by a few people on a regular basis

Ninette Richardson teaches at Roosevelt Elementary School on Linden Avenue in the central area of Long Beach where students are more often black, low income, and transient. She knows first-hand what it is to be raised in the type of home which won't make it into any of the fancy decorating maga-zines, where the language spoken with peers and family is different than that taught in the classroom, and what it means to have a skin color darker than that seen on the television set.

Being one of the few black teachers in a heavily black area is a special treat for her, her students, and their parents. Ninette Richardson knows it, enjoys it, and makes good use of it. For the last six years she has been going into the neighborhood homes, relaxing in a chair and chatting with the children's moth-ers. She wants to get to know her chil-

ers. She wants to get to know her children and their families better and she wants them to get to know her. The extra effort is valuable.

"I need it; it boosts me and it really helps in relating with the kids. I have to look at each child individually and not as part of a group," she says.

She learns that Suzie, an outstanding student last year, is listless this year because her father died during the summer: she learns that Johnny, worksummer; she learns that Johnny, working his way to a suspension, has a mother who really wants to help him do well in school; and she learns that Brenda fell asleep in class because she sleeps on the couch at home and the family likes to watch late night televi-

My favorite jokes

by jeff chern

EDITOR'S NOTE: Originally from Cleveland, Jeff Chern now lives in New York City where, in his act, he discusses some of the perils of life there—like dating. "Girls are very difficult to impress in Manhattan," he says. "In the Midwest if you go up to a girl at a bar and say, 'Listen, I'm a stand-up comic,' she'll say, 'Really, what kind of stuff do you do? Have you ever been on TV?' Tell a girl in New York that you're a comedian and she says: 'I dig that—you wanna see my Cagney imitation?'

Actually, you find some interesting places in New York. For instance, they have strange boutiques. I went to an Indian boutique where they have little items from India like jade elephants, and I saw a book on a shell. The title was: "How to Become a Famous Trumpet Player." And 1 thought, boy, that's funny to see in an Indian shop. I read the first few pages of the book and it tells you how you can die and come back as Dizzy Gillespie."

Jeff has performed at the Improvisation and Catch A Rising Star in Manhattan, and Pip's in Brooklyn.

Here are some of his jokes and stor-

I just moved recently from the West Side to the East Side. I had to move. What happened was, on the West Side this guy above me started to play the flute. It was great music, but the mice were lined up for miles.

New York is a very religious town. If you don't think people have faith in this city, watch how New Yorkers cross the street.

A lot of people run around here asking for money. You know, "You have any spare change, buddy?" They can make you feel guilty after a while. I just couldn't take it any more and one day I dropped a nickel into this guy's cup and it made a splash. How did I know he was drinking coffee?

I don't like to go to singles bars. Girls are usually very sarcastic to me. I remember I asked one girl how she stayed so young-looking. She told me she ate last year's food.

I asked this girl whether she wanted me to buy her a drink. She said: "Well, I haven't got the time right now, but could you give me the $2 instead?"

And my neighborhood was a very vocationally oriented place. When I went to high school it was during the Vietnam war and kids were fascinated by uniforms; any kind of uniform. So we lost half of our graduating class to the Army and half to Texaco.

In school we had what they usually call Corporation Day. They invite people from different corporations to visit the school and speak to the students about employment opportunities. We had Jack from the hardware store come over and show us how to make keys.

And we had a local baseball team it was the worst. I went to watch one of the games with my cousin. He caught a foul tip—and he was recruited to play the next inning.

I went to India once and I worked in what was called the Federal Post Office of India. You think our postal service can be bad? Some of those people don't get their letters till their second lifetime.

ACTOR Freddie Prinze of "Chico and the Man" TV series - now a

SINGER Dinah Shore - advocates exercise and restraint in eating

POLISH singer Bobby Vinton he and wife have a non-interference pact.

Q: When is the Freddie Prinze haby arriving? And didn't he marry a look-alike for his former favorite female, Raquel Welch? -Timmic D., Longview, Tex

A: No. Although Freddie describes Kathy Cochran as "gorgeous — inside and out," reporters say she is a middle-class, religious, old-fashioned girl. They met while he was browsing about her parents' art gallery in Wyo-ming and married shortly thereafter. As for the little Chico, we don't know when Freddie Jr. was due, but he checked in last month, March 8.

Q: On Dean Martin's recent TV roasting of Telly Savalas, Angle Dickinson got a loud laugh when she said Telly had a lot of charisma. Then she offered a one-word description of what charisma meant applied to him. What was it? — Adele Marsh, Santa Monica.

A: "Horny?"

Q: What is Bobby Vinton's wife's pet name for her husband? And how come she never attends his opening nights? Is it nerves, or some sort of Polish superstition? Ms. Wendy Duncan, Columbus,

A: "Nothing of the sort," smiles Dolly Vinton. "Bobby and I have an agreement. I don't go to his openings - and he doesn't go into my kitchen!" Her pet name for Bobby? The Polish Prince!

Q: Didn't little Karen of the Mickey Mouse Club die? I hope - Susan Stevenson, Seattle.

A: Happily, no. She's very much alive and living in Toluca Lake with her childhood sweetheart. Mike DeLauer and their year-old daughter. Karen Pendleton, smallest of the Mouseketeers, was the strawberry blond charmer with the long curls. Currently she's a busy wife and mother and working for a national life insurance company in Los Angeles. Her interest in show business is confined to leafing through her scrap books.

Q: Do those golfing greats who compete on the pro tour take their familles along with them? Richard Gallagher, Flushing,

A: "No," grinned one popular champion, 41-year-old Gary Player. "If we toted along the whole gang we'd have to win every time out just to pay ex-penses!" The Players (Gary and Vivienne, daughter of his golf mentor have six children. Which, pop puns, "is Pa for the course!"

Q: I hear there's still another book about Sinatra being written.

But why the secrecy about who's writing it? — Ms. Nanette Rice, Norfolk, Va.

A: No secret. Author of the unauthorized biography is Broad-way columnist Earl Wilson, who was a "lifetime" pal till he print-ed an item that rankled Frank. Which led to the newsman being barred from Sinatra's opening at the Fontainbleau in Miami Beach (back in 1968), though his "B.W." (beautiful wife) won executive clemency and was permitted to sit ringside. Macmillan will spring the book in May.

Q: When Ronald Reagan's term as governor of California was over, didn't he make some remark about planning to be a movie star again? - Constance O'Reilly, Pittsburgh.

A: No. "I can't go back to making movies," remarked Rea-gan. "I'm too old to take off my

Q: "I'm envious of how youthful and trim Dinah Shore keeps herself. Would you ask what her secret is? — Mrs. Audrey H., Long Beach, Calif.

A: "I don't have a weight problem — because I don't take sec-onds!" declares Dinah. "Perhaps another reason is that I love exercising - like swimming, jogging, dancing, playing golf and tennis.'

Q: I heard that collegians are weary of having hard rock groups entertain at their functions. Just what do they like these days? -Mrs. William Thighe, New Haven,

'All the President's Men' is a must see movie

Spring must be here, because new movies are blossoming faster than the trees in Central Park. The biggest, best and most likely to have a rich, powerful future is "All The President's Men," the gripping, suspenseful and thoroughly satisfying film version of the best seller by Washington Post reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward about you know what happened to which presidential administration.

It's the movie they said could not be made, and frankly, I am amazed that they made it with such style and coherence. Just to think about Watergate (and there are those I'm told who prefer not to) is to and there are those, I'm told, who prefer not to) is to clutter the brain with a million details, telephone conversations, notebook jottings, investigations and technical problems that could be very dull indeed on nm.

Awesomely, and with tremendous intelligence. Alan Pakula, the director, has assembled each element with the panache of a mystery novelist. The result is a movie that literally keeps the audience glued to the edge of the seat with nail-biting tension and excitement. and excitement

It started June 1, 1972, when President Nixon's helicopter was arriving for a visit to Congress and an address to the nation via network TV. In another part of Washington, five men were breaking into the National Democratic Headquarters at the Watergate Hotel. It was an unspectacular story. Just another robbery for page 30.

Cub reporter Bob Woodward, who had only been with the Post a few months, was sent to cover it. But Woodward, in his calm, curious way, smelled a rat. Was it just a routine burglary pulled by crazy Cubans? If so, why was Howard Hunt's name in one of their address books? The trail of suspicion led to

of their address books? The trail of suspicion led to Charles Colson, a special consultant to Nixon himself. Before you could say "Stop the presses, boys. I've got a story that's gonna break this town wide open," what started out as a police-blotter yarn led Woodward and his byline-sharer, Carl Bernstein, to uncover the crime of the century, a front-page nerveripper that involved the FBI, CIA, Justice Department and even the White House. They precipitated the greatest Constitutional crisis since the Civil War the greatest Constitutional crisis since the Civil War and changed the course of history for the entire

How they did it, what they did, what they had to go through to convince their editors and why — is what "All The President's Men" is about. Though it grieves me to know some people will avoid what they think is a movie about Watergate, this movie is about much more

Even if you are simply seeking entertainment, it will satisfy your needs and fulfill your stiffest de-mands. Written with craftsmanlike precision by William Goldman and directed with brilliance and cinematic skill by Alan Pakula, "All The President's Mcn" works on several levels. It contains every element of mystery, tension and suspense indigenous to a great detective story. That's pretty staggering, considering the control and dignity involved. Not one gun goes off, no bodies are slashed and there are no souped-up action sequences. Yet my heart pounded harder than it has in any saga I've seen in the past

THE WATERGATE mystery is evenly matched by the flavor and excitement of newspaper work. I found the behind-the-scenes stuff about how certain stories are selected, what reporters endure, what editors say behind closed doors about the news they print and the newsmakers who make the headlines almost as fascinating and hypnotic as the Watergate case itself. Goldman's dialogue is natural, full-bodied and surging with guts. Atmosphere blends with facts'

Hal Holbrook is sinister and shuddery as "Deep Throat," the secret contact who dispenses confiden-tial information in clandestine meetings in basement garages. (Woodward has consistently refused to re-Patrick Gray.) Jane Alexander is edgily moving as a bookkeeper for the Committee to Re-Elect the Presi-dent who becomes the reporters' first reluctant witness. Frank Wills, the security guard who saw the taped-open Watergate door and called the police, plays himself. Other key figures are authentically portrayed by Stephen Collins (a dead ringer for High Flags the Computer) and Richard Herd Sloan, the Committee's treasurer) and R

as James W. McCord, Jr.
On the newspaper side, Jason Robards is won. derful as Ben Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post, whose demand for facts instead of theories almost turns the boys gray-haired overnight; Jack Warden, as metropolitan editor Harry Rosenfeld, and Martin Balsam, as managing editor Howard simons, are so eerily natural they seem to have been born hunched over a copy desk. And there is a large but uniformly excellent supporting cast in the complicated pile-up of clues and triumphs and dead-end streets, with a remarkable amount of time devoted to the exploration of character. It's a staggering achievement.

Best of all, however, are Robert Redford and

Dustin Hoffman, as the glue holding all the bits of paper together, and somehow they manage the impossible task of submerging their own superstar images to literally become the reporters they are Redford's well-bred, Ivy League charm is used to good advantage as Woodward, while Hoffman's eager, rumpled, chain-smoking Bernstein is a perfect counterpart. As different as they are, they merge into one molecular structure in a powerful scene that gave me goosebumps.

This is, from all points of view, an inspiring, bold, courageous motion picture that should be required viewing for every American citizen, even if it takes an act of Congress to make them see it. It wouldn't hurt America's critics to see it, either, just It won't be on the 10 Best list at San Clemente this year, but it is already on mine.

FOR PURE, NUTTY escapism, don't miss "The Bad News Bears," a huggable surprise with Walter Matthau and Tatum O'Neal that arrives just in time for spring training, baseball and the hysteria that goes with it. Baseball and children. I don't know which subject fills me with more revulsion. "The Bad News Bears" is about both, and it is a credit to the

talents and persuasions of everyone involved that it succeeds in pleasing even the Scroogiest curmudgeon

Poor carburetor-faced Matthau. He's an ex-athlete who cleans swimming pools. For extra oread, takes on the coaching of a Little League team called The Bears. They are awful. There's a smart aleck who knows all about Hank Aaron but can't hit the side of a house with a rock, a baby Hindenburg who eats so much chocolate the balls slide across second base like mudpies. Mexican kids who can't speak English and one little loony who never speaks but who makes an excellent martini. Matthau takes one look at these losers and guzzles beer, smokes eigars, cusses a blue streak and passes out on the playing

Most of the teams are sponsored by Pizza Hut chains or Denny's. The Bears are sponsored by Chico's Bail Bonds. By their second game of the season, they almost get to first base in the fourth inning. It's the biggest disaster since the Bobbsey mning. It's the biggest disaster since the Bobbsey Twins crashed their canoe in Cherry Corners.

Enter Tatum O'Neal, a tough kid who pitches a mean curve but is too little to grow any of her own.
"I'm through with all that tomboy stuff," growls pitching whiz Tatum, who has a legitimate job selling maps to movie stars' homes. "I'm almost 12, and I'll be getting a bra soon!"

But the aggress the stall the

But she accepts the challenge in exchange in ballet lessons and French jeans. Add one jurished delinquent who knocks balls over the field faster than delinquent who knocks balls over the field faster than he can outrun the vice squad, and The Bears are on their way to winning the pennant and a few hard hearts in the bargain.

I must be old-fashioned. I thought kids went home after school, did their homework, watched "The Waltons" after dinner and hit the sack by 10. The kids in this movie would make Mae West black, and if they watch anything, it's "Deep Throat." Yet I'm told by people who have kids of their own that the raunchy dialogue in the picture is totally accurate. They are no neck monsters, but they grow on you. Walter Matthau looks like he could sell them for tax shelters, and Tatum O'Neal has the charks of a pint-sized Wallace Beery. They work beautifully together.

The armada of private boats gathered early to await the arrival of Her Majesty the RMS Queen Mary. She was making her last voyage after more than 30 years of life jackets and menus (if you could catch them before they hit the water.)

The decks were lined with happy and weary final passengers and, in their joy at participating in such a momenteous event, began tossing souvenirs from the ship. Out came silverware, silver trays, silver pitchers, anything with RMS Queen Mary or Cunard inscribed on it. At the crew's end of the ship, the small craft welcomers got different kinds of mementos - blankets,

The conviviality of this day was not an omen for what lay ahead for the giant ship, however, as she spent the next three years in dry dock while workmen labored to prepare her for a new life. The refurbishing task was much larger, more time con-suming and more costly than officials anticipated and the gala grand opening was delayed and DELAYED again.

Meanwhile, the Queen waited to be moved to her permanent location at Pier J and to prove true the prediction at her launching — that she would "know her and to prove that the prediction at the launching — that she would "know her greatest glory when she never carried another passenger and never sailed another mile." — Dianne Smith

Q. "When was Golden Oak forniture produced in the United States?" — Mr. & Mrs. R. L.; Boston,

A. Between the 1850s and early 1900s dozens of American furniture factories manufactured inexpensive oak furniture. Around the turn-of-the-century it reached its peak of popularity. It was hubbed "Grand Rapids Furniture" because the furniture establishments centered in and around this town excelled in creating such oak furnishings. However, it also was manufactured eisewhere. A. The number 13 found separately or accompanied by a factory trademark indicates that the piece is of European origin. Silversmiths working in Germany, Austria, Poland, Hungary and adjoining countries used it to indicate that the object was 13 parts silver to three of alloy. The number 16 represented the finest silver. Sometimes a lower quality was indicated by the number 12, or a higher one by the numbers 14 or 15, but such specimens are rare. CREATIVE hostesses, throw away your lace and linen Buffet table cloths. (Flang on to your no iron ones just in case.).

Try decorating your dining table with parsley. You not only don't have to wash and iron it — you and your guests can eat it.

Since I am the paper tablecloth and a quick dash to the nearest super- market for a plant hostess, I truly envy creative party people.

Now to get back to the parsley.

The small dining table is circular. Over it hangs an antique chandelier in Laitque crystal. Centering the table were masses of white peach blossoms, which climbed in and around the chandelier and touched the ceiling.

The table was covered entirely in parsley with a variety of raw vegetables nestled among the green leaves. Seashells held the various sauces for dipping. Elsewhere throughout the house, guests encountered huge rounds of different cheese and baskets of bread.

A Dielfenbachia is one plant you can

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

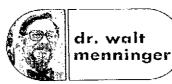

Your response to a reader about whether or not plants "perspire" upset me very much — specifically because you said that when plants, such as Dieffenhachias, seem "transpiring," that is, letting off extra moisture through the ends of their leaves, and the reader "shouldn't fret — there's nothing to worry about." Please, please write another column about the Dieffenbalic and the little that the Dieffenbalic and the little beautiful the chia and tell the people that the Dieffenba-chia is not called the Dumb Cane Plant for nothing. The common name reflects the fact that the acid sap will burn the mouth and throat and may paralyze the vocal DEAR M. S.:

First of all, we merely were answering the question about transpiring and didn't feel any need, in that particular letter, to go into the discussion about poisonous plants. If somehow you got the impression we didn't know — or wouldn't tell — that the Dieffenbachia sap can be paralyzing, then perhaps we'd better correct it.

Like oleanders, some azaleas and several other rather uncommon outdoor plants, the sap of the Dieffenbachia should never be ingested, but we also better take this opportunity to reiterate again that it's better not to eat the leaves of any plant unless you're absolutely, positively, 100 per cent sure that they're not only harmless but beneficial. We hope that clears up your upset condition, and we further hope that neither you nor your Dumb Cane will who drives his mother up the wall, because he is never fully satisfied with the answers he gets to his questions. He reminds me of when some of my hildren were younger. Repeatedly, I would be asked, 'Why is that, Daddy?"

If you've been a parent, you know the exasperation. How do you explain some complicated things to a child who can't really understand what it's all about? I know of no better example than the question, "Daddy, why do some people have different colored skin? What does it mean?"

"Well, I don't really know why there are people with different colored skin. There just are. That's the way God created us. And it doesn't mean anything.

really. They're people like us."

"Then why are they different from us? How come, Daddy?"

"Because"

Because. Because why?"

At which point I retreat to the World Book Encyclopedia and look up "Races of Man." There I find an elaboration of the subject, with drawings of different peoples across the world. There's a discussion of different physical characteristics, and three major groupings with a percentage distribution — Caucasoid, 56 percent of the world's population; Negroid, 10 percent; Mongoloid, 34 percent. I note that "enmity and distrust between groups of people have been common throughout history." But I don't find "Why?"!

CITLDREN struggle mightily to understand differences. They expect everyone to be alike, and the first thing they assume is that something is wrong with someone who is different. Or else something is wrong with them.

Unable to understand why, and also unable to realize that differences are essentially just skin deep, the child is likely to come up with an overly simplis-tic and distorted explanation. Therein lie some of the roots of racial prejudice.

More than ten years ago at a psychiatric meeting. Dr. L.J. West drew attention to the common equation in our language of the color white with purity, goodness, light, heroism; and the color black with filth, evil, darkness, villainy. And he noted that this equation of black with dark and evil forces can be found in other languages and other arrivants. be found in other languages and other cultures, even

The equation is found in literature and entertainment repeatedly. Recently, my daughter Marian pre-pared an essay on the lightness-darkness theme in John Steinbeck's "The Pearl," and she found more than one reference per page to the lightness-good, darkness evil imagery. And the television and movie westerns consistently portray the good guy in white hat, on a white horse, and the villain in dark clothes, dark hat, on a black horse.

'Why?' can be impossible to answer with things bad.

WHY IS ALL TITIS so consistent? Look to some childhood perceptions. Most children are scared of the dark, frightened of emptiness, silence, loneliness and abandonment experienced at night. Unsure of their security and safety, they equate things dark

As we grow up, we tend to retain these formula-tions deep within us. But they are covered over with elaborate rationalizations so they don't look the same. They are hard to undo, and because of them it may not be easy to think of black as beautiful, or pure, good, light and heroic.

Mike has a mind of its own

If there is anything in this world as fiercely independent as a microphone, I don't know what it is. I mean, imagine the year is 1775. At the Provincial Convention in Virginia, statesman Patrick Henry rises to his feet to make an impassioned plea for liberty or death. He approaches the microphone and

In 10 years of lecturing, I have seen microphones go from an occasional passive screech to real screaming militants. To begin with, microphones do not like to be touched by a union or otherwise. Because I am short, I tried to adjust one the other week. I gave it just a simple tweak, mind you, and it went as limp as a $2 permanent in a sauna. I gave the entire speech from a squatting sprinter's position.

SOME MICROPHONES work great as long asyou blow into them. So you stand there like an idiot blowing and saying, "Are you on? Can you hear me?" Everyone admits they can hear you blowing.

It's only when you speak the microphone goes dead.

Others have a weird sense of humor. They're punch-line poopers. You'll be sailing along with a three-minute story, building to a big pitch and just as you say, "So why isn't the dog drinking his daiquit?" the microphone goes silent and you're left muttering, "Gee, I guess you had to have been there."

Some speakers spend half their lives looking for the on/off switch of microphones. There aren't any. I've looked for them under the light, on the shelf, on the side, the goose neck, offstage. I suspect most of them are triggered by a remote control in a 1936 pickup truck in a garage across from the auditorium.

I HAVE BEEN warned that some microphones are super sensitive and you have to talk right into them to be heard. These are usually the ones that cross you up by picking up your entire huncheon conversation including, "My God, do you mean the management is charging you $10 for this hunch! Has he never heard of the Geneva Convention?

Whydoyou smoke?

With what you've been hearing about smoking these days, you probably wonder sometimes why you smoke at all.

Yet you enjoy it.

Because smoking a cigarette can be one of those rare and pleasurable private moments.

And the chances are you don't want to give up any of that.

Which brings us to Vantage.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who don't entertain the idea of giving up cigarettes because they find cigarettes too entertaining.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who have come to realize that most cigarettes that give them the flavor they want also give them a lot of the 'tar' and the nicotine that they may not want.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who've found that most low 'tar' cigarettes don't give them anything at all.

The thing that makes Vantage special is that its filter is based on a new design concept that gives smokers the flavor of a full-flavor cigarette without anywhere near the 'tar' and nicotine.

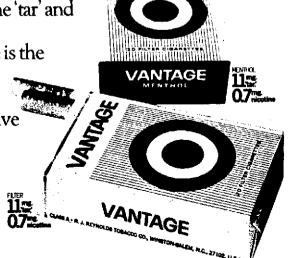

Now we don't want to suggest that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you'll find.

It isn't.

But it probably is the lowest one that will give you enjoyment.

And that's why you smoke. Right?

Dr. Carron says the injection technique is used primarily in patients with ruptured intervertebral disks — persons who continue to have pain. It is also used to treat sciatica, severe leg pain.

A government contract of $422,000 has been awarded to a leading pharmaceutical firm, Parke, Davis & Co., to develop a malaria vaccine.

A worldwide resurgence of malaria is again interfering with agricultural produc-tion and economic development, leading the Agency for International Development to seek a vaccine for the prevention of malaria.

The research work will be carried out in the firm's Detroit research laboratories.

A company spokesman said that malaria infects approximately 200 million persons annually in various tropical and subtropical areas around the world. A malaria eradication program, begun in 1955, effective reduced the number of cases. Since 1965, however, there has been a dramatic increase in malaria infection in the Far East, Southeast Asia, Latin America and Africa.

The reasons for the early onset of menstruction and for its increased amount and duration are not clear, the editorial says.

Music takes a new route

By ELISE EMERY

Have you ever blown so hard on a trumpet that your cheeks bulged like helium balloons, chords in your neck tautened, your eyes popped? Then, miraculously came a sound — sweet, clear, ringing! You had played a trumpet! Tod Talmage has done that.

Have you plucked the strings of a violin, heard their pizzicato sound? Then drawn a bow, made of a special kind of horsehair, across the strings to produce a completely different ripple of notes? Frank Baldwin and Jina Walton have.

They are three of more than 1,000 Long Beach third-graders who will experience this kind of intro-duction to music-making in a program which began Monday and will continue for another week. It's a project of Long Beach Symphony Juniors, affiliates to the Long Beach Auxiliary of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Association. Next year's goal is to bring the Music Mobile to all third grade classrooms in the Long Beach Schools.

MUSIC MOBILE?

That's an idea the Pasadena Junior Philharmonic Committee dreamed up in 1971. They took a colorful van, filled it with instruments and teaching aids, trained docents from their membership and literally took music to the schools. The result: instant success. Kids loved being able to actually pick up the success. Kids loved being able to actually pick up the instruments, try to play them. They were excited when they heard tapes of such story-telling music as "Till Eulenspiegel" and could hear the many instruments singing together.

So this year Long Beach Symphony Juniors have rented the van and are taking it to Gant, Longfellow, Burbank, Riley, Sutter, Lowell, Hudson, Los Cerritos, Gompers and Bixby schools.

Mrs. James Hunter is heading the project, assisted by Mrs. Charles Armstrong.

THE MAIN PURPOSE of the venture is to introduce children to the orchestra, to make them aware of the part music plays in their lives.

It's amazing, project coordinators report, how

It's amazing, project coordinators report, how many more youngsters want to study music in the public schools in the fourth grade, when instrumental classes are first available.

The instruments are no strangers. Via the Music Mobile, the children already have learned the sections of the orchestra, individual voices of the instruments, how they combine to make music tell a story, create a mood or express an emotion. They know the four sections are string, brass, percussion and wood-

New arts council \( \) to allocate funds to allocate funds

A belated report (dated March 23, received more than a week later) from the new California Arts Council announces that a total of $555,000 was allocated to four broad program areas at its March 14 meeting in Fresno.

Only the Special Projects program currently is accepting applications for the $170,000 earmarked for this fund. It was established to assist new, innova-tive projects. Artists and art groups may send a written request for the applicant information sheet to Califor-nia Arts Council, 808 "O" St., Sacramento, 95814.
Another $135,000 was allocated to fund in-depth media studies of the state of the art of various disciplines.

Another project, Arts in Communi-ties and Social Institutions, received $150,000 and the remaining $100,000 was designated for pilot programs dealing with alternatives in education. Specific recommendations will be made to the Council at its April 19 meeting in Santa Cruz. The recommendations for expending the $555,000 will include simplified procedures to disperse the funds since the money must

The public is invited to the Santa Cruz meeting at 10 a.m. in Laurel Street School, on the corner of Laurel and Center Streets. Time is set aside at 1:30 p.m. for members of the public to express their opinions.

Conversations with Marilyn. By W.J. Weatherby. Mason Charter Publishers,

This is not a sensational book, no mean accomplishment given the curiosity which has preyed upon Marilyn Monroe in death as in me.

The author first met his subject on the set of "The Misfits." Later he drank with her on a number of occasions in an inconspicuous bar in New York.

He says she asked him not to write about their conversations until after her retirement, and there is an obvious poignancy in her detailed plans for her future. I think it is to his credit that he, a professional interviewer, did not commit this personal material to print until specula-tions swelled to such a crest that he felt her own words, and the impressions of someone who had known her in relaxed moments, would have a bracing effect. I think you will enjoy this book, but I should warn you that of its 229 pages, 56 are cosmetically blank. Nor will you learn for certain whether Marily had an affair with JFK, RFK, or both; whether she died accidentally, killed herself, or was murdered; or to what extent Arthur Miller's play, "After the Fall," is a fair portrayal of her. The author does, however, draw reasonable inferences.

I can remember, as a kid, viewing "The Misfits" in a rapidly emplying theatre and fighting back the externals of emotion. It was to be the last film completed by Marilyn or by Gable, and one of the last for Montgomery Clift. It marked the break-up of her marriage with Miller. Seldom has so much genius been collectively expended on a single project, and yet it was considered a failure even by most of those associated with it. Today it is most of those associated with it. Today it is an underground classic, premonition haunting the celluloid.

I found of immense interest the miniatures of the "misfits," and of others such as Lee Strasberg, Billy Wilder, Clifford Odets, and Samuel Goldwyn. As for Marilyn, well, I came away from the book thinking of her as a very talented actress and a very ordinary person. What is exand a very ordinary person. What is extraordinary is that she could remain ordinary after having been transformed into the greatest sex symbol since Hester Prynne. In this Bicentennial Year, in spite of the banality of her opinions on politics. Storalure and magning the remains one literature, and marriage, she remains one of the most widely loved Americans. As a panhandling wino described her in one of her rare moments of anonymity — "a doli."

The Cardinal and the Secretary: Thomas Wolsey and Thomas Cromwell. By Neville

Long Beach State University

Williams, Macmillan, $9.95. Thomas Wolsey (1473-1530), statesman and prelate, lord chancellor of England (1515-1529), Archbishop of York (1514-1530), cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church was the man largely responsible for the emergence of England as a first-rate power in the 18th century. Having gained the favor of Henry VIII, he rose rapidly and by 1514 virtually con-trolled England's domestic and foreign trolled England's domestic and foreign policy. Twice he tried and failed to become Pope. Wolsey built several palaces, among them Hampton Court, and his court rivaled in pomp that of Henry VIII. His foes used Henry's divorce from Catherine of Aragon to ruin him (Wolsey presided at the trial of Catherine) and he lost all his honors except his archibichaptic. Ho was arrested for his archbishopric. He was arrested for treason and died on the way to London.

Thomas Cromwell (1485-1540) (no ances-Thomas Cromwell (1485-1540) (no ancestor of Oliver) was Wolsey's legal secretary, and managed to avoid implication in his downfall. He too attracted the attention of Henry VIII and he too rose rapidly. He carried out the suppression of the monasteries (and a good deal of their wealth managed to slick to his fingers). He was made lord great rhamberlain in 1539 and negotiated Henry's marriage to Anne of Cleves to secure a German alliance. This failed and he was arrested, convicted of failed and he was arrested, convicted of treason and heresy, and beheaded.

What the talented novelist, dramatist and historian Neville Williams seeks to prove, and largely succeeds in doing in this brilliant dual historraphy is that both men brilliant dual biography, is that both men served a much lorger role than that of the opportunisitic, power hungry politicos to which most historians have consigned

Wolsey, we are reminded by Williams, worked to achieve lasting peace when war was the accepted means of diplomacy. was the accepted means of diplomacy. Cromwell, we are shown, skillfully directed Henry's break with Rome and completely overhauled England's medieval administrative system. "The Cardinal and the Secretary" is an engrossing and scholarly picture not only of the two men, but of the power battle between the king and parliament, the jealousies and rivalging of powerful families, the schemines of ries of powerful families, the schemings of churchmen, and of women trying for the King's affection. James I. By Otto J. Scott. Mason Charter,

Otto J. Scott's "Robespierre: The Voice of Virtue," also a Mason Charter publication, was a brilliant portrait of the revolutionist as fanatic. Author Scott turns now, with an equally deft pen, to a far different sort of eminence — James VI, king of Scotland, crowned James I, King of England in 1603, a ruler, who by and large, was unequal to the task of dealing with his times. A man, who, in author Scott's phrase, was "the figure of the Fool." James (1568-1625) was the son of the ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots, by Lord Darnley, He was cousin to Elizabeth I, who thought little of him. He became James VI of Scotland when his mother abdicated, allied himself with Elizabeth, and calmly acquiesed in her belieading of his mother. He succeeded Elizabeth to the British throne in 1603.

Pluses under his reign are overbalanced by negatives: the production of the Authorized (King James) version of the Bible by his inconsistent policy toward the English Catholics, angering both them and the Protestants; the beginnings of English colonization in North America (Jamestown, Virginia, bears his name) by his reliance on incompetent favorites, his extrava-gances which furthered discontent in a land that, when his reign began, was imbued with a cocky hope for the future. His claims for the divine right of kings led to the Puritan Revolution. Otto J. Scott's "James I" is all that the biography of a relayant his one should be ruler and his era should be all year long, rather than descending like a swarm of locusts one or two days a year," says Martin.

"I'm so glad they stopped operation home call," says sixth grade teacher Ninette Richardson. "Parents resented it. They used to say, 'today is the day all the white teachers come and show us what good neighbors they are."

"There's a lot of warmth in this school," says Rodsevelt vice principal Bob Robertson, "and a lot of warmth in the community." But the school neighborhood, he says, was caught in the flux of the Poly Redevelopment area with condemned buildings and vacant areas and some teachers felt uncomfortable about going into the neighborhood. "It's a personal about going into the neighborhood. "It's a personal thing we leave up to the teacher. Some feel comfortable some don't."

able, some don't."

The secret to success depends on the sincerity of the teacher, says Miss Richardson, who makes frequent home calls. "It all boils down to whether they think you care. If you're sincere, they'll know you're not there to judge them. If you're apprehensive, sitting on the edge of your chair, looking afraid to touch anything, they'll resent it."

Over at Whittier School, 90 per cent of the teachers are comfortable making visits and the parents like having teachers get acquainted. "We're trying to get the school into the community," says Allegretti, "and we're trying to pull the community into the schoolhouse as a place where they can have fun and feel welcome." If the idea of school being involved in the community is going to make it in this neighborhood, it will make it in any neighborhood, he neighborhood, it will make it in any neighborhood, he says. In his view, the plan is working. "It's a subjective view, I can't say for certain that it improves children's learning."

A FULL 85 per cent of the Whittier area popula-tion is on welfare — highest rate in the school district. With a classroom turnover rate of more than 100 per cent during a school year, the school also has the third highest transient population. School in general has a darkened image with many of these parents, says Allegretti, "This is the place where they maybe failed as kids and where they tend to relate with teachers as a parent to a professional rather than as two equal human beings. So the question is how to get them to feel good about school."

Home visits, with emphasis on the positive, is one way. "We had a lot of positive feedback," says Allegretti. Cultural variances between the white middle-class future-oriented teaching staff and the low-income minority now-oriented children can be better bridged, he says.

"Parents, no matter where they live," says Burnett principal Kenneth Slawson, "want to know what's going on and to help in educating their children. We have tremendous cooperation. Parents are

"In my personal view, school people can be fearful of interrelating with this community. They can come straight here every morning, stay in the schoolhouse all day, then go straight home in the afternoon. But how do we know whal's going on and understand what the child brings to school unless we understand what the child brings to school unless we get to know the parents as people?" asks Allegretti.

"When two people get together and talk over coffee, something happens. They discover they have a common interest—the child—and they get to know each other. It's my belief that when this happens improvements can been seen in the child.
"I know I can't teach effectively in a school unless I know the antecedents of the child. The way to enhance the feaching of a particular child is to to enhance the teaching of a particular child is to know what is important to that child." A 15 to 20 minute chat helps to get that information.

JACQUELINE SMITH, a vivacious mother of two students at Burnett School, has high praise for the home call program. "I thought it was very important and my kids were always excited. When the teachers would come, I'd show them my garden and always manage to keep them longer than the 20

She credits these contacts as the impetus for getting her more actively involved in education. She is now a paid aid in the counselor's office at Whittier and works with the children in a poetry class.

John Rambo, another black community leader and public relations representative with General Telephone, also praises the program. "Most teachers don't live in the central area and what better way is there to understand what it is like on the other side of the mountain."

Rambo has two daughters at Whittier School. "I think most youngsters would really appreciate the chance to know that, hey, maybe this teacher really is interested in me," he says.

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN In pursuit of education

DEAR MR. SMITH: I received my Ph.D. in 1975, and have heard that the expenses involved are deductible. If this is true, how do I take the deduction? I was in psychotherapy for a couple of years. Are the costs for it tax deductible? I was in therapy with a licensed psychologist (Ph.D.) How do I go about revising previ-ous tax returns? What forms do I use?—

DEAR MR. SMITH: I own a one-man business. I lease an auto used 100 per cent for business at $100 a month. For income tax purposes I charge all mileage driven as business expense, so much for the first 15,000 miles, etc. I also charge all insurance, license and other expenses. The leasing firm says total expense of leasing is also a business deduction, in addition to business mileage. I can't get an answer to this question: can I charge the amount of the lease as well as the business mileage. Brings the Big Ones Out of Hiding! In today's hard-fished waters, the big ones are harder to take than ever. They've seen every kind of hire that attracts by sight; they've heard just about every kind of ture that attracts by sound; they've learned to resist live bait, no matter how attractively It's put before them—or they wouldn't have lived to reach trophy size. But they haven't learned to resist a certain combination of enticing odorsand that's our secret ... that can be Your secret weapon!

Our Spanish Fly Bait Oli is a concentrated version of one of the most powerful and effective secret formulas ever discovered for attracting fish. So concentrated . . . we've packaged it in en aerosol can-so you can use a single burst to spray a whole batch of your favorite plugs spoons spinners. plastic worms, ilgs, bucktails, files, metal squids-any artificialsi Won'l interfere with the action in any way--but adds the fish-taking extra of an irresistible scenti Or spray it on worms. trops, hellgramiles, shiners, minnows -any live or cut beit-to attract fish from far beyond that bait's natural rangel Works like a chum stick-only more so! Equally effective in fresh or salt water ... stream or lake ... surf or bay! Works in all seasons—warm water or cold . . . even under ice!

Test It on Your Home Fishing Grounds-At Our Risk!

Order a 3-ounce aerosol can of Span-Ish Fly Bait Oil (enough to last most lishermen a full sesson) now. Take it l along to your favorite fishing waters.

Now! Spray the secret scent that fish can't resist on your favorite balt or lure

Spray the lures or balt you generally use there. It doesn't matter what you're after-trout or bluefish ... targemouth bass or striped bass... land-locked salmon or Chinooks ... catfish or muskles. Even if everybody around you is getting skunked, they'll hit your line like they never hit before! If you don't agree . . if you don't hook more lish and bigger fish than you ever did before under the same conditions-iust return the can within 90 days after delivery . . , and we'll refund every penny of your purchase 25 W. ### DEL ALLEN Now it's called Seafood Broiler

WHAT'S HAPPENED to the Fish Cooker restau-

Nothing, except its name has been changed. It's now the Seafood Broiler. But everything else is the same, including the owners, Del Allen and Stephen Stiefel; the menu of scrumptious seafoods and its hours of operation.

The new page is more appropriate because if hours of operation.

The new name is more appropriate because it emphasizes that the restaurant — on Candlewood Street just east of Lakewood Boulevard — prepares its sea delicacies by charcoal-broiling them in an exhibition kitchen. There are no deep-fried or breaded fish entrees at the Seafood Broiler.

The Seafood Broiler, which opened about 14

The Seatood Broiler, which opened about 17 months ago, has been remarkably successful and popular because so many people throughout the Long Beach-Lakewood-Bellflower-Norwalk areas prefer its style of cooking. Some say: "Charcoal-broiling is the only way to cook fish and shellfish. We're crazy about the Seafood Broiler and come here all the time!"

Why don't more restaurants charcoal-broil their sea specialities? Simply because it's difficult to do properly. It takes the greatest expertise to make certain the fiery coals are the right temperature and that each entree is broiled so swiftly that it's tender, moist and delectable. Del and the Broiler's manager, Tom Lewis, have many years of experience in charcoal-broiling sea delicacies. They have trained their cooks well. The broilers are behind glass walls in the large dining room, enabling the guests to watch the entrees being cooked on skewers over the

The Broiler's luncheons are served daily and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Dinner is served anytime, day or night. The luncheons are from $2.35 to $3.50. The dinners are mostly $3.45 to $4.95. The eight-ounce broiled lobster is $7.75 for dinner; chilled cracked fresh Dungeness crab from Oregon is $5.35 on the dinner, $4.05 at luncheon. The dinners include fresh coleslaw or fresh tomatoes; Romano potatoes or peasant-style rice pilaf, tartar sauce or snappy red sauce, bread and butter.

The entrees range from northern white sea bass and eastern scallops to dysters with bacon, Alaska king crab, Alaska salmon, shrimp with bacon and the combination fish kabob of shrimp, scallops and fish broiled on a skewer with onion and bell pepper. Also featured are superb clam chowder, 45 cents; shrimp or crab cocktails, oysters and clams on the halfshell, steamed clams, seafood salads, beer and wine.

The Seafood Broiler's fresh fish market, open every day from 10 a.m. on, offers such beauties as red snapper, Idaho trout, sea hass, filet of sole, crab, Louisiana cattish and many others.

PEOPLE DO like to talk. Three of the most-talked-about restaurants in Long Beach are Jones Dining Room, Jones Downtown Cafeteria and Jones Uptown Cafeteria.

Mostly people talk about how much they enjoy dining on the wonderfully fresh foods at those three places. Occasionally someone (who doesn't have all the facts) will make an additional comment, saying: "Did you know that Jones Uptewn Cafeteria is a separate operation from the downtown Jones' restau-

That's definitely untrue. All three restaurants are part of the same operation which was founded in downtown Long Beach 47 years ago by the Harold A. Jones Sr. family. The owners are Harold Sr., his wife

Jones Sr. family. The owners are harded Sr., his whe Ivalou and their son Hal. All three participate in the operation of all three restaurants.

Jones Uptown Cafeteria, 3636 Long Beach Blvd., a block north of Wardlow Road, was opened two years ago when the downtown restaurants were wrecked by fire. For a time, Hal devoted most of his energies to the Uptown restaurant; perhaps that's the basic for the rumon about it being a senarate operabasis for the rumor about it being a separate opera-

The downtown Dining Room and Cafeteria are in the same building on Fifth Street at Locust Avenue. All three restaurants have been impressively successful year after year because they offer the freshest most delectable, most wholesome foods prepared from treasured family recipes. The restaurants are modern operations, but some of their cooking meth-ods are old-fashioned. The Jones restaurants shun the use of certain pre-packaged convenience foods be-cause they don't taste "right." The Joneses prefer to make the majority of their items fresh "from

The restaurants make their own salad dressings, sauces and gravies—and they are superb! Their chief baker, Harold Egan, turns out the most luscious hot rolls, muffins, sweet rolls, breads, cakes, thick pies and pastries. The staff of cooks, directed by Don Barney (member of the Chefs de Cuisine Association of California) turn out everything from the choicest reast lamb and reast round of beef to baked ham with fruit sauce, sea bass, grilled calves liver with bacon, roast turkey or turkey wings, meadloaf with mushroom sauce, roast beef hash (unusually good), breaded pork tenderloin, tender scallops, all-vegetable platters, Loma Linda meat substitute (very popular) lar), chicken-fried steak and fried spring chicken with

Open for luncheon and dinner (closed Saturdays), the Jones' restaurants are famous for the generosity of their dinners which include many colorful accompaniments, such as thick cream pic for dessert. But you may have smaller meals, if you wish. Large or small, they are sensibly priced.

'Having mastered the garbled cry of the corner newsboy at the age of 13, he says, "I was really street educated. I worked in a small cafe through grade school in Oklahoma and was a grocery clerk while through the cabe." while attending high school.

All of which led today's chef of the week, Joe W. Lewis, to his post as an engineering construction manager for General Telephone Company of Califor-

Born in Comanche, Okla., Lewis attended elementary school in Duncan, but came to Long Beach in time to attend Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. He started as a draftsman for Associated Telephone Company, Ltd., in 1948. Telephoning has been his vocation ever since, except for two years with the U.S. Army Signal Corps during the Korean conflict.

In his present position, Lewis is responsible for 356 employes, and an annual budget of about 8 million dollars. The crew maintains more than a million pairs of wires connecting the same number of phones to 34 switching centers. There are over one-quarter million trunk circuits between switching centers, which serve 38 incorporated cities in Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

Lewis says, "The rules, regulations, restrictions and reports required are increasing as fast as 'telephony' technology, both of which are enough to drive a man right into the kitchen."

LEWIS IS ALSO a writer and a sportsman. He was sports editor and business manager of the high school newspaper, governor of athletics, and played both baseball and basketball.

A former member of the Long Beach 20-30 Club, Lewis was editor of the club paper. He has been active, through his children, in Y-Indian Guides, Little League, Pony-Colt League and Cycling Clubs.

He has served in numerous charity drives and fund

Taising campaigns.

Lewis is also an active member of the Long Beach Downtown Kiwanis Club.

Married to the former Virginia J. Russell, they have four children. Twins, Chris and Nancy, will turn 21 on June 21; James was 18 on March 3, and Linda will be 13 in May.

Our chef's hobbics include vegetable gardening, gelf, pool, and duplicate bridge, in that order.

As for his cooking, Virginia says, "There was a time when he wouldn't even consider the idea. Then, with the family growing, he changed his mind. He still won't follow a recipe to the letter, as I do. He has to improvise. As a result, he's tops at anything he tries."

Today, it's Tacos Buffet Style."

TACOS BUFFET STYLE

12 corn tortillas

1½ pounds ground round
½ teaspoon EACH onion and garlic sait teaspoon chili powder teaspoon black pepper tablespoon flour head lettuce ounces medium tiliamook cheese

1 large tomato

1 small onion Taco hot sauce—optional

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and then turn off. Cut up lettuce, tomato and onion. Grate cheese, Put in separate bowls and set aside

Add seasonings to meat and brown. Drain any excess liquid or fat. Turn off heat. Sprinkle flour over meat and stir until flour is blended in well and meat looks dry. Cover pan.

Add ½ inch cooking oil to 8 inch pan and heat.

Oil must be hot but not smoking.

Arrange cookie sheet with paper towels to drain cooked tortillas. Cook tortillas to taste (soft, medium or hard) by turning the tortillas over in the oil. Drain

When all tortillas are cooked, fill each one with approximately 3 tablespoons of meat. Cover and place in warm oven.

Let everyone serve themselves, adding what they wish. Serves 6.

DEAR ABBY

Why extend an open invitation to more viòlence?

DEAR ABBY: A man signed LOST IN HOUSTON asked you how to get his girl back, and you sloughed him off, telling him to get a new girl. A lot of help that was!

The guy said he has lost his temper and hit his girl. But it happened only once, and he promised he'd never do it again. The girl, however, refused to have anything to do with him after that because she had been married to a guy who beat her up and she wasn't going to take any more chances.

Abby, what happened to all that compassion and

DEAR ABBY: My trouble is my marriage. Two years ago I lied to my husband about a phone call. When he walked into the house, I was talking to my mother long-distance. I told him that she had colled me, but actually I called HER. When he got the phone bill he knew I had lied. He became very angry, and I have been paying for it ever since.

Shortly after that, our sex life stopped all together. He said, "You've got about as much sex appeal as a 50-gallon drum." (He said that because I was overweight.) He said when I got down to normal size, our sex life would start again. Well, I put my mind to it and I lost 58 pounds. I thought I looked pretty good, but after we had sex once, he said I was still too lat!

He still says he can't make love to a liar. (The long-distance phone call.) But I can't live without love, and I don't think it's fair to be punished for one lie I told two years ago. What should I do? My

THE FORMULA

Gleaming tile at little cost

Ceramic tile is made from various types of clay and other minerals. The mastic mix (dough) is packed into molds and then fired at high temperatures.

In some cases the initial firing may also produce the final finish, however in others a linished coat, called a frit, is fired on the surface of the substrate

as a secondary operation.

Frits are made up in liquid form, and painted or sprayed on the substrate. These usually contain glass

Because of the density of the surface on most ceramic tile, cleaning is not difficult. Here's a formula for a cleaner that's inexpensive to make and will do a good job.

You'll need two tablespoons TRISODIUM PHOS-PHATE (TSP) — available at hardware stores — and one gallon of WATER. Mix the TSP into the water and wipe over tile with a sponge dampened in the solution. Store the solution in glass or plastic jug.

Last call for I,P-T Alaska-Canada cruise

By HERB SHANNON I,P-T Travel Editor

Vancouver, the capital city of British Columbia, is only one of the fascinating ports of call on the 14-day Royal Viking Lines Alaska-Canada cruise cosponsored by Long Beach area travel agents and the Independent. Press-Telegram.

The western Canada maternalis will store water-macpendent, rress-lengram.

The western Canada metropolis will stage waterborne welcoming ceremonies for the Royal Viking Sea, newest of the three sister ships of the Viking fleet, which will be making its maiden voyage to the Pacific Northwest in June.

The 22,000-ton Norwegian-flag vessel will sail from Los Angeles on June 14 and tie up in Vancouver's skyscraper-rimmed harbor 10 days later. It will be the second visit in the vicinity, since the luxury liner will call a week earlier at Vancouver's very British neighbor city, Victoria.

Between the two British Columbia ports, the Royal Viking Sea will sail both ways through Canada's scenic Inside Passage to the spectacular frozen world of Glacier Bay in Alaska, with other stops at the colorful state capital, Juneau, and the Indian settlement of Maine on the way north settlement of Haines on the way north.

On the return from Glacier Bay, the luxury liner will pay its respects at Alaska's Eskimo outpost of Silka before docking in Canada again at Prince Rupert, one day before arrival at Vancouver on June 24. One more port of call on the voyage is a full day in San Francisco before the home run to Los Angeles.

BUT THE exciting and varied itinerary is only part of the adventure for I,P-T readers on the maiden voyage. In port or at sea, the Royal Viking Sea is a virtual world in itself, offering a wide range of activities guaranteed to entertain.

Cruising up the California coast to Victoria, passengers will have an opportunity to hear lectures on the ports they will visit, preparing them for historical points of interest, shopping and sightseeing

Other activities include lectures featuring guest speakers on such topics as native art, port information and other matters of current interest. Professional entertainers will be on board throughout the cruise, including a dance team and the Royal Viking Line orchestra. At some ports, local entertainers will board the ship to perform.

In addition to doing nothing more strenuous than lying in a deck chair with a book from the ship's library, passengers will choose their favorite sport from deck games, the heated swimming pool, golf driving range, trap shooting or working out in the gymnasium and its sauna and massage room.

The Viking vessel also has a card room for checkers, chess and bridge, a 156-scat theater with free first-run films, closed circuit and external television, a gift shop, cocktail lounges and gourmet dining

Dining can be a 24-hour experience if desired, with snacks, teas, deck buffets and midnight meals sandwiched between regular culinary events in the main salon. The ship's fare features international cuisine, supplemented by standard American favorites, all included in the cost of the voyage.

AMONG THE 500 passengers on the inaugural Alaskan cruise of the Royal Viking Sea will be two lucky sweepstakes winners in the I.P-T Grand Prix Race Contest. The winning name will be drawn this month from among more than 3,000 finalists in the 13-week contest. Those sharing $7,800 in weekly awards of $50 each are eligible for the grand prize, as well as 200 other entries drawn each week of the contest. This Friday is the deadline for final entries. Price of the two-week LPT cruise starts at $1,330 per person for an outside double stateroom. A color brochure, full details and reservations may be obtained from the following participating travel

The beauty of America's West Coast

Great Northwest 8-day, air-rail tours feature Friday Amtrak departures from Los Angeles and returns from Vancouver via Western Airlines jets on the following Friday.

Southland vacationers board their Amtrak train in the morning, traveling up the Pacific coast, then inland to San Luis Obispo and through Central Califor-nia's valleys to the Bay Area.

Bedrooms and roomettes assure over-the rails comfort for the ride north. The great mountains and valleys of Oregon and Washington are second-day targets of camera buffs and sightseers, with a late afternoon arrival in Scattle.

THE OLYMPIC HOTEL is Seattle base for tour travelers, included are two nights lodging, a welcoming dinner the first evening, a half-day Land & Water-Cruise and briefing by the escort.

On the fourth day, the group continues north via ferry-boat through Juan De-Fuca Straits and a myriad of colorful islands and coves to Victoria, British Columbia's capital.

A complete city tour the next day includes Parliament's buildings and Butchart Gardens, a once ugly stone quarry delightfully transformed into a spectacular flower garden by a persistent. lady in the Butchart tamily.

A seventh-day sightseeing tour of the city includes 1,000-acre Stanley Park and Queen Elizabeth Park, perched high on a hill overlooking the city. After a leisurely morning, tour members depart for home via Western Airlines jet.

The Mayflower — elegant, old, it served terrapin soup and mint juleps — didn't have a baby service.

But knock, knock. I opened the door and there stood a character out of "Gone With the Wind." He was dusty black. He wore a tail coat and stiff shirt and a white tie. His hair was fresh-picked cotton.

He carried a silver tray with a silver chafing dish and a glass of milk. Lit the chafing dish. Heated the milk. (Same way they do the terrapin.)

We put the milk in a baby bottle. Put some pillows in the bottom drawer of the polished dresser. Tucked the child in for the night.

New reign in Spain, but bargains remain

By HARRY BURNHAM Ridder News Service

TORREMOLINAS, Spain — The sun still shines on Spain's Costa del Sol, but the twin shadows of economic and political unrest have dealt the area a stunning blow. Here, at the center of what tourist activity still exists, the city approaches the appearance of a disas-ter area. Half-completed hotels and condominium complexes dot the coast-line where financing dried up. "For Sale" signs hang on hundreds of tiny shops as well as major buildings.

Five-star hotels, once jammed with native and foreign visitors, are absolutely deserted. Only the small, relatively modest hostelries appear to be surviving.

I asked the general manager of one of one of the latter why. "Foreigners are reluctant to visit Spain because of the politi-cal unrest they have read about in their own news papers. The general economic situation has cut heavily into our own vaca-tion seekers," he answer-

Political unrest there is. Strikes have crippled many areas of Spain, especially in the Basque country of the northwest and the mining areas of the northeast. Business-men and workers alike are critical of the "new democracy" promised by King Juan Carlos, Obviously, the business com-munity is unhappy with the wave of strikes and demands for higher wages by workers which has disrupted transportation and other vital aspects of Spain's business life.

WORKERS are unhappy that the promised "new freedoms" have not come as rapidly as they would

Yet, the fear that has curtailed the tourist industry along the Costa del Sol has no solid basis in fact. The buses run as frequently as ever, trucks rumble along the coastal highway, the jets still swoop into the Torremolinas-Malaga air-port on schedule (although only half full). Customs and immigration officials put the visitor through the formalities with courtesy and dispatch.

TWA has good news for Spain

It may be raining on the plain in Spain, but, in the main, things are brightening up for the tourist as a result of the devaluation of the poseta.

Trans World Airlines has announced a 10 per ent price reduction on the land portion of 11 of its best-selling Getaway Tours to Spain, Portugal and Morocco.

Motorcoach and independent-travel packages are included on the roster of vacations on which the special savings apply. Savings range from $12 per person for a one-week vactaion on Spain's Costa del Sol to as much as $54 per person for a 17-day trip to Spain, Portugal and

A TWA spokesman said the price cuts were made possible by the recent devaluation of the Spanish peseta and the airline was passing on to its custom-ers the savings from the lower cost of ground arrangements. Refunds will be given to those who booked space on the tours prior to Mar. 1, effective date of the priet reductions.

For the foreign visitor the area remains a fantastic travel bargain. The peseta hovers around 67.6 to an American dollar, (up 10 pesetas over earlier this year). Four persons can dine in style at a good hotel for a total of $15. A bottle of British gin sells for a little over $2. Bus fares, keyed to the Spanish workers' income, offer the foreign visitor a comfortable way to tour the coast at almost laughable fares. Fuengirola to Tor-remolinas costs 17 pesetas (a little over thirty cents). Torremolinas to Malaga, a distance of about 20 miles,

I played golf at the local Parador (state run) course near the airport. Club rental, cart rental, green fees, three U.S. golf balls. and a packet of tees came to a little under $15. That's for all day, not a mere 18 type or another on every ni, but on the other hand,

The Spaniards, for all their problems, are polite, friendly and helpful. Obvitheir livelihood depends on tourism, but they do go out of their way to make things pleasant. I saw no evidence of hoodlumism, although the young people are enjoying less restric-tion. And there seems to be a police officer of one

CURIOUS is the fact that Spain apparently has no rule requiring helmets for motorcyclists, but the car rental agent informed me that the police are very sticky about seat belts for motorists.

Some restaurants have yet to learn that the soup, salad and entree are not supposed to arrive along with the pre-dinner martiwaiters are helpful with the menu, (most eating establishments print them in four languages, Span-ish, English, German and

Beef in Spain tends to be a far cry from the Kansas corn-led variety, but the fish and pork dishes more than make up for that.

The Torremolinas area, especially around the fish-ermens' beach district known as Carihuela, is dotted with excellent cating places. The closest to an American style steak I found at a tiny restaurant a block from the Resitur hotel. The menu consists of four items: ribs, steaks, goulash and a frankfurter, pork chop and sauerkraut combination. All except the goulash is charcoal grilled.

Almost on the beach in remolinas we found the Marquese, marquese, a restaurant with great atmosphere, excellent service which, when I dropped a buttered roll on my trousers, even extended to the maitre d'rushing over with a can of spot remover And at the spot remover. And at the conclusion of the meal a complimentary glass of sweet Malaga wine and a flower for each lady. Only in Spain.

TWAS East. 3 ways better than the competition.

There's no better time to go back East than this Bicentennial year. And there's no better place to start making your plans than right here. Because no matter what your style—whether you prefer being chauffcured around in a spacious Motorcoach, on your own on the road, or Freestyling it in the East's history-rich cities-TWA has a tour for your pace at your price. Orient Overseas Line's new budget cruises aboard the all-one class, 625-passenger S.S. Universe Campus are not likely to please all cruise-minded passengers. They are not intended to.

Quoting from the line's travel brochure:

pool surrounded by deckchairs for sun worshippers and many more chairs on the covered and enclosed promenade deck for those who enjoy less sun, leisure

reading and snoozing.
The spacious Commodore Room on the prom deck comes alive at 11 a.m. with the opening of the 16-stool bar. The dollar-a-race and dollar-a-card bingo games are held here. In the evening the room becomes the ship's nightclub. By some nightclub standards the dance floor is larger than most. A fivepiece orchestra plays dance music ranging fron Vienna waltzes to sambas.

The Commodore Room is the scene of nightly entertainment - some rehearsed, some unrehearsed During the inaugural cruise the organized fun and games and nightly entertainment were supervised by multi-talented cruise director Jim Everett, assisted by his attractive dark-eyed wife, Merry. The unre-hearsed entertainment was provided by passengers on the dance floor doing his or her own thing.

DRESS IS CASUAL most of the time, including evening dinner. However, one time the daily mimeographed bulletin suggested for Captain Chao-Gen Yen's pre-dinner cocktail party that gentlemen wear jackets. There was no mention of ties but most men wore one. The ladies wore tailored pant suits and pretty restaurant dresses.

On the inaugural cruise my wife and I noticed the average age of boarding passengers appeared somewhat younger than that of most passengers with whom we had sailed on earlier cruises. Perhaps this is because of the attraction of budget fares.

A bonus offered at no extra cost aboard the S. S. Universe Campus is the gracious, friendly all-Chinese crew. Don't worry about a language barrier. There is none. Crewmen who deal with the passengers, the stateroom and dinning room stewards, the deck and engineroom crew all understand and speak basic and folded in such artistic manners to resemble a biooming flower, a butterfly, and abstract shapes.

A Chinese word to be remembered is hsieh-hsiehni (sounds similar to "shay-shay-nee.") It is pronounced as one word. It means "Thank you." Most passengers found many occasions to use the word.

PUNTARENAS, Costa ica — "What's the island over there called?" He had just entered the warm Pacific surf on the beach at Puntarenas. It was still well before noon but the sun was blazing hot.

In San Jose, about 3,750 feet up in the mountains, it was easy to forget that Costa Rica is just 10 degrees north of the Equator. Here at sea level in Puntarenas you can't forget it for an instant.

"That's San Lucas, the prison island," said my friend. "The prison with out guards."
"Why's that?" I asked.

"No one can get off that island," he laughed, "Sharks all over the place.

The sharks are the guards."
"Oh," I said.
"By the way," I added a few moments later, "if there are sharks all over the place, what are we

My friends splashed merrily in the surf. I was, of course, roundly jeered by my companions. The next day, however, I pointed out a San Jose newspaper item to them. It was a photo of a school of sharks that had come to within 15 feet of the beach pursuing some snapper just a few miles north of Puntarenas.

Greek Easter a joyous time

Easter in Greece brings out the natural hospitality of the people, and if you are travelling through small towns like Levadia in the hills northwest of Athens, you are likely to be invited to join the feasting and festivities.

The Greek Orthodox Easter falls on April 25 this year, a week after Western Easter. It is the most joyous holiday of the year, when the pascal lamb is roasted on outdoor spits, bottles of homemade wine are passed, and dancers twirl the Syrtaki to the sounds of bouzouki music.

The rejoicing on Easter Sunday is heightened by the solemnity of the preceding days. The deeply-religious Greeks observe Lent with dedication, and on Good Friday conduct a symbolic funeral service.

At midwight on Wester the colorating begins

At midnight on Easter the celebrating begins with a church service. All the lights in the church are extinguished, when suddenly the door swings open and a priest enters with a lighted candle.

Each member of the congregation lights his candle from the priest's flame, and the group floods out into the balany night, accompanied by the sounds of churchbells, gun volleys, and fireworks.

The warm spring air, the heady smell of roasting lamb, and the laughter are almost as intoxicating as the bottles of homemade wine that pass from hand to

GAL-IVANTING

Along the byways of Hong Kong

It isn't to every city in the world that you can return a garment purchased two years earlier, complain that it is too tight and have a relitting at no charge.

That happened to me on a recent trip to Hong Kong. Two years ago I ordered the blouse custom made at the Royal Shop in the Mandarin Hotel shopping arcade. Unfortunately, there was no time for a final filting.

Because it was complicated to alter, it hung unworn and forgotten in my closet until the recent trip. It was almost more than I could handle when the shop's proprietor refused payment for the altera-

Shopping in Hong Kong is not the bargain that it used to be, but there still are marvelous savings if you know where to go. A custom-made and lined dress of the finest washable, ultra-sucde will cost you around $120 at shops like the Royal. At home, a ready made one would cost double that.

However, if you are of a popular size (6-14), you can find absolutely smashing ultra-suede and other choral pepper

fabrics in ready-made fashions at Milly Brown's tiny boutique on the ground floor of the Kowloon Star Ferry building for only $50. Molly has a gimmick.

HER CLOTHES are designed by and made in Hong Kong for top American designers. She gets their samples, cuts out the labels and replaces them with her own.

Hers is a tiny, crowded shop, but don't let the clutter discourage you. Push through the racks until you find your own fantastic fashion treasures for a fraction of what they would cost in the finest designer's showrooms.

Because of high labor costs in the U.S., Asia is posing a serious threat to the American garment industry. For chic apparel, Hong Kong takes the

As the sweaters, suits, jeans and accessories designed by noted American and European names pass through the industrial mill here, some copies and unlabeled extras wind up in street market stalls.

I have an American friend who is married to one of Hong Kong's leading bankers. She took me shop-

Contrary to what you read, it was not necessary to bargain for the elegant sweaters piled on tables in narrow streets. Each Item was priced at only $3.85, and most were one of a kind. I bought a sweater I had admired earlier on the pages of a leading Ameri-

MY FAVORITE of the market stalls is in Kow-loon, on the mainland side. Turning off Nathan Road, the main shopping street, you find a narrow alley. The market stretches along it for several blocks. You won't see any tourists. Nobody will speak

English. The Chinese are wonderfully courteous, how-

You shop by indicating the item that interests you and they respond by writing the price on a piece of paper. Do not try to use American currency, however, or the price may shoot up.

While you are in this neighborhood, incidentally, one of the finest Chinese restaurants in the city is the Kowloon. It is a favorite with British residents, and

Along with Chinese cabbages, plucked ducks and pans full of live carp, there will be stalls in the market with those wonderful mandarin-collared, quilted jackets with frog closings that the Chinese (and Katherine Hepburn) always wear. I bought one of black silk brocade for $5.

JADE MAY BE a better buy in these places where Chinese themselves squat down beside the vender to painstakingly examine each piece than in tourist shops. As you watch them, they judge a piece first for feel, then color, then they hold it up to the sun to appraise its translucency.

If a dragon or other lucky symbol should take shape within the structure of the stone, it becomes more valuable. Because jade is sacred to the Chinese and is worn both as a mark of status and as a talisman, even the poor insist upon quality. You won't find Imperial jade at a street stall,

As far as is known, jade never was mined in mined in Wyoming and Alaska as well and shipped to Hong Kong for carving. So-called Taiwan jade is not really jade at all and no self-respecting Hong Kong street peddler would hawk it.

OTHER GRAND bargains include custom-made shoes, provided they are made at the right places. In the past, I've had soles fall of some Hong Kong shoes in the rain. Mayer's in the Mandarin Hotel is reliable, as is Ceilia Chlen's in the Peninsula Hotel.

How to Command your Pituitary Gland to order up to 756 times its own weight in fat to leave your body

By Joan Woodward

se your head! Millions of overweight Americans could have slimmed down a long time ago by doing just that. For years, people with weight problems have desperately searched for ways to shed pounds. Ironically, even as they frantically searched, they were carrying the perfect weight loss secret right in their own head - their Pituitary Gland.

Allow me to explain. By learning Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you can command your pituitary gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator) to order up to I pound of fat to leave your body every day. You'll continue to shed pounds until you reach-your ideal weight and then stay fat free forever. This weight loss secret works for everyone, whether 5 lbs. or 105 lbs, overweight.

But, best of all, you lose weight while eating the foods you love. In fact, you must eat to lose weight. That's the key to this weight loss secret.

As a reporter for the newsletter "Total Fitness Today", my job is to check out weight loss plans being developed across the country. Since I machine to a fat evacuating system. Your Pitul- to illness. Second, with most tary Gland will work safely and naturally to evacuate fat 24 hours a day -- evên while you sleep. Q. If these 'trigger' foods are in everyone's diet, why isn't my Pituitary Gland evacuating fat? A. Unfortunately, even if your diet consists of 'trigger' foods, it only takes 50 'blocker' foods to prevent your Pituitary Gland from evacuating fat.

Q. How can I trigger my Pituitary Gland?

A. Not by willpower, not by concentration, not with exercise, but by eating. Only by eating 'trigger' foods and avoiding 'blocker' foods can you trigger your Pitnitary Gland to evacuate fat. Remember, the Weight Loss Secret is a nutrition not a diet.

 $\frac{plan}{Q}$ , not a diet.  $\frac{plan}{Q}$ . What are these 'trigger' foods, and how much

A. These 'trigger' foods are the every day foods you love: juicy sirioin steaks, hearty helpings of beef stroganoff, spicy ham, double cheeseburgers, meatloat, barbeened chicken, omelets, vegetables; like broccoli smothered with hollandaise sauce, cantaloupes, fruit cocktails - even desserts like strawberries with whipped cream, pumpkin methods, the results, if any, come too slowly. So most people lose hope and quit.

@1975 C.P.C.

You're right about why they fail. I know, because I've tried them all, without success. But, why does glandular control work! A. Again, two reasons. As I said, people are overweight because they love to eat. With Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you must cat to lose weird fad dieting. It doesn't leave through by tosing as much as 14 lbs. In two weeks.

After I lost my weight, my boss, Timothy Voros, the Chairman of the Board of Consumer Publishing, decided to try the secret. He lost 22 fbs, in 22 days. He was so impressed, he grabbed up the exclusive world wide rights to this revolutionary new weight loss secret. He then commissioned Mr. Ridgefield to author the text have a weight problem, I take a special interest in these assignments. When I heard about this revolutionary new weight loss secret, I decided to

I set up an appointment with Robert Ridgefield, the discoverer of Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control. I started with tough questions.

HOW DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. How does the secret work

A. The secret works by making food your ally instead of your enemy. There are two types of food in everyone's daily diet 'triggers' and blockers'. By eating 'trigger' foods, you trigger or turn on your Pituitary Gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator). Once triggered, your Pituitary Gland secretes a fat evacuating chemical fluid. This fluid is transported throughout your body and transforms your body from a fat producing pie, chocolate pudding, ice cream, and your favorite wines, liquors-even beer! You need not drastically alter your eating habits to get rid of the 'blocker' foods, because they don't make up that big a part of your diet.

WHY DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. You've told me how it works, but all weight loss methods look good on paper -- they just don't work in real life. Why is this one different? A. In order to understand why the secret works, ou must first know why other methods fail. They fail for two reasons. First, other methods work against human nature, and therefore are doomed to failure from the start. People with weight problems obviously love to eat. Starvation is sheer torture. No one in their right mind is going to torture themselves for very long. Strenuous exercise is difficult, worklike; and boring. Diet pills leave you weak, nervous and prone versation. I asked Mr. Ridgefield if I could talk with people who had successfully used the secret. He did better. He introduced me to four people who were going to start the weight loss secret the following Monday, and asked me if I would

I last 4 inches off my waist, 3 inches off my money back — no questions asked, ighs, and 14 lbs, in 14 days. My whole life Remember, only a small press run of Nature's thighs and 14 lbs. in 14 days. My whole life has changed. My clothes fit great, I look and feel younger. I've found new self-confidence. But best of all, my love life has improved. The Weight Loss Secret can do the same thing

"You can lose all the weight you want, quickly, and keep it off permanently while eating the foods you love."

Q. One last question. You call the Pituitary Gland nature's built-in fat evacuator. Why is that?

A. The Pituitary Gland was evolved by nature as a survival mechanism to keep man slim and fit. Just as your heart pumps blood, your lungs breathe the air, your Pituitary Gland evacuates fat. Because it's natural, it's 100% safe.

At the end of our con-

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

NBC serves up Big Mac with different dressing

By BOB MARTIN TV Radio Editor What's a good of West Texas country boy like Mac Davis doing all dolled up in

Why, he's back on television with his third variety series in less than two years on NBC, and I reckon the network bigs wigs are making a play for the city slickers this time.

In his two earlier series - which aired for eight weeks in the summer of 1974 and from December 1974 to May 1975 - Mac had the rhinestone cowboy look to go with his soft-country, soft-rock singing

This time, NBC is serving up a Big

Mac with a different dressing.
"Are you trying to change your image?" I asked the popular singer-song-writer at lunch the other day at Chadney's restaurant, across the street from

NBC Studios in Burbank.
"It's the same old me underneath," replied Mac. "The same thing's gonna come out, no matter how they dress me. But I dressed up for an NBC special I did last Thanksgiving (Liza Minnelli was a guest), and it worked out pretty well.

Besides, I've lost 20 pounds and I can fit into a suit better now than I used to." The curly-haired Texan did point out, though, that in the new series he's doing a wider variety of musical numbers and not depending solely on his own composi-tions. In his first, eight-week series, he sang nothing but his own songs.

His latest "Mac Davis Show" series made its bow on Thursday night, March 18, replacing "The Cop and the Kid" and "Grady." It airs from 8 to 9 Thursdays on Channel 4, but will be preempted this week by a Hallmark Hall of Fame drama special, "Truman at Potsdam."

IT WAS rehearsal day when I interviewed Mac, and he was dressed for comfort. He had on a T-shirt with the word POLAND across the front, and I asked if there were any significance to it.

"No, I'm just sort of a T-shirt freak

I collect T-shirts," he said, adding, "I must have 250 of 'em. I got this one when the Polish jokes were so popular, and it sure cut down on the Polish jokes I

As a TV host, Davis has an easy, relaxed manner, much like Bing Crosby, Perry Como and Dean Martin, Only, Mac's charm comes with a Texas drawl. His appeal cuts through the generation gap, and he has fans of all age levels.

In all of his series, Mac has had segments in which he goes into the audience and improvises brief songs on the spur of the moment from titles suggested by fans. My wife, who fails to appreciate how bright most Texans are, thinks he couldn't possibly do this without advance notice, and she made me promise to get to the bottom of the trick.

So I asked Mac about it, and he said:

"Just give me a title."
"Fort Worth," said I, putting in a plug for my old hometown.
"Well, quicker than you can say armadillo from Amarillo, the Lubbock native sang me some short, rhyming tyrics that had to do with "place of birth" and "best on earth," and the song was as good as some of the ones he does on the air.

It was enough to convince me he does them on the spur of the moment, but, of course, I can't speak for my wife.

Davis did point out, however, that "we tape about 10 of them at a session and might just use the three best."

THE PERSONABLE performer hit the bigtime as a songwriter before he did as a singer. He was turning out songs for stars like Elvis Presley, Glen Campbell, Lou Rawls and Bobby Goldsboro before he got a hit recording of his own.

Mac's first self-recorded hit, "Baby, Don't Get Hooked on Me," earned him a

gold record and was the most-performed song of 1972. Because of the lyrics, some critics labeled him a male chauvinist.

He did a concert tour of some 50 cities with Helen Reddy, who had hit it big with "I Am Woman," and he says the "male chauvinist pig" and the the "male chauvinist pig" and the "woman's libber" got along fine.

His more than 250 published songs include "I Believe in Music" (recorded by more than 50 singers), "Stop and Smell the Roses," "One Hell of a Woman" ("I made it up to the Women's Libbers"), "In the Ghetto," "Friend, Lover, Woman, Wife," "Watching Scotty Grow," "Something's Burning" and "You're Good for Me."

DAVIS, 34, spent the first 15 years of his life in Lubbock, and by the time he left for Atlanta he already had a high. school diploma.

"I started to school at 5 and then I skipped a grade," he told me. "I made straight A's through the seventh or eighth grade, then I got mixed up with a bunch of tough kids and almost didn't gradu-

He sang in his church choir as a youngster, with prodding from his parents, but didn't do much musically until after moving to Atlanta. He attended Emory University in Atlanta one year, "but I flunked out — I was majoring in beer and rock 'n' roll."

Mac learned to play the guitar and bongo drums and helped form a rock 'n' roll band that became very popular with the young people in Atlanta. He also sang with the group and started writing songs.

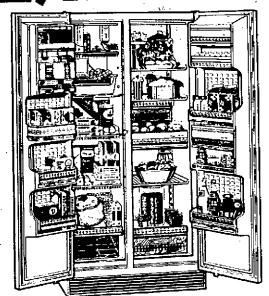

For five years, he plugged other writers' songs as a promotion man for record companies in the South, and then did the same for Metric Music, a Liberty subsidiary, in Hollywood. Then his own tunes began to sell — "my first big break was selling one to Elvis Presley" — and eventually be began recording his own numbers.

His current series is scheduled for 10 weeks. Does he hope for another one in the fall?

"I'd rather do four specials a year, but I'll go along with whatever NBC wants," he replied. Is he under contract to NBC? "No, but they've been good to me, and I feel I owe it to 'em to do what they want me to do."

Now, you don't hear that kind of talk often from TV stars, Must be Mac's Texas upbringing.

Television's Cleaver THE STATE OF THE PROPERTY OF THE STATE OF TH is no meathead

By GEORGE MAKSIAN New York News

NEW YORK — He's 6-foot-2, weighs 195 pounds and looks like a grown up Spanky McFarland from the old Our Gang comedies.

He has a pudgy face that even he admits looks good behind food ("That's why I'm used on so many food commercials," he says). And he has a small squeaky voice reminiscent of the old Gemer Pyle drawl, only with more of a Texas twang.

Put them all together and out comes Rick Hurst, or better known to TV viewers as Cleaver, the eternal optimist on ABC's "On the Rocks," a situation comedy about a bunch of prison inmates, which airs on Monday nights. (It's preempted this week.)

THE FIRST question that pops up in meeting the Texas-born actor is what is a pussycat like Cleaver doing in the

pokey.
"It's a gross miscarriage of justice!" declared Hurst, giggling like a school child. "But serioushe added, "my crime has never been specified in the storyline. It's left to the viewers' imagination. The only thing certain is that it's a crime against property, as opposed to a crime against a person — a small felony, like stealing a dog.

"But you must realize that Alamesa is a minimum security institution. We have no muggers, no rapists, no murderers. It's a light prison. And these prisons really exist. They have one in Danbury, Conn., that is even lighter than ours.

"ON THE ROCKS" is based on a British series, "Porridge," which Hurst claims is one of the top shows in Britain. "On The Rocks" made its bow last fall as a Thursday entry, but was recently moved to Mondays.

Hurst claims that his first inclination to become a member of the performing arts was when, at an early age, he and a friend

utilized movie theaters on Saturday mornings for practicing stunts --- among them falling down the car-peted stairs of the balcony whenever gun shots were heard from the screen.

He got his professional training as a member of the Second City comedy group and now has put an act together with Tom Poston, his co-star in "On the Rocks."

Said Hurst: "We play off the Cleaver character and Tom is the same gentle, kind-hearted guard that he plays in the series. So far, the act has been well received.

"PEOPLE often ask me what's funny about life in a prison. Well, some of the best comedy often comes from a trapped situation, whether it involves a job, a marriage, or a family. Archie Bunker in 'All in the Family' is certainly a trapped individual with his dingbat wife and meathead somin-law.

"In 'On the Rocks' we have the ultimate trap! Iron bars and a brick wall. Yet, within it people are still people, scheming, arguing, sometimes helping each other, like the time Fuentes (Jose Perez) helped me get a compassionate furlough to visit my wife.

"Home leaves have been tried by real prisons, but they've come up against a lot of resistance. I think it was Nathaniel Hawthorne who said back in 1894 that prison is society's black flower, and they don't want to look at it. Hopefully, our series will bring a public awareness to conditions in prison today."

HURST IS not the dumb Cleaver character be plays in the series, who always seems to be on Rocky Mountain time (the actor has a master's in acting from Ohio State). He'll prove his intellectual prowess when he appears on ABC's "$20,000 Pyramid" daytime game show the week of April 5.

"I don't know whether they'll ever invite me back on the show," he said of his taped appearance. "I gave away more money than they dreamed - $40. 000. Cleaver may be a dummy, but I'm not."

OF REDEMPTION NO. 13 In our article on March 21st, we pointed out that the only way to have a New Testament church was to build it according to the opostolic model. Also, we learned from the Bible that every local congregation of the people of God during the days of the apostles had elders, deacons, and members, according to Phil. 1:1. Five Items of Worship In the New Testament there were five items of worship that were performed by the early Christians. Four of the live are listed in one verse of striphines. Four of the tive are listed in one verse of scriphire. In Acts 2:42, "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine, and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers." Each one of these four items was practiced by the early church. And there is another that is commanded in Eph. 5:19 and Col. 3:16. The early Christians "sang and made melody in their hearts unto the Lord." So, singing was also a part of their practice when they came together to war-in order for us to have a congregation of people that is following the teachings of the New Testament model, we must have people who have obeyed the Lord according to the pottern set forth in the God's Word in becoming Christians. In the days of the oposites, people heard the Word, believed the Word, repented of their sins, and were baptized for the remission of sins. Then these baptized believers met to worship God, and, if men were qualified, ordained elders and deacons in every congregation. Then when they met, they performed the five acts of worship listed above. Just here we should ask some questions. Did you, and those with whom you meet, do what the early Christians had to do in becoming Christians? Do you have elders (plural) and deacons (plural) in the congregation where you worship? When you meet on the 1st day of the week to worship God, do you perform the five acts of worship that the early Christians performed each first day of the week? If you do not, how can you say that you are a New Testoment church according to the apostolic model?

If you will simply write to the address listed below,

WALTER SCOTT'S Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. In your opinion, what is the real reason Richard Nixon went to the People's Republic of China in February, 1976? Was he on a secret mission for Henry Kissinger?—O.T., San Diego, Cal.

A. Personal gratification. Nixon was on no secret mission for anyone.

Q. Whatever became of Dovie Beams, who was once a Hollywood starlet and former mistress of dictator Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines?—Angel Noble, East St. Louis, Ill.

A. Dovie Beams, ex-mistress of Ferdinand Marcos, has quietly moved her tent from Beverly Hills, Cal., to a residence unknown at this writing.

Q. Rudolph Hess, 84, Adolf Hitler's deputy, is the only prisoner in West Berlin's Spandau fail. The British, the Americans, and the French are prepared to parole him. Why won't the Russians agree?—Helen McBride, Cambridge, Mass.

A. One possible reason is that Hess was privy to the Molotov-Ribbentrop deal in which Stalin foolishly gave Hitler an OK to attack Western Europe. The story is that if the Russians free Hess he will reveal information the Soviets prefer to keep imprisoned.

Q. Is there any chance that Gov. John Connally of Texas will run for the Presidency of the U.S.?—Helen Sterling, Dallas, Tex.

A. Connally is a sly, 59-year-old fox who should never be counted out of any political bout until the last bell has rung.

Q. Who said,"Meddling with another man's folly is always thankless work"?—Alexander Carver, Freeport, N.Y.

A. British writer Rudyard Kipling.

Q. Is it true that Jimmy Connors, the young tennis player, earned more than $600,000 in 1975?—Patricia Massey, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A. True.

Q. Where may I obtain documentary evidence on how strongly the late President Truman disliked J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI?—L. T., Somerville, Mass.

A. In your own hometown of Somerville, Mass., there is a Harvard Law School student, Peter H. Irons, of 55 Davis Square, who researched the subject in the Truman Library in Independence, Mo., for his Ph.D. dissertation in political science. Mr. Irons writes: "According to Clifford's handwritten notes [Clark Clifford was Truman's White House counsel] . . . Truman said he was 'very strongly anti-FBI' and wanted to be sure to 'hold the FBI down' . . ." Mr. Irons also refers to the dissertation—"America's Cold War Crusade: Domestic Politics and Foreign Policy, 1942-1948," Boston University, 1973, P. 232, reference, "Memo of May 2, 1947, George Elsey Papers, Box 69, Truman Library."

Q. I see that Gregory Peck has been signed to star as Gen. Douglas MacArthur in "MacArthur." I know Peck will make a very good screen MacArthur, but exactly what role did Peck play in World War III-F. L. L., La Jolla, Cal.

A. Peck hurt his back taking dancing lessons in New York City during the 1940's, was therefore declared 4F and did not serve in World War II.

GREGORY PECK AND DOUGLAS MacARTHUR

Q. Which comedian said of Patricia Hearst, "if she wanted to stay lost, she should have hired my agent"?
—Nate Long, New York City.

A. That gag belongs to comic Pat Buttram.

Q. Does former CBS News White House correspondent Dan Rather wear a toupee?—Marie V. D'C., Canaan, Conn.

A. He does not.

Q. Is there any chance of Jackie Onassis and her sister Lee Radziwill finding new husbands? I mean, do they have anyone waiting in the wings?—Linda Chambers, Winston Salem, N.C.

A. Not at this writing, Jackie Onassis has become an editor for Viking Press, and Lee Radziwill has opened an interior decorating business. Both women at this point in their lives seem more career- than matrimony-minded.

BOUVIER SISTERS: JACKIE ONASSIS AND LEE RADZIWILL

Q. The movie "Gable and Lombard"—who is responsible for laying that egg?—T.R., Jacksonville, Fla. A. Universal Studios and director Sidney Furie.

Q. How much does the Saturday Evening Post pay Julie Nixon Eisenhower?—P.R., Indianapolis, Ind. A. The Post once paid her $25,000 a year, but Julie has begun a new, less-binding relationship with that organization.

Q. Is it a fact that the City of New York has been overtun by Puerto Ricans?—Dan Yukevich, Boston. A. Approximately one million Puerto Ricans, representing one-eighth of the city's population, reside in New York City. They comprise 30 to 50 percent of the city's welfare recipients.

Q. Does Muhammad Ali have any intention of divorcing his wife to marry his girlfriend Veronica Porche? I understand Veronica's new Rolfs-Royce is a pre-nuptial gift from Ali. True?—Cora Dubois, Newark, N.J.

A. Muhammad Ali has no intention at this time of divorcing his current wife. Veronica's Rolls-Royce is reportedly a thank-you gift from Ali.

Goldie Hawn as a dancehall girl in her latest film, "The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox," for which she's getting $350,000 plus 71/2 percent of the profits. A former go-go dancer, she has had to climb a rocky road to make it to the top.

Goldie Hawn-What Price Stardom?

by Lloyd Shearer

HOLLYWOOD. ix years ago I was lunching in a British film studio with a sparkling blonde actress of 24 - Goldie Hawn of Takoma Park, Md.

Goldie had won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actress in her first film, Cactus Flower. She had performed beautifully against such veterans as Ingrid Bergman and Walter Matthau.

She was fey, bright, smiling, enthusiastic and so happy to be starring opposite Peter Sellers in a comedy, There's a Girl in My Soup.

"I know it sounds naive," she admitted, knifing into her steak, "but right now the whole world seems good, golden, and glorious to me. I am really the luckiest broad alive.

"Do you know what I used to be? A go-go dancer-in New York City yet. To keep some skin around my bones I had this agent. He used to book me into bars, joints, clubs for whatever he could get-10, 15 dollars a night.

"I remember this one night-during my starvation period. He booked me into an after-hours joint in New Jersey. I had just enough money to take the bus. When I got there I found it was the worst bar you could imagine—dark, sleazy, dirty. It had one barmaid, and right off the bat the owner, who was drunk, tried to make me.

There were four customers sitting out front, and when they saw me, they began to chant, 'Make her dance, Make her dance.' So I climbed up on this wobbly table. Someone put a dime in the jukebox-that was the kind of joint it was-and I began to dance. And then it happened.

'A den of perverts'

"One of the customers, sitting a few vards in front of me, unzipped his zipper. And he began to expose himself. I kept looking away. The other guys were howling. I was in a den of perverts. I thought I was going to blow my mind. I danced faster and faster. I was supposed to get $25 for the night. 'To hell with it.' I said.

"I was so frightened I ran out of the place. I didn't even have money for bus fare. That night I hitched a ride with a truck driver back to the city.

"And now," she said, her large, green eyes darting from side to side, "I'm here, living it up like a full-fledged movie star. Do you think this sort of luck, this kind of happiness, can last?"

I was sure it wouldn't, but I answered with, "Do you?"

"I know I look like a dumb blonde." Goldie Jeanne Hawn conceded, "People think I'm exactly like the zany I played on Laugh-In (a popular TV program of the period, in which Goldie enacted the spouter of uproarious malapropisms]. But I've got a pretty good head on my shoulders. And a very good husband and a very good manager to look after me,"

Comes 1976

A few weeks ago I lunched with Goldie Hawn again. She had recently finished The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox, her eighth film, which is scheduled to open throughout the country this

She is 30 and subdued, and the whole world no longer seems "good, golden, and glorious" to her. Six years in Hollywood have taken their toll.

"I've just been divorced from Gus [Trikonis]," she explained. "I had to pay him $75,000. I was so surprised that he would ask for that sort of settlement. We'd been married since 1969, and he always played the strong, solid Greek. We had a fot of separations, but when we were together, he'd never let me buy him anything. He was so proud. My acting career was much more lucrative than his directing career. He was aware of that, and he didn't want to be dependent on his wife. And I was so proud of his pride. But when it finally came to a showdown, he wanted $75,-000. I gave it to him.

"And my manager, Art Simon, the guy who discovered me when I was dancing in the chorus of the Andy Griffith TV show--he sued me for $6 mitlion. How do you like that? Six million dollars, after years of my paying him more than 20 percent-1 think it was 25 percent—commission on my earnings. He sued me. And the lawyers-the fees were enormous, so enormous, and it seemed to be I would have to spend the rest of my life in court; so I settled for a small fortune.

"I don't know what it is about this business. People become so possessive. I used to say to Art, 'Go out and get some other job besides managing me. I don't want my life to become your life. I want, I must have some control of myself."

Two with Warren Beatty

While her marriage and friendships in Hollywood foundered, Goldie Hawn's film career burgeoned. So, too, did her reputation as a talented, perceptive, intelligent, sensitive actress.

After finishing There's a Girl in My Soup with Peter Sellers, she starred opposite Warren Beatty in S. Her fourth film, Butterflies Are Free, in which she played the girlfriend of a blind young man, expanded her range as a dramatic and romantic actress. She followed these with The Sugarland Express, The Girl From Petrovka, and Shampoo, in which she again worked with Warren Beatty, a bedeviled Don Juan of whom she says kindly, "Warren loves women, and women return the compliment."

Goldie's latest motion picture, The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox, is a comedy set in the wicked Old West. In this one Goldie sings and dances, plays a shady dancehall girl who is willing under sufficient monetary incentive to pull a few extracurricular tricks after the curtain comes down.

Mel Frank, a former Bop Hope gagwriter turned director, says of Goldie: "She's a well-trained dancer so she dances splendidly. As a singer I think she compares with Streisand. As a comedienne she's as good as anyone in the business. If I could, I'd sign her for my next 10 pictures. She has a very subtle but powerful sex quotient, and she proves it in The Duchess."

$350,000 plus

Goldie Hawn has reached that financial pinnacle in Hollywood where she not only gets a hefty $350,000 and up per film, but also a percentage of the profits. For The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox she is guaranteed $350,000 and 71/2 percent of the profits. For other films she has gotten as high as 10 percent of the profits.

"Money," she says, "doesn't mean all that much to me. I come from a happy family, and I'd like to have one myself. I was in analysis for five or six years, trying to keep my feet on the ground, learning how to cope with success, which is much harder to cope with than failure. When you're a failure, no one wants a piece of you. And I'm happy to say that I no longer need the help of an analyst. Some time ago, my analyst said to me—he's a very decent guy, not your regular run of Hollywood analyst—he said to me, 'Goldie, you don't need me any longer. You're all right. You know what you are, who you are.' And I think I do. I'm vulnerable but I'm also strong. I think that's an inheritance from my mother. She's a strong woman, too."

Goldie Jeanne Hawn was born in Washington, D.C., on Nov. 21, 1945, to Laura and Edward Rutledge Hawn. "My Mom's a Jew from Pittsburgh, my Dad's a WASP from Arkansas, and I'm lefthanded."

Goldie and her sister Patty, 8 years older, were reared in Takoma Park, Md. The Hawns ran a gift and jewelry shop, and at night Ed Hawn, a professional musician, earned extra money by playing the violin, saxophone, and clarinet with society and symphony bands.

"I had a very happy childhood," Goldie recalls. "I started taking dance lessons at 3. My father gave me voice lessons at 10. There was never any conflict or competition or opposition. When I decided to go into show business, my parents never objected."

Off to New York

After Goldie was graduated from Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring, Md., she entered American University in Washington, D.C., studied drama for 18 months, then made the big break for New York. There she danced in a variety of chorus lines, survived as a go-go dancer, subsequently reached Las Vegas where on many occasions she was propositioned to "sleep her way to success." To all these noc-

With Bill Hudson, 26, leader of soft-rock trio, the Hudson Brothers. Goldie, 30, says they expect to wed soon and has visions of a happy life in Vermont.

turnal offers Goldle had one response: "If I have to make it that way, I'm sorry, but the answer is no."

Goldie chose "the hard way." She journeyed to Los Angeles where she got a job as a dancer on the Andy Griffith TV show. Art Simon, an agent then with the William Morris Office, watched her.

"I went backstage after the program," Simon recalls, "and gave her my card. I asked her if she did anything else besides dance. She thought I was propositioning her, giving her the same routine she had heard hundreds of times before in Las Vegas. She refused to phone me, so I phoned her. I told her I was a legitimate agent, that my intentions were strictly honorable. All I wanted to do for her was to get her work. I convinced her, and she came in to see me. A week later I had her working in Good Morning World, A TV series.

"When that program folded, I booked her into Laugh-In, run by Rowan and Martin. She was an almost instantaneous success. Mike Frankovich signed her for Caclus Flower and two more pictures, and she was on her way."

A year before she really hit it big, Goldie married Gus Trikonis, an actor and director whom she met when both were working in the road show of Guys and Dolls. They were married in May, 1969, divorced in December, 1975. "With some men in my life," she says, "I've known disillusionment."

Of her relationship with Art Simon, Goldie says: "It was one of those things where I was young; I had no great drive except to be a dancer. Art saw something else in me. He pushed me, he believed in me. It's the same old Hollywood story that occurs so frequently between manager and artist. I started to grow up, to become a little wiser. I had my own opinion on what things I should and shouldn't do, and, like many managers, Art started playing the artist role himself. He became dominant, sort of omnipotent.

'i'd had enough'

"Art is only 37, I think. We were both growing up at the same time-only in different directions. I found some of his maneuvers, his impingement on my personal life, too strong. We had a seven-year contract, and I didn't mind paying him 25 percent commission, because he relieved me of a lot of burdens. But after five and a half years of his management and supervision, I'd had enough. I was willing to pay him on the balance. But he sued me, as I've told you, for $6 million. We settled, and Art will get percentages of my percentages for years to come. Which is OK with me. I've got another agent, Stan-Kamen of the William Morris Office. I've got Eddie Traubner as a business manager; gradually I've learned about putting my financial house in order.

"I bear Art Simon no ill will. I wish him well, and I'm thankful that he's out of my life."

Of her ex-husband, Gus Trikonis, Goldie explains, "I honestly thought the marriage would last. He's 8 years older, and I know about the age-differential. But I relied upon him as a man of fortitude, as a man who would not let success, my success and his striving for success, break us up. We tried so hard to make the marriage last. But people don't change. The trunk of your tree remains basically the same.

Still resents paying

"Gus is Greek. He was the father of his family for many years. He couldn't play-second fiddle. My career progressed faster than his. Now he's coming along nicely, directing films for Roger Corman. But I'm not here to promote Gus. He took $75,000 from me in the divorce settlement, $75,000 I don't feel he deserved. And I still resent it."

Fortunately for Goldie, she is willing to try marriage again, this time to Bill Hudson, 26-year-old leader of the Hudson Brothers, a trio of soft rock-and-rollers

"I met Bill on an airplane," she explains, "from New York to Los Angeles. He asked me out for dinner, and I said no, I didn't want to go out to dinner. But he persisted. 'Listen,' he said, 'we have to eat, so when we get to L.A., let's each of us get into our separate cars, and I'll meet you for dinner at any restaurant you say.' I knew then he was a practical man, so that's exactly what we did. And we've been going together ever since. He's younger than I am, but we hope-to get married in July.

Eyes on Vermont

"He's a very special man, a real family man, and I'm a real frustrated family woman. He's never been married, and we're going to try it. We're building a house in Malibu, but the trio travels a lot, and I'm going to travel with them. They're going to Japan, and I will, too. Luckily I love to travel.

"Another thing, this town has been very good to me in many ways, material ways. I have a house in Bel Air and a new Mercedes, but Bill and I aren't crazy about this town. We want a house in Vermont, a farm with people working it.

"What I've learned in the past six years," Goldie Hawn declares, "is a little wisdom. Success and stardom are great. They provide you with a maximum of comforts and a minimum of privacy. But if Bill Hudson makes me take a choice—not that he ever would—between marriage and a career, I'd choose marriage, a successful marriage. Because I've already had a successful career. I mean I'm still having it. But you know, without someone to love and someone to love you—it's not all that hot."

Goldie with actor-director Gus Trikonis shortly after their marriage in 1969. Newly divorced, Goldie says resentfully that she had to pay Trikonis a helty settlement.

The first flight of the Air Force's cruise missile, launched from a B-52 10,000 feet over New Mexico last month. This sophisticated missile poses a dilemma for the U.S.: Should we mass-produce it and risk a new, expensive arms race with the Soviets?

A Large Issue Over a Small Missile

by Peter J. Ognibene

WASHINGTON, D.C.

ne of the most controversial weapons to come out of the Pentagon laboratories in recent years is a new nuclear missile small enough to be launched just about anywhere, powerful enough to fly 2000 miles or more, and accurate enough to strike within 100 feet of its target.

Experts say the weapon—called the cruise missile—could drastically alter the conduct of warfare. For that reason a number of officials in Washington and Moscow think that it should not be built. Not unexpectedly, the military disagrees.

Although neither the United States nor the Soviet Union has started mass-producing long-range cruise missiles, both sides are working on them. The United States, which has a big lead in cruise missile technology, is spending about $150 million a year to develop the new weapons.

The idea of cruise missiles is not new. Basically, a cruise missile is a jet plane without a pilot and with a bomb in its nose. The German V-1 "buzz bomb" from World War II was the first cruise missile. In the mid-1950's the U.S. Air Force had a cruise missile called the Snark and the Navy had the Regulus.

But both cruise missiles had some substantial disadvantages: they were slow, vulnerable to anti-aircraft fire, and, most importantly, over long distances they were very inaccurate.

Consequently, by 1957, when the Air Force developed intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's), it got rid of the Snark. The Navy did likewise with Regulus when it launched its ballistic-missile-firing Polaris submarines. The cruise missile was obsolete.

Smaller and better

But technology does not stand still. Advances in propulsion, warhead design and guidance systems—largely due to the "miniaturization" of electronics—have made the generals and admirals take a new look at cruise missiles. And what they see is not the large, inefficient and inaccurate weapon of the 1950's. The new cruise missile, besides being able to travel several thousand miles and land within 100 feet of its target, could carry small hydrogen bombs with as much as 200 kilotons of explosive power. (The bomb that destroyed Hiroshima was less than 20 kilotons.)

The difference in size between the old and new cruise missiles is striking. The old Snark, for example, was 67 feet long, five feet in diameter, and had a wingspan of 42 feet. The new cruise missiles are about 14 feet long and only 21 inches in diameter.

Guaranteed challenge:

If you're a young person looking for some real challenge, now's the time to look into the Army. From electronics to carpentry, from cooks to combat arms, the Army today has more challenging opportunities to offer than anyone.

$361 a month to start

Army pay is better than ever. And with free meals, free lodging, and free medical and dental care, you'll be surprised how far that pay will go.

Job-training courses

Ever wonder where to get that "experience necessary" the classified ads always ask for? A good place is the Army. With hundreds of job-training courses, the Army can teach you skills you'll be glad to have later on.

Educational opportunities

Whether it's finishing high school or earning college credits, being in the Army can help you.

And if you sign up for the Army's newest educational program, Project Ahead, you'll be able to start college at the same time you enlist—with the Army paying up to 75% of your tuition and fees for approved courses.

Travel opportunities

Joining the Army can mean a chance to work and live in Europe, Alaska, Hawaii, Korea, Panama or almost anywhere in the continental U.S.

Join now, go later

You can do just that—join now and report up to nine months later—with the Army's special Delayed Entry Program. A terrific option for high school seniors and others with unfinished business ahead of them.

First come, first serve.

Feed your plants for up to 6 months in 12 seconds.

New ORTHO® Timed Release Plant Food formulas make feeding and growing healthy plants easier than ever. You just spoon on the clean, odorless granules and mix into the soil.

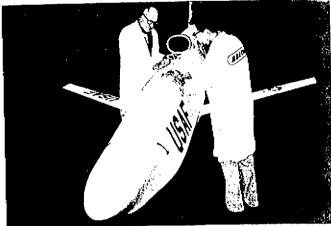

It takes only seconds to start plants on a steady, uniform diet that lasts from three to six months, depending on plant variety.

Each granule of these scientifically formulated fertilizers provides the balanced combination of nutrients needed by specific plants. The slow release of these nutrients lets you feed whatever you grow indoors or outdoors, from seedlings to mature plants, without the danger of overfeeding or burning.

Look for the family of ORTHO Timed Release Plant Foods at your Ortho dealers: African Violet Food 6-9-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; Pot and Planter Food 5-10-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; General Purpose Plant Food 12-6-6, feeds 3 to 4 months; Tomato and Vegetable Food 10-20-5, feeds 3 to 4 months.

You'll know they're better because they're from Ortho.

A cruise missile can fly 2000 miles and explode a nuclear warhead within 100 feet of a target, and its small size makes it easy to hide and launch

MISSILE CONTINUED

But by far the most important improvement is in the guidance system, which operates on a principle called Terrain Contour Matching, or TERCOM. Cruise missiles using the revolutionary TERCOM guidance will actually "read"

It works like this: A map of the missile's flight path is programmed into the missile's computer. As the missile flies along, sensors monitor the terrain beneath it and compare it to the map in the missile's brain. If it doesn't match exactly, the missile can make course corrections all the way to the target.

Counters air defenses

The new cruise missiles will even be able to fly zigzag patterns to confuse air defenses. They will also be able to spot obstacles, such as mountains, and fly just high enough to miss them before returning to their normal flight pattern 200 feet above the ground.

The new, improved cruise missile may well prove to be one of the great technological achievements of the decade.

But that begs the real question: Do we

We may be short of jobs and petroleum, but if there's one area where the United States has no shortage, it is in nuclear weapons. According to some estimates, the United States has 30,000 nuclear weapons throughout this country, Europe and Asia. This includes about 8000 long-range nuclear, or strategic, weapons-on ICBM's, nuclear missile submarines and bombers—as well as 22,000 shorter range, or tactical, nuclear weapons.

The U.S. already has a formidable fleet of 41 Polaris submarines with 656 ballistic missiles. If the Navy has its way, it would like to put cruise missiles on attack submarines as well, missiles small enough to fit into the torpedo tubes.

The Air Force plans to use airlaunched cruise missiles on bombers, both its 8-52 and the 8-1 that it wants to build. The small size of cruise missiles makes it possible to launch them just about anywhere, Indeed, that is the danger: they could be "hidden" aboard practically anything that flies, floats o rolls. A transport plane, a fishing trawler, or even a truck might be a suit able launching platform.

Up to now, all arms control agreements between the United States and the Soviet Union have depended on the ability of each side to count the other nuclear weapons. Using reconnaissance satellites, both sides have been able to see exactly how many ICBM siles long-range bombers and ballistic mis sile submarines the other side has. Thi has been possible because up to now i has been necessary to put nuclear missites in these large, easily identifiable weapons platforms.

However, if the United States goes ahead with its plans to build long-range cruise missiles, and if Russia does the same, all arms agreements may become meaningless because no one will be able to verify them. That is why the cruise missile has become a centra issue in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) now underway.

The first SALT agreement, signed in May, 1972, did not include cruise mis siles because at the time both sides considered them obsolete. But now, a both the U.S. and the USSR are attempt ing to update the agreement, the situa tion has changed.

Kissinger's task

In talks earlier this year the delegations for both sides tentatively agree to ban cruise missiles with a rangi greater than 1500 miles. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger must now per suade the rest of the government to g along, and there is some doubt that h will be able to do it. The admirals an generals like cruise missiles and war to start building them as soon as po-

If the Department of Defense decide to begin mass production, the Sovie Union is almost certain to follow sur So, unless the two superpowers agree to ban these weapons, we may soon fine ourselves in a new and deadly arm race

Still playing guitar at age 129, Miguel Carpio is the oldest person in Ecuador's mountain village of Vilcabamba, where long, tranquil lives are commonplace.

The Old Men and Women of the Mountains

by Paul Martin

VIECABAMBA, ECUADOR. he first time I saw Miguel Carpio he was walking along Vilcabamba's main street with his great-granddaughter Jolanda. We sat and talked and Don Miguel said that he had given up farming some years ago. He still enjoys music and played the guitar and sang for us. He retains an eye for the ladies but conceded that he'd have a little trouble catching them if they moved too fast. His hearing is keen and he speaks clearly of recent events as viall as the distant past. Miguel is slightly bent and walks with a cane, but he's in superb condition for a man carrying 129 years.

He's one of the oldest men in the world; perhaps the oldest. Vilcabamba, his home town, has become world-famous for the health and longevity of its residents. The village's 1972 census showed a population of 819, including seven men and two women more than 100 years old. There are fewer than 7000 centenarians in the United States, but if we produced them at the same rate as this tiny community, we'd have more than 2,500,000.

Peaceful in the Andes

Resting peacefully in the Ecuadoran Andes, the village showed some changes between my first visit in October, 1973, and my second trip this past December. The population has grown to about 1100, electricity lights homes and stores, and the young men spend their evenings in the new pool hall. My interpreter for both visits was Father John Moriarty, a Roman Catholic priest from Chicago who has spent the last nine years in Ecuador.

His fluent Spanish and knowledge of the culture were a great help to me. In 1973 we talked with 103-year-old Micaela Quezada. She had worked all of her life as a scomstress and we watched her thread needles and read newsprint without difficulty and without glasses. Micaela was a spinster in a community where nearly everyone is married. She told us she had known Miguel Carpio all of her life and he was considerably older than she. Micaela died about a week before I returned to Viicabamba.

The condition of these longevos is at least as impressive as their long lives. Generally, they see and hear well, their minds remain alert and they work, usually at farming, into their 90's or longer. They show little physical and mental deterioration.

A seamstress' skill

Clodevea Herrera is a delightful old lady of 100. Like Micaela Quezada, she was once a seamstress, and she, too, easily threaded needle after needle. She is relaxed and alert, with a calm good humor and a clear memory. "God has favored us with long lives," she smiled, "and I would like to live as long as He wants me to, 50 more years or until tomorrow is all right."

I asked Rafael Vasquez if I could take pictures of him working with his machete in the park. The park was surrounded by a fence and the gate was locked. A youthful 84, Rafael easily climbed over the fence.

Vilcabamba lies about 260 miles south of the Equator. It receives direct rays of the sun all year long, usually considered especially dangerous to the aging. In Quito, Ecuador's capital, in December I spoke with Dr. Jorge San-tiana, a noted cancer specialist who has been to Vilcabamba three times to study these oldsters. He found them free from skin cancer, unusual for their ages and latitude.

Micaela Quezada and friend: Micaela, who died last year at 105, was able to thread a needle without glasses.

"These are simple, dignified people," he said. "The area is very quiet and they are isolated from the pressures of urban civilization. The rich land provides nutritious food. They eat slowly and small amounts. There is little variation in the temperature throughout the year and they don't suffer from diseases created by extremes of heat or cold. They walk a great deal and work hard, which keeps them in superbehysical condition at advanced ages. I've studied them carefully and they don't seem to get sick."

Heart specialists visit

I also spoke with Dr. Miguel Salvador in Quito. An internationally known cardiologist, Dr. Salvador may be the world's leading authority on the longevos of Vilcabamba. He has visited the village four times and in 1969 led a medical team investigating the possibility of establishing a recovery center there. The team included nine cardiologists, six technicians, four social workers and 18 medical aides. They gave physical tests to 158 old men and 180 women and found no aging in arteries or in circulation, and no heart disease in the family backgrounds.

Says Dr. Salvador: "My interest is not just in old age but in the factors that enable these people to avoid arteriosclerosis. If we can find out, we can take a big step in preventing heart attacks, hypertension and other circulatory problems. They eat natural foods, which has to be a major reason for their unique state of health. They don't need medicine. Their illnesses seem to heal themselves."

Or. Salvador points out that there are neither doctors nor hospitals in Vilcabamba. When they get sick they fast or take herbs or other natural remedies.

In December, when I talked with Father Andres Gomez, the priest in Vilcabamba, he observed, "We have an unusually high percentage of men and women in their 80's and 90's who still work. Though very poor, they're tranquil and don't worry about anything."

Studying the village

Other studies of the village have been conducted by Dr. Alexander Leaf, chief of medical services at Massachusetts General Hospital and a professor at Harvard Medical School, Dr. Harold Elrick of San Diego, and Dr. David Davies, an English gerontologist. Observers feel the $100-foot altitude is important and diet is a fundamental.

Broken bones are a rarity among these men and women says Dr. Leaf, who also studied the oldsters in southern Russia and among the Hunzas in Pakistan. He learned that constant activity kept their bones mineralized,

Writes Gordon Tremeine of Maplewood, N.J.: "I've read that America has a 300-year supply of coal. If that is true, why is the U.S. short of energy?"

It's true, but...theoretically, America does have a 300-year coal supply at present rates of consumption. Trouble is, this is coal in the ground, still to be mined-so it's only potential energy. Actually, coal provides just 18 percent of the energy America uses, and boosting that share isn't going to be easy.

What's the problem? There are several. Only about 50 percent of the coal mined by underground methods is recoverable with present mining technology. There is a shortage of miners and mining engineers. And coal can't be burned in many places due to environmental regulations and the threat of environmental lawsuits. Pending legislation threatens to erect still more barriers to coal development, making expansion of the industry uneconomic.

"NOW THAT'S REALLY BRINGING COAL TO OUR ATTENTION."

Not just for stoking. Some 4,000 companies, big and small, own U.S. coal reserves. Mobil is among them. We believe there's more to coal than stoking it into a furnace. It can be converted into high-energy gas for heating homes. Or liquid fuels for transportation.

Gasoline from coal. In the labs we're turning coal-derived methanol into high-octane gasoline. Today gasoline made from coal would cost much more than gasoline made from crude oil. Maybe twice as much. But we're working with the federal Energy Research and Development Administration to perfect the process and trim the cost. By the 1980's gasoline from coal could be more competitive (especially if the price of conventional gasoline goes up further). However, it would cost several billion dollars to build a plant to make no more than one percent of the nation's gasoline. If energy dollars continue to be squeezed between price controls and rising costs, raising that kind of money won't be easy.

Needed: trade-offs. We think it's possible to use more coal right now without any environmental sacrifice of consequence. Low-sulfur western coal, for example, is clean-burning and should be put to work. But there's got to be some environmental give and take. It makes little sense for America to import foreign oil at a cost of $66 million a day when Americans are sitting on so much coal. It's something to think about.

Observations, Box A, Mobil Oil Corporation, 150 East 42 Street, New York, N.Y. 10017

Lively and jovial at 93. Modesto Burneo (I) is typical of the village's many oldsters. Here he shares a joke with Father John Moriarty, a priest from Chicago.

dense and strong, "With inactivity at any age." Dr. Leaf says, "our bones lose their calcium salts and become thin and fragile, just as muscles atrophy and become smaller and weaker with disuse. In spite of treatment with hormones, vitamin D and high intakes of calcium and phosphorus, osteoporosis [a porous and fragile condition in bone tissue in our old people has resisted cure. Continued physical exertion remains the most potent measure against this debility."

Manuel Patino is a shy, gentle little man who farms eight hours a day, six days a week. He goes to church every Sunday and says he eats mostly green bananas. While some might wonder about his diet, no one can question his superb health and clear mind.

High in carbohydrates and low in protein, the diet here would upset nutritionists in the United States. Meals are generally beans, corn, potatoes, yucca (a starchy vegetable), banana soup, bread, fruits such as papaya, oranges and grapes, and little meatabout 30 grams a week.

The U.S.-Academy of Sciences suggests a daily intake of 2400 calories for persons over 55, and Dr. Guillermo Vela of Quito reported that in Vilcabamba the average among the longevos is 1200. Generally slender, their low-fat diet delays the onset of fatty deterioration of the heart and arteries.

We asked 93-year-old Modesto Burneo if he could read without glasses, and he replied, "Yes." When Father Moriarty handed him a magazine and pointed to a paragraph to read, Modesto laughed and said, "He's just like St. Thomas-unless he sees, he doesn't believe." A widower for the past two years. Modesto has five children.

We heard of many men and women who came to Vilcabamba with severe heart conditions or arthritis and after several months regained good health.

Frank Krammel, a railroad worker from the United States, came to the village in the summer of 1970. Tall and thin, in his middle 60's, he was so badly crippled with heart trouble he was unable to walk even a block without resting. He spent three months in the village and gradually his health improved. He eventually walked for two or three hours a day. He returned home a new man

Nature at her finest

Vilcabamba means "sacred valley." It is an ecologist's dream, with clear water provided by two rivers, pure air, and a temperate, even climate. Pollution is unknown.

What can we learn from Vilcabamba? Remain physically active and live in an environment that offers pure water, clean air, simple food and a gentle climate. However, it seems to me that this is only part of the story. These longevos seem free from fear and anxiety. Partners with nature and in tune with their surroundings, they know little of physical ailments or mental breakdowns.

If there's one thing we've proved in Western civilization it's that too much will never be enough. We can well profit from the lives of these villagersthe simplicity, health and peace, the freedom from striving and stress. The longeyos' superb health seems to reflect an absence of greed that keeps their surroundings pure, their wants simple and their lives purposeful.

A FRENCH specialty

by beth merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

This recipe is a variation of a hearty, tastetantalizing yet economical French specialty known as cassoulet. Beans are its principal ingredient; meat (usually lamb or pork), poultry (usually duck) and sausage are added; and the whole is made savory with garlic, onion and herbs.

While the authentic recipe is simmered for hours in an earthenware top-stove casserole, our version takes just under an hour to cook-using canned beans, leftover meat or poultry (or both), and sausages. But the seasonings are all there, and the pork in the canned beans adds even more flavor.

RAMEKINS PROVENÇALE

2 cups cubed leftover meat or poultry, or both

Salt and pepper to taste

- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil 1 medium onion,
- chopped 1 to 11/2 cups boiling water
- 1 garlic clove
- 1 herb bouquet*
- 2 cans (1 lb. each) pork and beans with tomato sauce
- 1/2 lb. sausages, browned and halved
- 1/2 cop chili sauce, strained
- 1/2 cup buttered soft bread crumbs

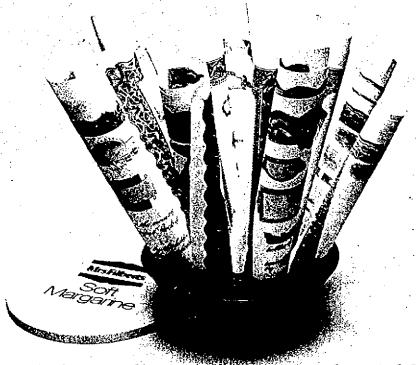

Cut meat into 11/2-inch cubes. Season with salt and pepper. Brown on all sides in very hot oil. Drain off excess oil; add onion and cook until golden brown. Add enough boiling water to cover meat mixture. Add garlic and herb bouquet; simmer 15 minutes. Remove garlic and herb bouquet.

Rub insides of deep ramekins with garlic. Spoon layer of beans into ramekins, then a layer of sausage and pieces of cubed meat. Cover with layer of beans. Add chili sauce to liquid in which meat was cooked; pour over food in ramekins. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Makes four to six servings, depending on size of ramekins.

*Herb bouquet: sprigs of parsley, bay leaf, leaf thyme, celery tops, etc., tied in cheesecloth so it can be removed easily.

Auto Theft

Most of the car thieves in this country are amateurs.

Careless car owners who park without locking their vehicles will lure more than 90,000 young people under the age of 21 into stealing a million vehicles, according to M. Jay Wanamaker, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America.

In recent years, some 80 percent of all stolen cars were unlocked and some 40 percent had the key in the car.

Dector Visits

Twenty-five percent of all children under 17 in the United States do not visit a doctor within a year, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

On the average, about four visits to a physician's office per year is normal for children under 17.

Upper-income children living in urban areas are most likely to have visited a physician during the year.

₩ Football Injuries

Football can be a deadly game. Approximately 10 football players a year die from indirect football-related causes such as heart failure and strokes. Another 19 or so die directly from head and neck injuries. So reports the latest "Annual Survey of Football Fatalities" released by the American Football Coaches Association.

More than half of these victims were high school players, others were participants in sandlot football.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that in the year ending June 30, 1975, 318,000 football-related injuries were treated in hospital emergency rooms throughout the country.

 Sex Education

Twenty-three experts from 15 countries, convened by the World Health Organization to advise on sex education policies, believe that sex exists for pleasure as well as procreation.

The experts advocate a change of attitude toward human sexuality. They say that young people should not be educated to believe that sex is sinful.

"In many countries," their report explains, "the existence of sexual taboos and myths and resulting guilt of secrecy imposed by society on sexual matters are important obstacles to sex education.

"Every person has a right to receive sexual information and to consider accepting a sexual relationship for pleasure as well as for procreation."

Where Graduates Go

This is the age of professionalism on college campuses. More college graduates are advancing to graduate and/or professional school to better prepare themselves for the real world.

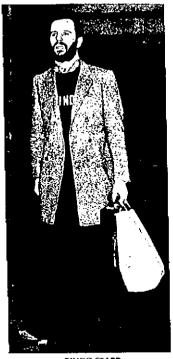

A whopping 65 percent of Yale's 1200 graduates last June entered graduate or professional school—a 5 percent increase over the class of 1974. Of those 1975 graduates, 22 percent entered law school, 15 percent Ph.D. programs, 11 percent medical school, 10 percent government service, 5 percent business school and 37 percent others.

What many of these post-college graduates are rudely discovering is that there are frequently no jobs, regardless of their impressive academic credentials.

"I hope the fact that so many students are entering graduate school is not a death toish on their part," explains Priscilla Elfrey, Associate Dean of Yale College for Career Counseling. "I ask them, Do you have any idea what the return on your graduate school investment is going to be?"

"Far too many students here are convinced that since they are from Yale, they are the ones who will be employed. Someone has to get the jobs, they say, and we are the chosen ones.

"It just doesn't work out that way," explains Elfrey. "Those students who take a leave of absence have a better perspective on this institution."

RINGO STARR

Ringo, the Frastrated Cowboy

According to Allan Williams, one of the Beatles' first managers, drummer Ringo Starr almost became a cowboy 15 years ago.

Ringo was looking for a job at the time and wrote to the Chamber of Commerce in Houston, Tex., asking if it knew of any cowboy openings.

The chamber replied with a list of the employment agencies in Houston. Two weeks later Ringo was asked to replace the original Beatles drummer, Peter Best, and quickly accepted the offer. He has always, however, had a yearning for the life of a cowboy.

tion of income in the U.S. is becoming increasingly unequal. The rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer.

According to Andrew F. Brimmer, a Harvard University economist who laft the Federal Reserve's Board of Governors in 1974, it's the blacks and the poor whites who are losing ground.

"In general," Brimmer told the 142nd annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. "over the last five years, income has been redistributed so as to favor whites vs. blacks, the better-off vs. the poor, the newer regions of the country vs. the old, and the suburbs vs. both rural areas and central cities."

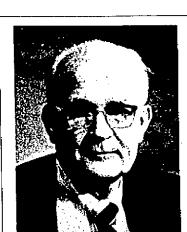

Brimmer, who was appointed to the Federal Reserve Board by Lyndon Johnson in 1966, is a critic of Ford Administration oconomic policies. He favore "a faster rate of economic growth, adoption of a national minimum income policy, and federal government assumption of the growing public welfare burden .... "

WILLIAM SHOCKLEY

William Shockley

DDATS the contro-Nobel laureate from Stanford University, suggests that subjecting Presidential candidates to lie detector tests might help restore public trust in politicians.

Shockley, who won a Nobel prize in 1956 for helping to formulate and construct the transistor, recently pointed out at a Marysville, Cal., Rotary Club meeting that the Presidential candidates were becoming more open in revealing their financial and physical health conditions.

"I think the next step after money and health is obvious," he said. "It is to demonstrate integrity. This can be done, as I found in my own case, by using polygraph examinations." Shockley suggested the submission of major questions to the candidates.

How many candidates for the Presidency would be willing to submit to lie detector tests is of course an open question. At the close of a recent White House press conference. a PARADE reporter, mindful of former President Nixon's emotional instability, good-naturedly asked President Ford: "Would you, Mr. President, submit to a mental health examination?"

Quickly Ford replied: "Do you think I need one?"

The glamour age of astronauts has passed, and according to Lee R. Scherer, director of the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla., "We should never anticipate it again."

This year, for the third time since Alan Shepard was launched into space in 1961, America's manned program will be grounded.

No astronauts will return to space until the first manned shuttle is launched in March, 1979. The shuttle will then transport not only men to and from space, but also an assortment of satellites.

Between now and 1979. the space agency will work with the two nuclear solarpowered Viking robots which were launched to Mars last summer to dig out, photograph and study the Martian surface and environment, NASA will launch some 20 satellites this year, but no men.

The last Americans who flew in space were Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand, and Donald "Deke" Slayton. In July, 1975, they met two Russian cosmonauts in orbit. That mission spelled the finish of the giant Saturn rockets and their Apollo spaceships. The days of Apollo are gone. In the 1960's, when the moon program was in full bloom, the Kennedy Space Center employed 26,000 people. Now it employs 7000. MEN EQUALLY

There are seven counties in Nevada in which prostitution is legal. Other Nevada counties have the option to follow suit, but Clark and Washoe, in which Las Vegas and Reno are located, have outlawed houses of ill fame.

In those two counties a new landmark ordinance finds prostitute and customer equally guilty, each subject to fines up to $500 and/or six months in jail. This is the first time, according to local law, that "the John" is found to be as guilty as "the hooker."

Las Vegas has long been a mecca for girls who peddle their virtue to the gamblers in the bars. lounges, and casinos of the various hotels. From time to time the police engage in "a cattle roundup," booking and fining the "hookers." But the girls always return. The lure of the easy buck is irresistible.

TAIRST HOTH The world's tallest hotel, the 75-story Peachtree Center Plaza, has opened in downtown Atlanta.

It cost $55 million, consists of a circular tower resting on a rectangular base which is divided into three parts.

It boasts a lake in the lobby, a soven-story atrium and 1100 rooms, which start on the 15th and progress to the 70th floor.

Rates range from $30 a day for a single to $880 a day for a 16-room suite.

The circular hotel was designed by architect John Portman, is owned by Portman Properties, and is managed by Western international Hotels, a subsidiary of United Airlines.

In Great Britain, the license fee for operating a color TV set has risen from $24 a year to $36. The British Broadcasting Corp., deeply in the red, has applied for a further increase but has been told license fees will have to remain at the present figure for at least two more years.

In Ireland, TV viewers have to pay $54 a year for color set licenses and $32 for black and white sets.

The money goes for the production of TV programs.

TOO EMOTIONAL FOR THE ENGLISH

It is common practice in Europe for small groups of muscular young men to exchange embraces and even kisses on overy weekend when one of their teammates scores a goal at soccer.

Such behavior has come under sharp attack from England's football association, which fears that Britain's reputation as "a nation of firm-lipped untouchables" is in jeopardy.

Accordingly, England's football association has drafted on-the-field standards for its soccer players to downplay "demonstrations of pleasure."

Predictably, the London press believes this practice was "something the British footballer learned from the foreigner."

WOMEN AT TOKYO CLUB WITH RENTED DANCING PARTNERS

JAPANESE HOST CLUB

The practice of paying professional male hosts has really caught on in Japan.

In Tokyo alone there are now more than 150 clubs where women pay men to dance, drink, and flirt with them, and possibly do more.

Most of the women searching for excitement at these clubs are married, and in many cases husband-neglected.

Almost five years ago, Ginza Knight was established as one of the first host clubs in Tokyo.

According to its manager, Kunio Maeda, "We now have more than 90 men to look after our clientele, most of them women in their 30's and 40's. Many of them are lonely or taken for granted and want a night of dancing or fun or entertaining conversation.

"We charge these women $2 a half-hour to rent a host. Food and drinks are extra. If they ask for a particular host, the charge is $2.30 an hour.

"Some of our hosts earn as much as $3000 a month. These are the mon who encourage our clientele to eat and drink heartily. Most of our hosts are single, and they must obey strictly our house rules. For example, they must dress neatly; they must act politely; they cannot dance with their partners checkto-check. Everything must be on the upand-up. We do not encourage after-hours affairs."

Whether such affairs are encouraged or not, they take place. One host estimates that he has affairs with at least 10 percent of his women customers.

"That's how I've managed to build up a loyal following," he points out. "and a stabilized budget."

Another host, a former Tokyo policeman, recently confided to a reporter: "Generally there are two types of women customers. One who will never come back if you go to bed with her. She is so ashamed. The other will come back regularly if you go to bed with her. It's best to move slowly before you make a judgment. What you want in this business are regulars. One must judge his customers carefully."

An authentic scale model of the plaza in which President Kennedy was assassinated is one of many attention-grabbing devices used by Dr. George Michael Evica—seen here holding a pointer—in his unusual U. of Hartford course.

A New College Course

They Study the JFK Assassination

by Jonathan Braun

HARTFORD, CONN.

s the Warren Commission Report on the assassination of John F. Kennedy accurate? Was Lee Harvey Oswald really the Ione gunman responsible for the President's death, or was there a conspiracy? And if there really was a plot, who else was involved—and why?

If questions like this trouble you, perhaps you ought to enroll in ISP-223, a course in the University of Hartford's Interaction Studies Program entitled "Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963: The JFK Assassination."

The 25 students taking the experimental, three-credit course being taught by Profs. George Michael Evica and Harald Sandstrom seem to have been attracted by the air of mystery that still hangs over the assassination—an event most of them are obviously too young to remember in any significant way.

"I was only 6 years old when it took place," says Zachary Obedin, an 18y year-old freshman. "This is my chance to find out what happened."

"It all comes down to this," says Professor Evica, "exactly what happened in Dealey Plaza in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 22nd, 1963, between 12:30 and 12:32 in the afternoon?"

An English professor with 21 years of teaching experience—more than 10 of them at the University of Hartford—Evica is director of the Connecticut Citizens Commission of Inquiry, a statewide organization whose sole purpose is pressuring for a Congressional reopening of the inquiry into President Kennedy's assassination. The group is one of 85 similar chapters that are affiliated with the Washington, D.C.-based

Pointing to a slide of the man accused of killing Kennedy, Evica raises the theory "Lee Harvey Oswald" was not one man—but an alias used by many.

Citizens Commission of Inquiry, headed by the controversial assassination investigator Mark Lane.

"The course is really an outgrowth of a national conference that was sponsored by the Connecticut Commission and held here at the university last October," Evica says. "We had 3000 people participating in four days of discussion. There was a great outpouring of student interest, and it seemed obvious that many students were into this subject in a serious way. So Harald Sandstrom and I teamed up, approached the administration and convinced them to let us give a full, one-semester course wholly devoted to exploring the assassination."

Initially, 30 students enrolled in the course, but five dropped out because of the heavy work load.

In-depth research

"This is no easy ride," explains Sandstrom, a youthful, soft-spoken political science professor. "For many of these students—and they seem to be an exceptional group—it is the first time they have ever been asked to do a piece of in-depth independent research. It's quite a learning experience for them."

A required, 30-page typewritten research paper focusing on a specific aspect of the assassination will be the main factor in determining each student's final grade.

"My topic is the autopsy conducted on the President," says Zachary Obedin. "It's pretty grim stuff—and pretty chilling, too."

The unmistakable sense of fear—the notion that they are wading into murky and potentially dangerous waters—is common among those in a three-hour class that meets Wednesday afternoons.

"I attended the October conference," says Mimi Spillane, a sophomore whose research area is the news media coverage of the assassination. "Because of that experience I wanted to learn more about the case. Now that I have, I'm scared."

'Something ugly'

"We all are," adds Professor Sandstrom. "There's the feeling of being on the threshhold of something very big and very ugly."

Subject matter aside, much of the course's supercharged atmosphere can be attributed to Professor Evica and his dramatic teaching style -- compelling. enthusiastically delivered lectures peppered with sarcasm and a variety of attention-grabbing devices. They may include a frame-by-frame showing of the critical 22 seconds of the "Zapruder film" of the assassination, or a series of slides of the rifle Oswald allegedly used to kill the President, or a presentation built around an authentic scale model of Dealey Plaza—the only such model, says Evica, in existence outside Washington FBI headquarters.

A continuing interest

"He is an acknowledged expert in this field," says Sandstrom of the tall, bearded Evica. "I can't touch his expertise. But I can try to give it an additional academic dimension from the standpoint of political science."

Sandstrom says he has always been interested in the role of assassination in politics. As for Evica, how did an English professor—a published author and poet whose specialties are myth and ritual in literature—get intensely involved in investigating one of the more tragic and puzzling episodes in American history?

"When Kennedy was killed, I mourned as everyone else did," Evica says. "Two days after, like millions of Americans, I saw Jack Ruby shoot Lee Harvey Oswald on television. From the moment that shot was fired, I suspected conspiracy. You see, I might have bought the theory of a single, crazed assassin . . . but not two in three days. That stretches credibility too much. So I began my own study of the case."

That was over 12 years ago — and Evica has been at it ever since.

"I teach a course in tragedy," he says, referring to one of his four literature courses, "and I see a parallel between the JFK assassination and some literary figures. To me, Kennedy was the young hero who in a way captured the imagination, love and loyalty of a whole country ... regardless of what is now said about his personal life. Like all heroic figures, he was filled with great passion. So it should come as no surprise to anyone that he was as interested in women, it appears, as they obviously were in him."

No single theory

A persuasive speaker, Evica denies being committed to any one theory regarding the case. "As an independent researcher," he adds, "I am now convinced that the so-

"A number of things don't add up, says Evica in reply to a question about the angle of entry of the fatal "single bullet" that has become the subject of so much controversy.

perfectly intact, copper-jacketed lead bullet, entered the back of Kennedy's neck, exited just above his tie, and entered then Texas Governor John Connally's back, where it broke one of his ribs before exiting through his chest, allegedly fell out of the Governor's thigh while he was on a stretcher. Even more incredibly, it was found virtually unmarked. . . .

"The single bullet theory is really the key to the whole case. If you break that,

IF YOU HAVE IRON-POOR BLOOD ALL THE VITAMINS IN THE WORLD WON'T HELP.

Iron-poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. And taking vitamins can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take Geritol, every day. Geritol is so rich in iron, each tablet contains more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol's iron will actually build your blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

leaving a large "sucking" wound. According to the Warren Commission, the same bullet then passed through Connally's wrist, breaking bones, and finally embedded itself in his left thigh.

"The bullet," says Evica, "was supposed to have been found, according to the Warren Commission, on the floor of Parkland Memorial Hospital after it you prove conspiracy. Of course, it still doesn't tell you why or who."

One of the more bizarre questions with which Evica deals in his classroom lectures is the suggestion that there might have been more than one Lee Harvey Oswald. Clicking through a startling slide presentation of various photographs of the alleged assassin—

"I've learned a lot—and I'm scared," says Mimi Spillane, one of 25 taking the course.

"In a way, it's like studying to be a private detective," says freshman Zachary Obedin.

blowups that would lead an observer to believe he was viewing at least two different individuals — Evica states: "Perhaps we should consider the possibility that Lee Harvey Oswald was not one man at all, but a cover identity available to a number of intelligence agents who physically resembled each other."

Numerous angles

"There seem to be an infinite number of angles to the case," says class member John Richters, whose special topic is the Ruby investigation. A data processing manager from the neighboring Hartford area, Richters is not a matriculated university student. "But I am taking the course for credit," he points out. "It's costing me $180 plus $50 in books and lots of time in research."

Does the Hartford course signify a trend? Could be. At

Monterey Peninsula College, a California two-year college, 40 students are taking English 195, a two-credit course that covers both the John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy assassinations. There may be others, too. Students these days are asking some hard questions and they aren't satisfied with the generally accepted, official answers.

है called single bullet theory is a fraud g that two, possibly three, rifles fired that हूँ day at Kennedy."

The single bullet theory is a product gof the Warren Commission's finding a that Commission Exhibit 399, an almost

My slacks didn't stretch. I"shrank" 79 pounds.

By Shirley Wentz—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

Me, at a grass 200 pounds. Next to my baby daughter, I really took like I weigh more.

hat's right. I went from a solid 200 pounds to a trim 121 and wound up looking like Mrs. Baggy Pants. But it was the most beautiful sight in the world to me.

Funny thing is, I never really thought I looked as big as I did. My husband certainly never said anything to me about my weight. And it's probably just as well because I hurt easily. I remember once, when visiting my father-in-law, he said: "Shirley, you make two of your sisters." I didn't say anything but I didn't go back for another six months.

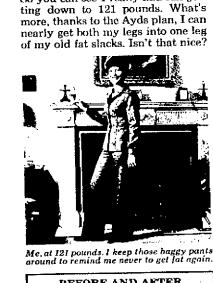

Meanwhile, I tried several drastic ways of losing weight. Mainly through the mail. By that I mean I sent away for diet pills. One ad said something like "Lose weight over-night while you're sleeping." But like the other things I tried, these pills didn't work, either. So I continued to eat ice cream, potato chips, pizza, bread-enough fattening food to fill out a size 20 dress. I also tried "starving" myself. But I got sick and even had dizzy spells.

Finally, I went to my doctor and asked him for some reducingdrug pills that would work. But I didn't get any satisfaction there, either. He simply said: "Shirley, if you'd just set your mind to losing weight, you could do it." My problem was I knew I couldn't do it without help. So I went back to looking through magazines for some kind of reducing aid. And you know what? I found one. Only it's spelled A-y-d-s, the reducing plan candy that contains vitamins and minerals but no drugs. I bought a box of the vanilla caramel kind at one of the stores in Hanover, Pa.; then I started following the Ayds plan.

I took two Ayds before each meal, either with hot coffee or with hot broth, and those candies really helped satisfy my appetite. I was able to eat regular meals, but I ate smaller portions. At supper, for instance, I'd have a piece of meat, potato, a vegetable, even a little bread. And I was happy. Of course, the weight didn't come off overnight, but I sure lost it steadily. I know because I kept a record. There's a chart in each Ayds box and by writing down how many pounds I took off each week, I always knew where I was at. Why, in the first few weeks, I dropped 10 pounds, yet I overheard a woman in a store say it tock her three months to lose the same amount on another diet.

As the scale went down more, I began getting out more. I even dragged my husband onto a dance floor to do "The Bump". Why, it made me feel like a teen-ager again. It also made me feel stiff and sore, but not for long. Besides, it was good exercise and well worth the laughs. So you can see I really had fun get-

My Favorite jokes

by jeff chern

EDITOR'S NOTE: Originally from Cleveland, Jeff Chern now lives in New York City where, in his act, he discusses some of the perils of life there—like dating. "Cirls are very difficult to impress in Manhattan," he says. "In the Midwest if you go up to a girl at a bar and say, 'Listen, I'm a stand-up comic,' she'll say, 'Really, what kind of stuff do you do? Have you ever been on TV?' Tell a girl in New York that you're a comedian and she says: 'I dig that—you wanna see my Cagney imitation?'

Actually, you find some interesting places in New York. For instance, they have strange boutiques. I went to an Indian boutique where they have little items from India like jade elephants, and I saw a book on a shelf. The title was: "How to Become a Famous Trumpet Player." And I thought, boy, that's funny to see in an Indian shop. I read the first few pages of the book and it tells you how you can die and come back as Dizzy Gillespie."

Jeff has performed at the Improvisation and Catch A Rising Star in Manhattan, and Pip's in Brooklyn.

Here are some of his jokes and stor-

I just moved recently from the West Side to the East Side. I had to move. What happened was, on the West Side this guy above me started to play the flute. It was great music, but the mice were lined up for miles.

New York is a very religious town. If you don't think people have faith in this city, watch how New Yorkers cross the street.

A lot of people run around here asking for money. You know, "You have any spare change, buddy?" They can make you feel guilty after a while. I just couldn't take it any more and one day I dropped a nickel into this guy's cup and it made a splash. How did I know he was drinking coffee?

I don't like to go to singles bars. Girls are usually very sarcastic to me. I remember I asked one girl how she stayed so young-looking. She told me she ate last year's food.

I asked this girl whether she wanted me to buy her a drink. She said: "Well, I haven't got the time right now, but could you give me the $2 instead?"

And my neighborhood was a very vocationally oriented place. When I went to high school it was during the Vietnam war and kids were fascinated by uniforms; any kind of uniform. So we lost half of our graduating class to the Army and half to Texaco.

In school we had what they usually call Corporation Day. They invite people from different corporations to visit the school and speak to the students about employment opportunities. We had Jack from the hardware store come over and show us how to make keys.

And we had a local baseball team—it was the worst. I went to watch one of the games with my cousin. He caught a foul tip—and he was recruited to play the next inning.

I went to India once and I worked in what was called the Federal Post Office of India. You think our postal service can be bad? Some of those people don't get their letters till their second lifetime.

Whydoyou smoke?

With what you've been hearing about smoking these days, you probably wonder sometimes why you smoke at all.

Yet you enjoy it.

Because smoking a cigarette can be one of those rare and pleasurable private moments.

And the chances are you don't want to give up any of that.

Which brings us to Vantage.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who don't entertain the idea of giving up cigarettes because they find cigarettes too entertaining.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who have come to realize that most cigarettes that give them the flavor they want also give them a lot of the 'tar' and the nicotine that they may not want.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who've found that most low 'tar' cigarettes don't give them anything at all.

The thing that makes Vantage special is that its filter is based on a new design concept that gives smokers the flavor of a full-flavor cigarette without anywhere near the 'tar' and nicotine.

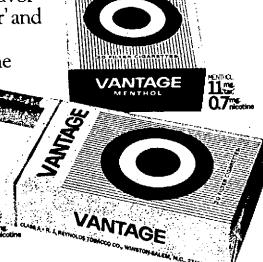

Now we don't want to suggest that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you'll find.

It isn't.

But it probably is the lowest one that will give you enjoyment.

And that's why you smoke. Right?
